"COPY of CORRESPONDENCE between the Secretary of State for the Home Department and the Magistrates acting for the Town of Accrington, relative to the late SEIZURES for EASTER DUES."

Whitehall, 29 July. } G. CLIVE.

Gentlemen, Whitehall, 15 July 1861.

INQUIRY having been made of Secretary Sir George Lewis as to the seizure and sale by auction of the goods of some of the inhabitants of the town of Accrington, on account of Easter Offerings claimed by the Vicar of Whalley, and as to the state of the town in consequence; I am to request that you will be so good as to furnish Sir George Lewis, at your early convenience, with a statement of what has taken place.

I am, &c.

Sir, Accrington, 19 July 1861.

IN reply to your communication to the Magistrates acting at Accrington of the 15th instant, I am directed to inform you that distress warrants have lately been issued against 13 individuals who refused to pay Easter offerings due to the Vicar of Whalley, nearly all of whom are members of an Association established here for the purpose of affording aid to those who resist the payment. These distress warrants were executed on the 25th ultimo, and the goods seized were sold on the Friday following. A very large body of people attended the sale, increased considerably in consequence of some of the manufacturers allowing their factories to stop on the occasion. The goods were all sold in about five or six minutes, to two persons understood to be appointed by the Association to buy them, and they were the only bidders. Considerable excitement prevailed, but no attempt was made by, nor did there appear to be any disposition on the part of the mob to create any disturbance, or to be in any way riotous. Two magistrates were in attendance, and the chief constable of the county was there also, with an efficient staff of the constabulary force, to be in readiness in the event of their services being required.

I may add, that two seizures under warrants of distress have been previously made, and the goods of the parties sold.

I have, &c.

(signed) G. Bannister,

Clerk to the Accrington Justices.

H. Waddington, Esq., &c. &c. &c.

ACCRINGTON (EASTER DUES).

COPY of CORRESPONDENCE between the Secretary of State for the Home Department and the Magistrates of Accrington, relative to the late SEIZURES for EASTER DUES.

CORRESPONDENCE.

— No. 1. —

PARISH OF MANCHESTER DIVISION ACT.

Augmentation of Benefices.

11, Whitehall-place, S.W., January 1859.

THE Ecclesiastical Commissioners for England have had under consideration the question as to the best mode of appropriating towards the objects contemplated by the "Parish of Manchester Division Act" the surplus revenues of the Chapter of Manchester, which are paid to the Commissioners.

The 13th section of the Act directs generally that the monies paid over to the Commissioners from the source in question shall be applied towards making better provision for the cure of souls within the parish of Manchester, and also, if it shall be deemed expedient, towards relieving the Commissioners' Common Fund from any annual payments to which it may be subject in respect of churches within the parish.

The 23d section of the Act enacts more specifically that the surplus monies to be paid to the Commissioners by the Chapter shall be applied, first, in making compensation to any person having any vested right which is injured by the operation of the statute; and, secondly, in raising the income of every church in Manchester, first to 150 l. and afterwards to 250 l. per annum, and the 24th section provides for the application of the surplus monies after the objects aforesaid shall have been effected.

No claim to compensation coming within the meaning of the Act has yet arisen, and the Commissioners are given to understand that it is improbable that any such claim will arise.

The annual charge upon the Common Fund in respect of payments to incumbents of churches at Manchester amounts to upwards of 1,500 l., whilst the aggregate receipts which have hitherto accrued to the Commissioners from the surplus revenues of the Chapter are under 1,700 l. as shown in the following table:

Payments by Dean and Chapter of Manchester to Ecclesiastical Commissioners for England:

Year 1853	50	18	2
„ 1854	197	6	11
„ 1855	184	14	8
„ 1856	721	2	10
„ 1857	295	–	10
„ 1858	170	10	4
£.	1,619	13	9

It may also be observed that the corporate revenues of the Chapter are charged not only with the incomes fixed by Parliament for the several members of the Chapter, but also with the maintenance of the fabric and the cost of the services, and that consequently the residue payable to the Commissioners, which alone is applicable to the augmentation of benefices, will vary from time to time according to circumstances beyond the Commissioners' control.

It is manifest that if the surplus which has already accrued to the Commissioners should be appropriated towards relieving the Common Fund from the charge above referred to, the benefit contemplated by the Act for the Manchester churches would have to be postponed to an almost indefinite period.

The Commissioners are not prepared to adopt this course; but having regard to the large number of churches within the original parish of Manchester requiring augmentation, and also to the small and fluctuating income available for for that purpose, the Commissioners have decided for the present to adopt the principle of distribution now governing the disposal of the surplus of the Common Fund, and to make grants in the first instance in those cases in which a benefaction is offered from other sources, in accordance with the existing regulations relating to the last-named fund as set forth below, so far as they may be applicable to the parish of Manchester.

By Order of the Board,

(signed) James J. Chalk,
Secretary.

ECCLESIASTICAL COMMISSIONERS FOR ENGLAND.

11, Whitehall-place, S.W., January 1859.

THE Ecclesiastical Commissioners for England are prepared to receive applications for Grants, out of the Common Fund under their control, towards making better provision for the cure of souls, on condition that such Grants be met by benefactions from other sources.

A benefaction from trustees, or from any diocesan or other society or body of contributors, as well as from any individual, whether such benefaction consist of money, land, house, site for a house, tithe, or rentcharge, any or all, may be met by a grant from the Commissioners—but neither a grant from Queen Anne's Bounty—nor a benefaction already met by such a grant—nor money borrowed of Queen Anne's Bounty—nor a charge upon the revenues of any Ecclesiastical Corporation aggregate or sole * (except as under mentioned)—nor any endowment, gift, or benefaction already secured to a benefice or church—can be met by a grant from the Commissioners.

In selecting cases priority will be given to those which, having regard to population, area, and income, shall appear to be the most necessitous.

The grant and benefaction may at any time be laid out in the purchase of land, or tithe rentcharge within the parish or district, or in the purchase or erection of a parsonage house.

A benefice which has received a grant is not precluded from receiving a further grant in any subsequent year.

Applications must be made to the Commissioners before the 1st of March in each year in order to obtain a grant in the same year; and in the event of a grant being made to a benefice, the benefaction, if in money, must be paid to the Commissioners on or before the 1st of July, or the grant will be rescinded.

All communications to be addressed to—The Secretary, Ecclesiastical Commission, 11, Whitehall-place, London, S. W.

LETTER from the Bishop of Manchester to the Secretary.

Mauldeth Hall, Manchester,
10 March 1859.

Dear Sir,

I HAVE to acknowledge the receipt of the resolution respecting the surplus revenues of the Dean and Chapter of Manchester, which will, I fear, cause much disappointment and dissatisfaction.

No notice is taken of the fact that 400 l. a year, at least, is added to the sum payable in each year to the Commissioners in consequence of the death of Dr. Parkinson.

In two years there is a discrepancy between the accounts sent to me and the abstract deposited in the Diocesan Registry, and that published by the Commissioners. In the two former no balance is set down as payable in 1853, and 97 l. 4 s. 7½ d. in 1855. In the printed statement, 1853 has 50 l. 18 s. 2 d., and 1855, 184 l. 14 s. 8 d.

On the proposed arrangement the districts which are poorest (and they are very numerous) will have little chance of obtaining anything. In the old parish of Manchester upwards of 30 churches have under 50 l. per annum endowment. Some regard too should have been paid to what has been already done in Manchester. In the old parish I have myself, since 1847, consecrated 18 new churches, all built, and 12 endowed by private liberality; six more, at least, are in various stages of actual progress, or certain soon to be so. It seems scarcely reasonable to compel the clergy to ask for more, to obtain what Parliament has already decreed should be assigned them. The decision of the Commissioners is, however, made, and I am only anxious to deliver myself from the responsibility of what I had no share in.

I am, &c.

REPORT of the Estates Committee, at a Meeting held Thursday, 17th March 1859; adopted at General Meeting held Thursday, 24th March 1859.

THE Committee have had before them a communication from the Bishop of Manchester dissenting from the mode in which the Board propose to distribute the surplus revenues of the Chapter of Manchester, which are paid to the Commissioners.

His Lordship's objections are based chiefly upon the two following considerations:

1. That in consequence of its being necessary to raise a benefaction in order to obtain a grant, in any case the poorest districts will have the smallest chance of benefiting by the surplus.

2. That the inhabitants of Manchester have already contributed towards church purposes to such an extent as to make it appear scarcely reasonable to compel the clergy to seek for further subscriptions before receiving benefit from the funds which have been assigned by the Legislature for the improvement of the cures within the parish.

The Committee recommend that an answer be returned to the effect that the course contemplated by the Commissioners appears to them to be consistent with the provisions of the Manchester Act, and that in awarding a priority to those cases in which a benefaction is offered, the Board conceive that they will secure the most beneficial application of the very limited means now at their disposal for the purpose in view.

Manchester Chapter—Revenues.

My Lord, 11, Whitehall-place, S. W., 19 March 1859.

WITH reference to the apparent discrepancies of account alluded to in your Lordship's letter of the 10th instant, I beg leave to offer the following explanations:

The amount received by the Ecclesiastical Commissioners for England in 1853 was 50 l. 18 s. 2 d., namely, 33 l. 18 s. 9 d. in respect of the deanery, being the excess over 2,000 l., and 16 l. 19 s. 5 d. in respect of the canonry held by the Rev. R. C. Clifton, being the excess over 1,000 l.; but the income tax on the said sums of 2,000 l. and 1,000 l., which was a subject of correspondence between this Board and the Chapter, was not received until 1855, so accounting precisely for the difference between 184 l. 14 s. 8 d., and 97 l. 4 s. 8 d., namely, 87 l. 10 s., or 7 d. in the £. on 3,000 l.

My Lord, 11, Whitehall-place, S. W., 31 March 1859.

them to be consistent with the provisions of the statute in question, and that in awarding priority to those cases in which benefactions are offered, the Board conceive that they will secure the most beneficial application of the very limited means now at their disposal for the purpose in view.

LETTER from Thomas Southam, Esq., LL.D., to the Secretary.

9, St. James's-square, Manchester,
Dear Sir, 19 April 1859.

AT the request of the Committee of the Church Restoration Society, I send you herewith a copy of resolutions passed at their meeting on the 15th instant.

And am, &c.

— No. 7 A. —

RESOLUTIONS adopted at a Meeting of the Committee of the Society for the Restoration of Churches to the People of Manchester and Salford; held on the 15th April 1859; E. Herford, Esq., in the Chair.

THAT the scheme which has been published by the Ecclesiastical Commissioners for the appropriation of the surplus revenues of the parochial property of Manchester towards the endowment of the privately appropriated or pewed churches in proportion to the money raised by the persons interested in such churches, appears to this committee to be neither just nor satisfactory to the parishioners at large.

That the persons chiefly interested in the due application of these revenues for the increase of clergy and church accommodation in the parish are the great majority of the parishioners, who are nearly excluded by the private appropriation of the various district churches from all benefit therefrom.

That to provide means for and to secure the attendance of the masses at church, what is chiefly required is, that some of the less-frequented town churches should be thrown entirely open, and freed from pews and pew rents; which could be done with the greatest benefit and very little expense, on some other source of income being provided.

That the Ecclesiastical Commissioners be respectfully requested to concur in such arrangements by making grants in the first instance to such churches only as shall be made entirely free and unappropriated.

That such churches as are in the strict sense "parish churches," and equally accessible to all the parishioners, rich and poor, have an especial claim to endowment out of funds which are strictly public or parochial funds.

That a copy of these resolutions be forwarded to the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, and that their attention be respectfully called to the memorial to the foregoing effect forwarded to the Secretary, J. J. Chalk, Esq., upwards of a year ago, but to which no reply has yet been received.

That in the event of a satisfactory answer on the subject not being received from the Commissioners before the meeting of Parliament, copies of these resolutions be forwarded to the Right Honourable S. H. Walpole and other Members of Parliament who are opposed to the appropriation of parish churches, with the request that they will bring the matter under the notice of the House of Commons.

REPORT of the Estates Committee, at a Meeting held Thursday, 5th May 1859; adopted at General Meeting, held Thursday, 12th May 1859.

Manchester Chapter—Revenues.

Appropriation of Surplus under Act 13 & 14 Vict. c. 41.

THE Committee have had before them a copy of certain resolutions adopted at a meeting of the Committee of the Society for the Restoration of Churches to the people of Manchester and Salford, objecting to the rules which have been laid down by the Board for the distribution of the surplus revenues of the Chapter

Chapter of Manchester, and submitting that the most fitting mode of appropriating the monies in the first instance would be to apply them towards rendering the sittings in some of the less frequented churches entirely free.

The society intimate their intention of petitioning Parliament in the event of their views not being adopted by the Board.

The Committee recommend that it be stated in reply that the rules in question were adopted by the Board after very careful consideration, and that the Commissioners do not at present see any reason for departing from them.

LETTER from the Secretary to Thomas Southam, Esq., LL. D.

Sir, 11, Whitehall-place, 18 May 1859.

I HAVE submitted to the Ecclesiastical Commissioners for England your letter of the 19th ultimo, enclosing a copy of "Resolutions adopted at a meeting of the Committee of the Society for the Restoration of Churches to the people of Manchester and Salford," taking exception to the rules laid down by this Board for the distribution of the surplus revenues of the Chapter of Manchester, which are paid over to the Commissioners, and setting forth the mode of appropriating the monies in question which the society conceive to be the most fitting under the circumstances.

In reply, I am directed to state that the rule in question were adopted only after very careful consideration, and that the Commissioners do not at present see any sufficient reason for departing from them.

With reference to the paragraph in the resolutions, adverting to a memorial which is stated to have been forwarded to me upwards of a year ago, without obtaining a reply, I beg to state that if the document alluded to be a memorial without date from the dean and certain of the clergy and other members of the Established Church, in the parish of Manchester, which on the 7th August 1857 was transmitted by the Rev. John Richardson, rector of St. Anne's, Manchester, an acknowledgment of the receipt of and a promise of attention to the document was immediately sent to Mr. Richardson, and that when the decision of the Commissioners as to the mode of appropriating the surplus revenues of the Chapter had been arrived at, it was embodied in the rules above alluded to, and a copy of these rules was forwarded to Mr. Richardson.

I am, &c.

To the Ecclesiastical Commissioners for England.

The Memorial of Rectors, Incumbents, and Ministers of the existing Rectories, Parishes, or Districts of Manchester,

Humbly sheweth,

THAT your memorialists have received with much surprise and regret the proposal of the Ecclesiastical Commissioners for the present, to distribute the surplus funds received from from the Chapter property of Manchester as capital, and not as income, by adopting the same principle of distribution as now governs their disposal of the surplus of the common fund.

That the proposal of the Commissioners meets with the unanimous disapprobation of your memorialists, it being directly calculated indefinitely to defer the benefits intended to be conferred by the Legislature (in passing "The Parish of Manchester Division Act, 1850,") upon the parochial clergy of Manchester, and thereby to defeat the principal objects for which the Act was obtained and passed.

That there are in the original parish of Manchester, 56 churches entitled to participate in the benefits of the said Act, to which districts have been assigned, containing populations varying from 20,000 to 2,000, all with very limited endowments, and in some cases possessing no endowment whatever.

That your memorialists confidently but respectfully submit that the proposal made by the Ecclesiastical Commissioners is inconsistent alike with the letter and the spirit of "The Parish of Manchester Division Act, 1850," which Act, as they humbly contend, imposed a trust upon the Commissioners, from which they cannot legally deviate, to distribute the surplus income of the Chapter property of Manchester as income, in the mode pointed out by the 23d section of the Act. And your memorialists are prepared to support this allegation for the following among other reasons, namely:

1st. Because the 13th section of the Act to which the report refers, is by express enactment made subject to the provisions of that Act; which provisions include in the 23d section a positive unconditional and specific appropriation of the surplus revenues provided by the Act, and make it obligatory upon the Commissioners to apply the monies they receive from the Chapter of Manchester—1st, In making compensation to parties injured, should any injury accrue; and 2dly, In the payment of such yearly or other sum or sums of money, as to the Commissioners shall seem fit, to each and every or any one or more of the rectors, incumbents, or ministers of the rectories, parishes, or districts of Manchester. It being provided that no rector, &c. shall in any one year be paid by the Commissioners under the Act more than sufficient, with other endowments, to make up his income to 150 l., for that year, until all shall be in the receipt of 150 l., but that when all have received 150 l., the Commissioners are then required to proceed in like manner to increase such incomes, until every one shall be in the receipt of the yearly income of 250 l.

2dly. Because the expression of "yearly or other sum or sums of money," used in the 23d section of the Act was intended, and would be construed to refer to yearly or other sum or sums of money paid periodically, or as the funds came under the control of the Commissioners, and could not refer to gross sums to be invested as capital from which the clergy were to receive their income, the whole provisions of this Section, and of the Act, clearly showing that the payments were intended to be made by the Commissioners to the clergy, and to be annual or other payments ejusdem generis out of the income paid to the Commissioners.

3dly. Because the surplus monies and revenues paid by the dean and canons to the Ecclesiastical Commissioners constitute in themselves a surplus annual income, and do not arise from the sale or disposal of the property producing such income, and though, to some extent, the surplus income may vary in amount, there is every reason to suppose it will gradually increase and will never again be less, after paying all expenses, than 600 l. per annum, whilst the deaths of members of the Chapter body, and other circumstances, must materially increase such surplus income when those events arise.

4thly. Because the 24th Section of the Act upon which, if upon any portion of the Act, it appears to your memorialists that the Ecclesiastical Commissioners are now proposing to proceed, cannot, as your memorialists are advised and believe, be legally acted upon, until, as the clause expressly provides, all the purposes of the Act, as set forth in the previous clauses, have been answered, that is, not until every rector, incumbent, or minister within the parish entitled to participate in the benefits of the Act, is in the receipt of an endowment, amounting to 250 l. per annum.

6thly. Because the course proposed by the Commissioners would practically afford little benefit to any of the existing churches within the parish of Manchester, many of which are built in the most populous parts of the parish with little or no endowment.

Your memorialists would further submit, that if the proposal to capitalise the surplus income of the Manchester Chapter property were, under any circumstances, justifiable, but which your memorialists respectfully contend will not be the case until the purposes of the the Act, as set forth in the 23d Section have been fully answered the requirement of the Commissioners that every grant from them shall be met by a corresponding amount of benefactions, would practically exclude the poorest district parishes, and afford a preference to those parishes in which the wealthier inhabitants reside, and where the aid is less required.

And your Memorialists will ever pray, &c.

My Lord,

IN answer to that portion of your Lordship's letter of the 2d instant, which relates to the distribution of the surplus revenues of the chapter of Manchester, I have the honour to state that having regard to the desire which has been expressed for a reconsideration of the mode in which the Ecclesiastical Commissioners for England had proposed to distribute such revenues, the Board have deemed it advisable to obtain further information as to what may be the probable future income of the chapter; and I fear that these particulars will not be obtained in time to enable the Commissioners to determine the question before the recess.

Sir,

I HAVE been requested to forward to you the enclosed memorial for the endowment of such churches in the parish of Manchester as may become free and unappropriated, and to request the Commissioners' favourable and early consideration thereof.

To the Right Honourable and Right Reverend the Ecclesiastical Commissioners for England and Wales.

The Memorial of the undersigned Inhabitants of the original Parish of Manchester, praying for the Endowment out of the parish funds of the parish of Manchester, under the Rectory Division Act, of such churches in the parish as shall become really parish churches by being made free and unappropriated;

Sheweth,

THAT the object of parochial divisions is to supply all the inhabitants of a parish or place with the means of attending public worship.

That the parochial district assigned to a church in this parish usually contains some thousands of inhabitants, of whom only a small fraction are able and willing to pay pew rents.

That, by the common law of England, and the custom of the Church, the whole of the area or sittings in a parish church should be left open and available for the use of the inhabitants, or all who will come; that to reserve and appropriate all or nearly the whole of of such area for the use of from one to two hundred respectable families, frequently not even resident in the district, is a clear wrong inflicted on the people of such district.

That whilst not denying the abstract right of any persons to build a place of worship for themselves, affording a few free seats to the poor, your memorialists conceive that such a course has no special claim to support from parochial or public property.

That the principle of a national church to provide religious instruction for all the people, and chiefly for those who need it most, is contravened by a system which practically confines to a few all the advantages of the church in each district or parish.

That the pew system has contributed to bring, in little more than a century, a religious population into the state described in Mr. Mann's late census returns, and is the cause of grievous scandals to religion and the Church.

That the only tenable pretext for the appropriating and renting of pews is the securing a sufficient income for the clergyman.

That the chief evils of the renting and appropriation of pews in churches are but little affected by the greater or less number of the pews so appropriated, but that any proprietary reservation whatever in a church necessarily introduces invidious distinctions between those who pay pew rent, and those who do not; distinctions which appear to be forbidden by Scripture, and which tend to repel the great body of the people from the worship of the Church.

That, for the foregoing reasons, your memorialists earnestly pray that the Commissioners will take into their early consideration the propriety of devoting the parochial funds of the parish of Manchester primarily to the endowment of such churches in the original parish of Manchester as are now or shall hereafter be made "parish churches," by being secured in perpetuity to the public worship of God, free from pew rents or appropriated sittings.

Town Hall, Manchester,
27 January 1860.

Sir,

I BEG to forward you the accompanying memorial from the churchwardens of new parishes in the ancient parish of Manchester, with explanatory letter to the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, which I shall esteem it a favour if you will place before them at their next meeting.

I am, &c.

LETTER from William Pearson, Esq., to the Ecclesiastical Commissioners.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

As the chairman of the meeting of the churchwardens of new parishes within the ancient parish of Manchester, held on the 25th instant, I beg to forward to you the enclosed memorial, signed by the churchwardens of a large proportion of the new parish churches, with a tabular statement containing the population, right of patronage, and endowment of the 64 new parishes within the ancient parish.

And the churchwardens hope the Commissioners will take an early opportunity of distributing the annual surplus revenues of the Manchester Chapter Fund, as they arise, in accordance with the provisions of the Parish of Manchester Division Act, 13 & 14 Vict. c. 41. The churchwardens understand that the dean and canons are now satisfied that a net a net annual sum of 800 l. per annum, can be relied upon as the minimum surplus income, hereafter payable to the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, and it is hoped that the Commissioners will feel justified in appropriating that annual sum among the churches deemed by them most entitled to grants.

The tabular statement has been made out upon the returns furnished by the churchwardens of the new parishes, with the exception of those marked in red ink from which returns have not been received.

The extremely small incomes of many of the rectors and incumbents of churches within the most populous parts of the parish will, as it is hoped, induce the Ecclesiastical Commissioners to make an early distribution among them by annual grants.

I have, &c.
(signed) William Pearson.

— No. 18 B. —

To the Ecclesiastical Commissioners of England.

The Memorial of the Churchwardens of existing Rectories, Parishes, or Ecclesiastical Districts, of and within the ancient Parish of Manchester.

Humbly sheweth,

That your memorialists, as churchwardens, and also as inhabitants, feel a deep interest in the prosperity and welfare of the population of the ancient parish of Manchester.

That the said ancient parish has now become divided into sixty-four parishes, and from various causes many of the most populous of the new parishes are almost exclusively inhabited by the working classes; and the churches in such parishes are generally very inadequately endowed, whilst the pew rents and other sources of the rector's income produce, in some cases, little or nothing beyond the means of supporting the services in the church.

That the provisions of the "Parish of Manchester Division Act, 1850," were intended, and are, as your memorialists submit, well calculated, when fully carried out, as well to improve the pecuniary condition of the clergy connected with the several parishes, as, by that means, to promote the spiritual interests of the parishioners.

That your memorialists, and the parishioners at large, had hoped that the important advantages which the provisions of the said Act are calculated to afford would, ere this, have been enjoyed by the present clergy labouring in the parish under great disadvantages, and on very inadequate means; and that the annual surplus income from the Manchester chapter property would, as it accrued, have been annually distributed among such of the rectors, incumbents, or ministers, and in such proportions as the Commissioners might decide, after taking into account the population and poverty of each parish, and in accordance with the provisions of the said Act.

That your memorialists are advised, and believe, that any appropriation of the surplus income of the Manchester Cathedral as capital, in the manner once suggested by the Commissioners, would not only be detrimental to the interests of the clergy and their parishioners, but directly opposed to the principles of the Act, and your memorialists beg leave to urge upon the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, that any unnecessary delay in the distribution of the funds as they arise, produces injustice to the rectors, incumbents, or ministers of the parish, by depriving them of the benefits intended for them by the provisions of the said Act.

That in addition to the surplus income which, by the accounts of the dean and chapter, had amounted at the end of the year 1857, to 1,619 l. 13 s. 9 d., there is now an increasing annual surplus revenue from the cathedral property, which the dean and chapter themselves consider may be safely relied upon as at least 600 l. per annum, but which they and your memorialists, fully expect will greatly and regularly exceed that amount from the present time, whilst, by reason of the deaths of the older members of the chapter, and other contingencies, the annual surplus must soon be still further increased.

That for the information of the Commissioners, your memorialists beg to annex a table, showing the names, population, patronage, and existing endowments of the churches within the ancient parish of Manchester, entitled to the benefit of the said Act.

That if the annual surplus income of 600 l. were now distributed (say, for example) in equal annual sums of 50 l. each among 12 of the rectors, incumbents, or ministers, holding churches inadequately endowed, in the most populous parishes of Manchester, a great advantage would at once be secured to them, whilst other churches better endowed, or situated in less impoverished districts, might reasonably wait for the extension to them of the benefits of the Act until an increased annual surplus of income enabled the Commissioners to make further distributions.

Your memorialists therefore humbly pray,

That you will be pleased to proceed, without delay, to distribute the annual surplus income received by you under the provisions of "the Parish of Manchester Division Act, 1850," as it arises, among the rectors, incumbents, or ministers, within the ancient parish of Manchester, in accordance with the provisions of the said Act.

27 July 1860.

My Lord,

I AM directed by the Estates Committee to acquaint your Lordship that upon a reconsideration of the question as to the distribution of the surplus revenues of the chapter of Manchester, they have resolved, subject to your Lordship's concurrence, to recommend the Board to proceed at once to appropriate, in annual grants, a sum of 1,246 l. The Committee having regard to the 23d section of the Manchester Act propose to adopt for the present year the principle of selecting for augmentation up to 200 l. per annum, the benefices having a net income below that amount, provided that the grant and permanent endowment do not together exceed 150 l. per annum.

I enclose a list showing the names of all the benefices within the parish, with their present income, and the amount of the Commissioners' proposed grant in the selected cases; and I shall be glad to hear at your Lordship's early convenience whether you see any objection to the contemplated arrangement.

I have, &c.
(signed) James J. Chalk.

LETTER from the Lord Bishop of Manchester to the Secretary.

Mauldeth Hall, Manchester,
Dear Sir, 1 August 1860.

I RECEIVED your letter on Saturday, but my engagements have prevented my attending to it until to-day.

Of the 23 churches proposed to be augmented in the old parish of Manchester,—

1. St. Clement's is a licensed building, and has no district; its minister is a stipendiary curate, and removable; it cannot be consecrated, as the site is liable to a heavy chief rent. It has existed in its present state since 1793.

2. Denton St. Lawrence is in private patronage - Earl of Wilton.
Miles Platting - - - - - - „ - - - - Sir B. Heywood, Bart.
St. Luke's, Chorlton - - - „ - - - - Robert Gardiner, Esq.
Rusholme - - - - - - - „ - - - - C. C. Worsley, Esq.
Didsbury - - - - - - - „ - - - - J. Darwell, Esq.

To augment these, is to increase, without consideration, the private property of the patrons, at a cost of 377*l.* annually out of the surplus revenue.

The endowments are not given quite correctly; according to returns made to me last year,

St. Peter's, Oldham-Road, is	53	6	7	instead of	50	–	–
St. James's, Manchester „	61	12	–	„	58	12	–
Gorton - - - - - - - „	141	3	5	„	135	3	8
Rusholme - - - - - - „	32	10				—
Openshaw - - - - - - „	59	15	–	„	55	7	6
St. Simon and St. Jude - „	150	–	–	„	145	18	–
Blackley - - - - - - - „	105	3	10	„	102	3	6

The endowment of St. Luke, Chorlton, is stated as nil. It was invested in a parsonage which cost 1,200 l. The rateable value of this, at least, is surely endowment.

No account is taken of parsonages where they exist in addition to the endowments set against the several incumbrances. Yet this is no unimportant item, considering house rent here.

Denton St. Lawrence,	Blackley,
Miles Platting, St. John's,	Chorlton-cum-Hardy,
Heaton Mersey, St. John's,	Didsbury, all have parsonages, over and above the amount of endowment stated.

St. Peter's, Oldham-road, was consecrated 14 January 1860, and has not yet had a fair trial.

St. Clement's I have spoken of.

St. Peter's, Manchester, has no free sittings worthy the name. It has been lately furnished with an immense organ, and is now decorating at a large outlay. It would be very proper to give it 45 l. a year, as it has no endowment to qualify it for receiving aid from Queen Anne's Bounty, but free sittings taken under the Manchester Act might cause some difficulty, and not do much good. I much doubt the correctness of the return here.

Denton, St. Lawrence, has only accommodation for about 300 persons.

St. Andrew's, Ancoats, is already, and St. Matthew's, Manchester, and St. Philip, Salford, will be in course of time, annexed to canonries, and separate funds supplied for parsonages. The two last ought to have 45 l. each as now, without endowment to the present incumbents, to qualify for the bounty. But though the prospective annexation to canonries ought not to disqualify for augmentation, it seems scarcely desirable to begin with them.

In St. John's, Heaton Mersey, the incumbent has received notice that, unless a change takes place, a commission will be issued as to the adequate performance of the duty. This, of course, the Estates Committee could not know. It would have been done some years since, but for the poverty of the clergyman. Yet his endowment would be more than doubled.

It seems unreasonable to endow Chorlton-cum-Hardy, with 710 agricultural population, population, 116*l.* permanent income, and an excellent house built by the Commissioners (Orders, vol. 3, p. 372), while Barlow Moor, with 1,030 people, and 42*l.* 12*s.* endowment, and Crumpsall with 2,660 people, and 35*l.* endowment, neither having parsonages, receive nothing.

If actual net income, including pew rents, be taken as a basis for augmentation, ability, eloquence, activity, and piety, which attract, will have the fruits their exertions have produced set against them as a bar to augmentation. Idleness and inefficiency, which repel, will plead and have acknowledged the lack which inferiority has ensured, as a claim to augmentation. They are poor, and deserve to be so.

It is the living, not the holder of it at any given time, it is proposed to benefit by augmentation.

In the case of a popular church, the minister is secured in the advantage he has earned by the substitution of a fixed for a precarious payment; the public are benefited in securing a free admission to a greater number by declaring free seats in lieu of endowment as provided by the Act. Thus justice is done the clergy and people, and the benefice permanently improved.

I would respectfully suggest as a first step,—

1. The immediate endowment of all parishes in Old Manchester, with permanent incomes short of 45*l.* annual income, up to that sum, so as to entitle them to receive aid from Queen Anne's Bounty.

2. The endowment of such churches as have smallest number of sittings free, or at nominal rents, in proportion to the population, declaring free seats (under Section 25) in lieu of such endowment, and thus increasing free accommodation.

3. Certified special cases. The endowment of St. John's is 80*l.*, but subject to repairs, and might any year be absorbed; population, 14,000, estimated; free sittings, 350. But this class of cases should be as much as possible discouraged, though such might arise.

4. Increase of all augmentation to 75*l.* as in Gally Knight Fund cases, to be selected by bishop out of list prepared by the Estates Committee.

I write in haste, but have long had this matter in consideration.

I am, &c.
(signed) J. P. Manchester.

P. S.—The return of St. Peter's, Manchester, in 1835, was 160*l.* I should further free seats to some extent.

Report of the Estates Committee, at a Meeting held Thursday, 16 August 1860; adopted at General Meeting held Thursday, 23 August 1860.

The Committee beg to report that, having received several communications from Manchester objecting to the mode in which the Board propose to distribute the revenues arising under the "Parish of Manchester Division Act," they have felt it their duty to reconsider the matter; and with this view they have requested the Commissioners' actuary to advise as to what may be considered to be the present reliable amount of such revenues, and also what will be the probable future increments of the same.

Assuming that the Dean and Chapter of Manchester are ready to adopt certain suggestions which the Committee, by the advice of Mr. Yool, propose to make with regard to their mode of dealing with a portion of the capitular property, the Committee are advised by Mr. Yool, that the present surplus income of the Chapter may be safely estimated at 800*l.* per annum; and that, upon the dropping of certain lives, a steady increase may from time to time be expected.

Having regard to the 23d Section of the Act referred to, and to the opinion of Mr. Yool, as to the present reliable income, the Committee are now, under all the circumstances, prepared to recommend the Board at once to appropriate a sum of 800 l. towards meeting the spiritual necessities of the parish. This amount the Commissioners propose to award to the benefices enumerated in the subjoined Schedule, and to make one moiety of the sum voted in each case payable upon the 1st of November next, and the other upon the 1st of May following.

The principle which the Committee have adopted in making the selection is that of granting to each benefice, having a net income below 200 l. per annum (except those in private patronage, or to which a canonry has been already annexed) such a sum as would raise it to that amount; provided that in no case the grant and permanent endowment together should exceed 150 l. for the year. The total amount which will be absorbed by cases falling under this class will be 792 l.

The Committee have prepared and submit for sealing by the Board a scheme for giving effect to the grants above proposed.

The Committee are aware that the course suggested by them does not, in all its details, accord with the views of the Bishop of Manchester, and they recommend that his Lordship should be informed that the Board contemplate adopting such course only as an experiment, and in the hope that should the scheme not work so satisfactorily as the Committee anticipate, some more desirable mode of proceeding may be devised before the arrival of the period for making the next year's distribution.

Sir, 25 August 1860.

Manchester Parish.

My Lord, 11 Whitehall-place, 30 August 1860.

REFERRING to your Lordship's letter of the 1st instant, upon the subject of the appropriation of the revenues arising under the parish of Manchester Division Act, I am directed by the Ecclesiastical Commissioners for England to acquaint you that, after omitting the case of St. Clement's, and also those of the benefices selected by the Estates Committee, and indicated in the list transmitted with my last letter, which are in private patronage, or to which a canonry has been already annexed, the Board find that the sum required for the purpose of making the grants suggested in the remaining cases is 792 l.

As this amount comes within 8 l. of the sum (800 l.) which the Commissioners' actuary advises them may now be relied upon as the annual amount available for the purposes of the Act, the Commissioners have resolved to adopt for the present year, subject to the above-mentioned omissions, the course pointed out by the Committee; and they have passed a scheme in accordance with this view, of which the enclosed is a copy.

Your Lordship will perceive that the several grants are for one year only, the Board having adopted the course agreed upon only as an experiment, and in the hope that, should the scheme not work so satisfactorily as they anticipate, some more desirable mode of proceeding may be devised before the period arrives for making the next year's distribution.

LETTER from the Lord Bishop of Manchester to the Secretary.

Dear Sir, Manchester, 30 August 1860.

I WRITE without delay to acknowledge the receipt this morning of the proposed scheme for making grants to certain churches in Manchester from the surplus revenues of the Chapter.

A scheme more calculated to excite censure and give dissatisfaction, could hardly have been devised. In one or two instances, much offence especially will, I fear, be taken.

Will you be good enough to inform me whether it is the intention of the Estates Commissioners to require free sittings in return for a grant? This is authorised by the Act of Parliament, and, in one case particularly, seems desirable; it would be more or less useful in all. But under the peculiar circumstances, cumstances, I must again call your attention to St. Peter's, both as regards annual income and accommodation.

I regret I shall be unable to afford any support to this measure of the Commissioners, which I shall feel bound to disclaim, as alike impolitic and injurious.

I HAVE the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your Lordship's letter of the 30th ultimo, relative to the appropriation of the revenues arising under the "Parish of Manchester Division Act," and will submit it to the Ecclesiastical Commissioners for England when they resume their meetings after the recess.

With regard to your Lordship's inquiry as to whether it is the intention of the Board "to require free sittings in return for a grant," I may at once state, that so far as relates to the present year's distribution, there is, I believe, no such intention.

Mauldeth Hall, Manchester,
Dear Sir, 10 Sept. 1860.

I OMITTED in my last letter to call the attention of the Estates Commissioners a second time to the fact, that their grant of 5 l. to St. Simon's and St. Jude's, Manchester, is illegal; I had made mention of the income of that church in my letter of August 1st.

By a reference to the Orders in Council, vol. 2, page 338, it will be seen St. Simon's and St. Jude's is scheduled as raised to 150 l.

The 23d clause of the Manchester Parish Division Act prohibits the endowment of any living already endowed with 150 l., until all the others are made up to that sum.

In my letter of August 1st, I stated that the return of St. Peter's, Manchester, was 160 l. in the Commissioners' report of 1835. I presume the Estate Commissioners have ascertained the correctness of the return given in the paper sent me first, as the grant of 141 l. continues.

Harpurhey Rectory, Manchester,
18 September 1860.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

I BEG respectfully to submit a letter in the accompanying "Manchester Guardian" on the appropriation of the rectorial funds.

I do not consider the population basis of calculation implied in that letter a judicious one any more than the net income basis now adopted; but I pray you mark that sentence in the letter that the present system of augmentation is a premium upon an inefficient ministry.

The system of augmentation and its first trial must appear to those acquainted with the parishes of Manchester alike invidious, injudicious, and unrighteous.

You may gather from the letter in our most important paper, and I know it from many of the clergy, that satisfaction is not given; and I am quite persuaded no division of funds will be righteous and satisfactory except it be made on the simple principle laid down in the Act of making the endowment alone the basis of augmentation.

I am, &c.

The "Manchester Guardian."—Saturday, 15 September 1860,

THE ECCLESIASTICAL COMMISSIONERS IN MANCHESTER.

To the Editor of the "Manchester Guardian."

Sir,

THE following list placed in my hands to-day gives the several amounts allotted by the Ecclesiastical Commissioners to various churches in Manchester out of funds in their hands, arising from the rectorial endowments of the ancient parish, under the Parish of Manchester Division Act:

To St. Peter's, Oldham-road	100
To St. Mary's	127
To St. George's-in-the-Fields	66
To St. John's, Heaton Mersey	66
To St. James's, Manchester	61
To St. Philip's, Salford	45
To Gorton	15
To St. Michael's, Manchester	35
To St. Matthew's	29
To St. Barnabas', Openshaw	28
To All Souls, Ancoats	24
To St. Simon's and St. Jude's	5
To Blackley	23
To St. Clement's, Chorlton-cum-Hardy	14
To St. Jude's, Manchester	13

According to a return made to the House of Commons, and dated 16th July 1860, it appears that of these churches, St. Peter's, St. Mary's, St. James', St. Philip's, Salford, Gorton, Gorton, St. Michael's, St. Matthew's, All Souls and Blackley have a population of 72,000 souls; and the aggregate incomes of the clergy as returned by themselves from all sources is 1,434 l. 10 s.; while St. Peter's, Oldham-road, St. George's-in-the-Fields, St. John's, Heaton Mersey, St. Barnabas', Openshaw, St. Simon's and St. Jude's, St. Clement's, Chorlton, St. Jude's, Manchester, have a population of 64,000 souls, and the income of the clergy amounts to 1,031 l. 16 s. 4 d. The first nine have an income of 20 l. per annum for every 1,000 of population; the seven others have an income of 16 l. for every 1,000 of population. The first nine are made up to 26 l. 17 s. for every 1,000 of population; the seven others are made up to 20 l. 13 s. for every 1,000 of population. The proportion of income of the whole arising from endowments is about 8 l. 10 s. for every 1,000 of population. The first nine alluded to are in the patronage of the dean and chapter; the remaining seven in that of trustees or the bishop. Of these churches, five, St. Mary's, Gorton, All Souls', St. George's, St. Simon's and St. Jude's, do not obtain 40 l. a year each from pew rents and all other sources, exclusive of endowment.

There are eight other churches in Manchester, St. Silas', St. Thomas's, Ardwick, St. Luke's, Chorlton-on-Medlock, St. Oswald's, Collyhurst, St. Bartholomew's, Miles Platting, St. Thomas's, Redbank, St. Stephen's, Salford, with an aggregate population of 70,000, and an average income from endowments of 4 l. 7 s. per 1,000 of population, made up to 25 l. 15 s. per 1,000 by pew rents, &c. These receive no consideration at the hands of the Commissioners.

The inferences are irresistible. The genius of chapter and episcopal aggrandizement has been busy again, as in the case of York; and the questions will be asked, and must be answered,—Can the Commissioners be aware that in such a disposition of the funds at their disposal, they do in many of these cases, in effect, offer a premium for empty churches and unedifying ministrations?

Where was the Bishop of Manchester when such an allotment was made?

Under whose information did the Commissioners act?

Will the church-reforming laity of Manchester ratify such a distribution?

Why do not the Commissioners divide all the funds in their hands according to the Act of Parliament?

At present I content myself with this statement of facts and inferences, which may serve to elicit the opinions of my fellow-churchmen, and perhaps lead to some combined movement to prevent a repetition another year of such an unsatisfactory division; or if the precedent is likely to be established, stir up at once an effort to prevent the consummation of the scheme.

I am, &c.

LETTER from the Reverend William Birley to the Secretary.
(Received 7th February 1861.)

Dear Sir, 7, Leaf-square, Pendleton, Salford.

ADVERTING to the conversation which I had with you in October last, touching division of the surplus Cathedral Funds, and to my letter on the same subject, addressed to the Secretary, I shall be obliged if you would inform me whether that letter has been laid before the Commissioners, and with what result.

I am convinced, as I told you personally, that no satisfactory division of the funds in question can be made, except upon a report made specially by a party sent down on the authority of the Commissioners for that purpose. I am now, and shall be for some weeks, chiefly resident in Manchester, and shall be glad to render any assistance in my power.

Yours, &c.

NAMES OF CLERGYMEN.	AS TO THE CONSECRATED CHURCH OR CHAPEL.		AS TO THE UNCONSECRATED PLACE OR PLACES FOR DIVINE SERVICE.
	Name of the Church or Chapel.	The Full Income derived from all Sources.	Name of each Unconsecrated Place for Divine Worship.	The Full Income derived from all Sources, relative to each Unconsecrated Place.	The Circumstances under which each came to be held with the Consecrated Church or Chapel.
Ashpitel, Francis -	Great Hampden, Buckinghamshire.	320 - -	Great Hampden National Schoolroom.	None - -	The Church being one mile from the majority of the people, and the Schoolroom close to them, the Schoolroom was licensed for Divine Service by the Bishop of the Diocese.

This is an iron church, and was lately erected at the personal expense of the Incumbent of Cowley, to meet the spiritual requirements of the population recently brought together by the formation of a new suburb of the City of Oxford, locally situate in Cowley Parish.
Bickersteth, Edward	Aylesbury, Buckinghamshire.	300 - -	St. John's National Schoolroom, licensed, at Aylesbury.	None - -	Want of sufficient accommodation in the Parish Church. The Parish Church holds 1,100, the Schoolroom 150, and both are full.

			Licensed Boatmen's Chapel, on the Oxford canal.	35 l.	Built by the late Mr. Henry Ward, coal merchant, to provide means of worship for the canal boatmen. It is served by one of the Curates of St. Thomas's Parish.
Champnes, Edward Thomas.	Upton-cum-Chalvey, Buckinghamshire, Parish Church and Old Church (St. Lawrence).	300 - -	Infants' Schoolroom at Chalvey, licensed.	None - -	To provide services at the hamlet of Chalvey for nearly 1,000 poor. The population of the parish having increased rapidly, the church accommodation was insufficient. A Church is now being built at Chalvey, which will remove the necessity of this place of service.

These two places, in which Divine Service is performed respectively, are not necessarily connected with the church, but they are used for public service on the Sundays, in consequence of the population being thinly scattered over a wide surface, considerably distant from the church, which is situated with scarcely a house near it.

EXTRACT from a Letter from the Rev. N. Stephenson to the Secretary. (Received, 19 December 1860.)

Shirley Parsonage, near Birmingham.

IT has been stated that the Palace at Worcester, now occupied by the Dean, is no longer episcopal property, having been sold to the Ecclesiastical Commissioners.

As a knowledge of these points is of great importance to the clergy of this diocese, and I shall avail myself of any information and communicate it to my brethren, I hope that you will pardon me for troubling you on the subject.

Shall the See of Worcester be removed from Hartlebury?

Sir, Hagley, Stourbridge, 26 December 1860.

MANY of your readers are aware that at the last vacancy of the See of Worcester it was a question with the proper authorities, namely, the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, whether Hartlebury Castle should be retained as the bishop's palace, or sold.

The question was at that time settled in favour of retention; but for the last 20 years it has been still before the Commissioners as a prospective question, and I have reason to know that it is now under consideration, and will be settled, probably not to be again reviewed.

Further, I feel myself able to say that any general expression of opinion on the question on the part of the clergy and laity of the diocese would meet with fair consideration before the matter is disposed of; and it is on this account that I trouble you with this letter.

I am in hopes that a rather strong feeling may be found to exist in the diocese in favour of the preservation of this ancient palace. The bishops of Worcester have lived in it for just 1,000 years. In its character, external and internal, no less than in its traditions, it is eminently, perhaps exclusively, ecclesiastical, and even episcopal. The late bishop told me that he believed it to be the best episcopal residence in England. It is in very good condition. The Commissioners, 20 years ago, spent 6,000 l. on it for the very purpose of continuing its fitness for the use from which it is now possible that it may be diverted.

 These

These considerations, it may be hoped, will be felt by both clergy and laity; and with regard to the latter, I do not know that there are any local reasons of weight to set against them. With respect to the clergy, it is no doubt desirable that the bishop's residence should be easily accessible to them; and it is often held that for this particular object (apart from a more general view to which I will advert presently) that residence should be in the cathedral town. I think that in the present case this argument is of inadequate, if of any, force. For a considerable part of the diocese, Hartlebury is more speedily accessible than Worcester; and as there is but a short and direct railway journey between the two places, and Hartlebury has a railway station (soon to become more important from the Severn Valley line), I can hardly think that the practical difference is of much moment.

For mere purposes of business it will, of course, be the habit of every future bishop, as it is in every diocese similarly circumstanced, to have fixed times for seeing his clergy in the cathedral town. I should have said before, that I am able to state that the only question now pending is, whether the see shall be at Hartlebury or at Worcester. I must add that, in the event of its being sold to the best bidder, it is at least far from unlikely that it may pass into hands in which probably none of us would feel much pleasure in seeing it placed.

To advert now to the reasons, as far as I know or can conjecture them, and as far as they have not already been touched upon in favour of the removal, I apprehend they must be reasons of economy, either in respect of the Ecclesiastical Commission or of the Bishop himself, or the general view to which I above alluded, that a bishop ought always to reside in his cathedral town. This latter view (which I will take first) I desire to treat with respect; but apart from questions of local convenience (already noticed), it is rather one of feeling, and not susceptible of much argument. I will only say that in this case it seems to me, at all events, to be overbalanced by the opposite considerations which I have stated.

With respect to the first of the two pecuniary questions, I would say that it is at least doubtful whether the Commissioners would derive much profit from the transaction. They have before them the chance of a sale on the one hand, and the certainty of a considerable outlay at Worcester on the other. It is surely unadvisable to do violence to so much of local attachment and venerable association for the doubtful prospect of a questionable advantage.

As to the second question, I cannot go into detail; but I believe I may confidently say that there is no material ground of economy as respects the Bishop himself, in favour of the proposed alteration.

I venture, then, earnestly to ask the attention of the diocese to this question; of the clergy I need not say in particular, but also of the laity, and chiefly of the proprietors and leading persons among them.

I have no occasion to trouble those who are either indifferent to the question or opposed to the retention of the see at Hartlebury; but from those who desire to see it retained, I earnestly request an intimation to that effect, addressed, before the 8th of January, to the Honourable and Rev. W. H. Lyttelton, Hagley Rectory, Stourbridge.

Yours, &c.

No. 3.

From the Bishop designate of Worcester to the Earl of Chichester.

My dear Lord, Cambridge, 1 January 1861.

Since you gave me the favour of an interview in Whitehall-place, respecting the question of the future residence of the Bishop of Worcester, upon which Lord Palmerston desired me to communicate with the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, I have had that question under my anxious consideration. I have looked at it from every point of view that presented itself to me, and have listened carefully to the arguments and opinions expressed by other persons.

After

After the best consideration which I have thus been able to give the question, I am quite of opinion that it would be much to the advantage of the diocese that Hartlebury should be given up, and the Bishop provided with a residence in Worcester.

Hartlebury Castle is 11 miles from Worcester, and though there is a railway from Worcester, with a station at Hartlebury, the loss of time in going to and from the Castle must be a serious inconvenience to any one whom business brings from Worcester to see the Bishop.

The chief business of the diocese must be always done in Worcester, and even if the Bishop were to devote one or two days in every week to attendance there, such an arrangement would by no means satisfy the wants of the clergy of the diocese, or provide for the constant intercourse required between the Bishop and his officers.

Moreover, the large size of the house at Hartlebury would require in every year considerable outlay for repairs and maintenance, and necessitate the keeping a larger establishment than a Bishop, with the fixed income assigned to him, could prudently afford, without curtailing his expenditure on objects of local interest and charity in the diocese.

The park also round the house, which I understand to be now in the hands of the Commissioners, cannot be turned to so much advantage as if they had possession of the whole estate.

I am far from being insensible to the argument which I have heard used for the retention of Hartlebury, drawn from the old ecclesiastical associations of the place; but I think such an argument is not good against the great practical convenience which would result from the Bishop's residence in Worcester; and it may be met, at any rate, by a similar argument drawn from the old established custom of locating the Bishop close to the cathedral.

If your Lordship should think fit to bring the question formally before the Commissioners, I should gladly join in any arrangement that could be made for providing a suitable house in Worcester for the permanent residence of the Bishop; and in order to leave the Commissioners free to deal at once with the whole estate at Hartlebury, I would willingly take possession, in the meantime, as a temporary measure, of any suitable house that could be provided for the purpose.

It was my intention to have gone to see Hartlebury before now, but I have been prevented by an attack of cold and bronchitis, with which my medical man tells me I must not travel.

No. 4.

From the Bishop designate of Worcester to the Earl of Chichester.

My dear Lord, Cambridge, 5 January 1861.

Mr. Smith has sent me a full account of the house at Purdiswell, and it seems to me that it would do very well as a temporary residence for the Bishop of Worcester. I could only wish that it was not so far from the city.

Your Lordship is aware, I believe, that there is a large library of books at Hartlebury, left to the see by Bishop Hurd, comprising the books of Pope and Warburton, as well as his own books. Every bishop, I conceive, would set great value on this library, and in making arrangements for a permanent residence in Worcester it may be necessary to build a room expressly for it, as was done, I am told, at Hartlebury.

If Hartlebury be given up at once to the Commissioners, it will be necessary also to make some temporary provision for the reception and safe custody of these books. Perhaps some house or part of a house in Worcester might be hired for the purpose.

There is also at Hartlebury a collection of furniture, books, and pictures, left to the see by Mr. Hurd, the Bishop's brother, which was moved to Hartlebury when the palace at Worcester was given up. Mr. Pepys tells me that this collection is of no great value.

Perhaps the Commissioners might use with advantage their powers under 5 & 6 Vict. c. 26, to sell some part of the furniture at least, and the rest might be cared for in the same way as the library of Bishop Hurd.

My dear Sir, Abberton Hall, Pershore, 3 January 1861.

I have taken the liberty of sending you the "Worcestershire Chronicle," in which you will see my letter in the matter of the See of Worcester, in reply to Lord Lyttelton's.

It is unfortunate that the matter should have been placed in the hands of the Lord Lieutenant, who necessarily from his high official position has great influence with the clergy and many of the laity, who have received appointments at his hands, especially of late, and also the bias of his letter, and that of his brother having written letters to the clergy and others for support, it appears a sort of canvassing to carry his view.

If the matter depended upon the sense of the clergy and laity, the mode taken is the worst that could have been adopted. I feel assured that the entire of the uninfluenced portion of the clergy and laity in the city and county would be for the abandonment of Hartlebury; there can be no doubt but that the proper residence for a bishop is within the precincts of the cathedral town. I do hope that the Ecclesiastical Commissioners will not be over-ridden by the Lord Lieutenant, whose influence is chiefly derived only from his high official post.

Perhaps I ought to have written to the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, but you may lay it and the paper before them if you think right.

The "Worcestershire Chronicle," Wednesday, 2 January 1861.

Shall the See of Worcester be removed from Hartlebury?

Sir, Abberton Hall, 31 December 1860.

As a layman, I wish to offer a few remarks on the Lord Lieutenant's letter calling for an expression of opinion from the clergy and laity of the diocese as to the the removal of the See of Worcester from Hartlebury, or its retention there. The principal reasons urged by his Lordship for retention are:—

1. That Bishops have lived in the Castle for a thousand years.

2. Its character and traditions, ecclesiastical and episcopal.

3. That it is the best episcopal residence in England.

4. That it is in good condition, and that 20 years ago the Commissioners spent 6,000 l. for the very purpose of maintaining its fitness for an episcopal residence.

With great respect and deference to the Lord Lieutenant, I venture to differ from his Lordship, and think the working clergy, and those seeking to enter the Church, and also the great majority of the laity, would, upon a poll, be found to concur with me in holding that his Lordship's reasons are futile and untenable, and may with great justice be urged as reasons against the continuance of the castle as a residence for future Bishops.

Taking his Lordship's description to be correct, the castle and domain would probably realise from 30,000 l. to 40,000 l. I ask, is it proper, for the sake of the reasons assigned by his Lordship, namely, veneration, old associations and traditions, and to satisfy personal vanity, that the clergy should be inconvenienced, and so valuable a property retained? The interest of the sum to be realised from the sale of the property would materially aid in increasing the inadequate stipends of many of the poor livings in the cathedral town, so as to assist the clergy to some extent in relieving the destitution of the poor.

With respect to the 6,000 l. spent in fitting up the Palace for the late Bishop, this information, from so high an authority, will be read with sorrow and regret at the improvident manner in which the Ecclesiastical Commissioners spend the trust property of the Church. After a lapse of 20 years, new fashions and decorations may be required in a building centuries old, which must necessarily require great expenditure every 20 years. Why should not a bishop, who has a residence provided for him, out of his own income provide for dilapidations and decorations, in the same way as rectors and vicars are obliged to do?

But, apart from all that I have urged, I consider that it is of paramount importance that a bishop should reside in the cathedral town, to be accessible at all times and on all occasions. The Lord Lieutenant will pardon me in reminding him of the error he has fallen into when he says, "whether the See shall be at Hartlebury or Worcester." A see does not follow a bishop like the Court follows the Queen; the See of Worcester cannot but be the City of Worcester, the cathedral town. I have heard numerous complaints from clergymen of the hardship of having had to travel to Hartlebury to see the late Bishop upon business, and to pay, not only railway and cab fare, but also tavern expenses. The palace in the county town (now occupied by the Dean of Worcester) dates back for many centuries, and was, till late years, kept for an episcopal residence and the transaction of business, and a more complete and fitting residence for a bishop could not be provided.

I do, however, hope that on account of the propriety, as well as urgent necessity of the Bishop residing at his See, and for the other reasons I have pointed out, the clergy and laity will consider their responsibility and duty before they respond in favour of his Lordship's view.

The "Worcester Herald," Saturday, 5 January 1861.

Shall the See of Worcester be removed from Hartlebury?

Sir, Westwood Park, 2 January 1861.

UNDER the above query, Lord Lyttelton published in your last number a strong appeal to the clergy and laity of this county in favour of retaining Hartlebury as the future residence of the Bishops of Worcester.

I am always sorry to differ in opinion from Lord Lyttelton, and I seldom do so, but I think it only right to let it be publicly known, that the concurrency of the laity in the views expressed by his Lordship is, at least, not unanimous; and I am disposed to believe that the dissentients amongst the clergy will be still more numerous.

Lord Lyttelton rests his case in favour of Hartlebury, principally on the fact that "The Bishops of Worcester have lived in that ancient palace for just 1,000 years."

This argument, founded on the long tenure of Hartlebury, would no doubt be entitled to consideration and just weight, if there were no answer to it, but I would call attention to the following extract from Green's "History of Worcester."

Speaking of the Bishop's Palace he says: "The date of its erection is not precisely known; we find it to have been existing before 1224, when Bishop Blois built the Chapel of the Charnel-house, between the Cathedral Church and his palace, 'which, in my opinion,' says Mr. Abingdon, 'declareth the ancient hall to have been, in former ages, nearer than this modern to the Cathedral.' The palace itself is, I think, equal in continuance with the bishopric." The following extract from Abingdon's M.S. is added in a note: "It may be questioned whether the Saxon bishops had any other house of residence in the diocese than this. The Norman prelates were fond of their manor houses in the country, whence those at Kempsey, Northwyke, Bredon, Blockley, Wydindon (Gloucestershire), and Hartlebury, became, in different ages, episcopal seats."

I submit that this extract completely disposes of the argument founded on the antiquity of Hartlebury, provided it is the intention of the Commissioners, as I hope and believe it is, to restore the ancient palace of Worcester, if they deprive the bishopric of the country residence.

Public opinion has not always concurred in the propriety of the changes effected by the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, and in few instances has their prudence been more doubted than in the arrangement by which, on the appointment of Dr. Pepys to the See of Worcester, 20 years ago, the city palace was converted into a deanery. It is not easy to imagine greater inconsistency and imprudence than assigning to the Dean of Worcester an episcopal palace for his residence, simultaneously with the reduction of his income to 1,000 l. per annum.

It is my hope, therefore, that a new deanery will be built, and that the old episcopal palace in this city will once more be the residence of the Bishops of the diocese.

I desire this arrangement because I believe it to be the most advantageous both for the diocese and for the Bishop himself. It may be true that Hartlebury is a more agreeable residence than Worcester, notwithstanding the beautiful situation of the Worcester house; but I think the Bishop will find ample compensation for any such difference in the greater facility with which his duties will be discharged, and the inconvenience of which his clergy will be relieved. It is said there is a railway to Hartlebury, but Hartlebury is only a small village, and there is not a town or a good inn within miles. I have frequently heard of complaints by the clergy on this account, and it seems to me that Lord Lyttelton almost concedes the whole question when he says, "For mere purposes of business, it will, of course, be the habit of every future bishop to have fixed times for seeing his clergy in the cathedral town."

If the Bishop is to see his clergy in Worcester, he had better live there.

I trust that the pending question will be decided with reference solely to public considerations, and that the arrangement I have ventured to suggest will be carried out as soon as may be consistent with due regard to existing interests.

Dear Sir,

LORD LYTTELTON has published a circular (No. 2), which has been printed in the Worcester and other local papers, urging the laity and clergy to memorialize the Commissioners to retain Hartlebury as the Episcopal Palace.

Sir J. S. Pakington, or his son, and I, on the contrary, have published a circular, urging the Commissioners to make the Old Palace of Worcester the future residence of the Bishop. I enclose twelve copies of my letter (No. 11), which will show some of the reasons where we differ from Lord Lyttelton.

I cannot tell what may be the feeling of the laity, but I cannot imagine any more popular step for the Commissioners to take with the clergy than to compel the Bishop to reside at the most central spot, the most accessible to his clergy, and, withal, his cathedral town. There will be a counter memorial forwarded to Lord Lyttelton's in the course of a week or nine days, until which time I hope, in fairness to the clergy, that the question will not be disposed of.

Will you oblige me by placing the copy of my letter in the hands of the leading Commissioners, as they will thus at once see what can be said in behalf of the Worcester phase of the question.

EXTRACT from the "Midland Counties Herald."

To the Editor of the "Midland Counties Herald."

Sir,

IN your last impression was inserted a letter from Lord Lyttelton on the subject of the retention of Hartlebury Castle as the residence of the future Bishops of Worcester. Although his Lordship desires communications only from such as concur with him in wishing the palace to be continued at Hartlebury, yet as he states that the Ecclesiastical Commissioners would listen to any general expression of opinion on the question before disposing of the matter, it is highly desirable that such as differ from Lord Lyttelton should bestir themselves and also express their opinion, lest their silence should be construed (as it most certainly will be) into an assent to the prayer of the memorial that will be forwarded, and thus the opportunity of effecting a change will be lost, with no hope of its again recurring.

In adverting to Lord Lyttelton's letter, it may be remarked in the outset that his Lordship tells us that the only question now pending is whether the Episcopal Palace shall be at Hartlebury or at Worcester. As a reason for the preference of the Castle, his Lordship states, on the authority of the late Bishop, that it is the best episcopal residence in England, and that the Ecclesiastical Commissioners expended 6,000 l. in embellishing and fitting it up. This argument proves too much. When the revenues of the see were exactly double what they now are, the residence was commensurate with the income. It is now, with its baronial domain, a ruinous burthen on the bishop's reduced revenues, compelling him to maintain an establishment he can ill afford, and crippling him in the exercise of that enlarged hospitality and charity which Scripture and reason bid us look for in the Fathers of our Church. With such paramount claims as these, a prelate with 5,000 l. per annum can only be encumbered with a residence and park estimated at 40,000 l.

Lord Lyttelton rightly deems it highly desirable that the Bishop's residence should be readily accessible to the clergy. "Hartlebury," he adds, "is more speedily accessible than Worcester for a considerable part of the diocese." As the see consists of the counties of Worcester and Warwick, a glance at the map, or rather a search into Bradshaw, will speedily prove that Worcester is much more central and accessible to the diocese at large than Hartlebury, which is situated at the extreme north-west corner of the county of Worcester. Should any doubt exist as to the superior claims of Worcester, a remark in his Lordship's letter will at once remove it. "For mere purposes of business," he says, "it will of course be the habit of every future bishop, as it is in every diocese similarly circumstanced, to have fixed times for seeing his clergy in the cathedral town." But this cedes the very point at issue. It is for business that the bishop is wanted, and not for pleasure. Why, then, should the bishop see his clergy in his cathedral town, and not at his palace, except it be for the very reason that the cathedral town is more accessible than the palace?

As, then, the balance of advantages on the grounds of economy, so far as relates to the bishop, and of convenience, so far as relates to the clergy, is clearly in favour of the cathedral town, the discussion is narrowed to the consideration of the exact locale best suited for the future episcopal residence.

All acquainted with the city of Worcester and its neighbourhood will at once fix on the ancient palace of the bishop as the residence to which he should again return. The choice of our ancestors in selecting this spot as the seat of their ecclesiastical head is singularly happy. Beautifully situated on the banks of the Severn; nestling under the solemn shadow of its time-honoured cathedral; it is, in its internal character and its traditions, eminently and exclusively episcopal. Lord Lyttelton tells us that the Bishops of Worcester have lived in Hartlebury just one thousand years. But long before they lived in the country Manor House of Hartlebury this was their home* and their palace, and had the true interests of the Church been consulted here they would have remained to this day. In the year 1846, by an Order in Council, it was, however, converted from an episcopal into a decanal residence, for which, looking to the pecuniary phase of the case,† it is as unsuited and as ruinous as Hartlebury is for the bishop.

I venture

* "It may be questioned whether the Saxon bishops had any other house of residence than this. The Norman prelates were fond of their manor houses in the country; whence those at Kemsey, Northwyke, Bredon, Blockley, Wydindon (in Gloucestershire), and Hartlebury became, in different ages, episcopal seats."—Green's Worcester, p. 226.

† The Dean has only an income of about 1,200 l. If the palace is to be the deanery, clergy of small means will be debarred from promotion to this office, a most unwise and unjust exclusion, and no small risk will be incurred of a repetition of the case of the Deanery of York.

I venture, then, respectfully to suggest that the Ecclesiastical Commissioners be requested to build a suitable residence for the Dean, for which an ample site can be found in the College Green, and that this building be commenced at once, should the present Dean accede to the plan, or else be deferred until the next avoidance of the deanery; and that, until the palace at Worcester be reconveyed to the see, the possessor of the bishopric still continue to reside at the Castle at Hartlebury, but that ultimately the Castle shall be sold, and the produce, after payment of the cost of the new deanery, be of course retained by the Ecclesiastical Commissioners.

As time presses, and meetings cannot perhaps be convened until the question has been finally disposed of, I would urge the clergy and laity of the diocese, briefly but immediately, to signify their wishes, if in favour of Hartlebury to Lord Lyttelton, and if in favour of Worcester to their respective archdeacons, and that the number on both sides be communicated to the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, who shall at once be made acquainted with what is in progress. In this way, far more than in the way indicated by Lord Lyttelton, will the Commissioners be able to ascertain the deliberate judgment of the clergy and laity on this, to them, most important point.

Lord Lyttelton in his printed and published letter (No. 2) on the retention of Hartlebury as the Episcopal residence of our Bishops, states that the Ecclesiastical Commissioners will "listen to any general expression of opinion on the question before disposing of the matter." As his Lordship, of course, derived this information either directly or indirectly from the Commissioners themselves, and as the subject is now being warmly discussed in the local papers of the diocese (all the letters opposing his Lordship's views), may I ask, as public information, the date when the Commissioners will discuss the question, as memorials are being signed on both sides, and it is desirable to delay forwarding the memorials as much as possible, so that all may have a chance of expressing their views?

My Lords and Gentlemen,

WE the undersigned clergymen of the diocese of Worcester, residing in Coventry and its neighbourhood, understanding that a question is pending as to the future residence of the Bishops of Worcester, desire, as being interested parties, to express our strong preference for Worcester as the Bishop's residence, not only as being the cathedral city, but as being so much more accessible to the clergy in by far the larger portion of the diocese. The greatest inconvenience has arisen in many cases to clergymen in distant parts of the diocese in consequence of the difficulty of reaching and returning from Hartlebury within the day.

Sir, 18 January 1861.

A QUESTION has been raised in this diocese with regard to the continuance of Hartlebury as the residence of the Bishop. You are doubtless aware of Lord Lyttelton having invited an expression of opinion in favour of the retention of Hartlebury.

The enclosed letter (No. 11) advocates Worcester as the Bishop's residence, and has suggested that letters be addressed to the archdeacons of the diocese. I, as Archdeacon of Worcester, am slowly receiving such letters, but I have no idea that one-twentieth of the clergy will write, at the instigation of an anonymous writer.

If

If the opinions of the clergy would really be of weight, I have no doubt but that Archdeacon Sandford and myself could ascertain what they are, by circulars, within a week or 10 days, but I think that neither of us would like the trouble or expense without knowing that the result would have much weight with the Commissioners.

For my own part, I prefer Worcester for the Bishop's residence to Hartlebury, on many accounts, but especially with reference to the ordinations. I am not so sure that the Old Palace, now the Deanery, would be the most eligible place for his residence. There are more healthy situations within 15 minutes walk of the cathedral.

Should the Commissioners desire, or encourage an expression of the feelings of the clergy, I shall be happy to endeavour to obtain it, so far as regards the Archdeaconry of Worcester.

Dear Sir,

May I request to know whether the Ecclesiastical Commissioners desire any representation to be made to their Lordships on the subject of the future residence of the Bishop of Worcester, on the part of the clergy and laity chiefly concerned in the work of the diocese?

I have felt that it might be considered unbecoming in me to take any steps in the matter; but I find that the judgment of the Bishop designate is in accordance with what I believe to be the almost, if not quite unanimous wish, of churchmen in my own archdeaconry; that is, in favour of Worcester.

And should such a step be deemed advisable by the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, I should, of course, be ready to take the sense of the laity and clergy in my archdeaconry.

I am, however, quite convinced that the general desire is in favour of Worcester. Hartlebury is, in fact, most inconvenient.

LETTER from the Bishop of Worcester (Elect) to the Secretary.

Sir, Cambridge, 4 February 1861.

I HAVE read with much regret your letter addressed to me on the 1st instant by direction of the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, intimating that the Board, as at present advised, do not see any sufficient reason for the removal of the Episcopal house of residence from Hartlebury to Worcester.

After the information which the Earl of Chichester kindly gave me on the 11th January, that the question was postponed until a fuller attendance of Bishops could be obtained, I thought it would not come on for discussion till the present week, and I determined to go into Worcestershire and see Hartlebury, and ascertain the means of access to it from different parts of the diocese, with the intention of laying the result of my inquiries before the Commissioners, previous to their making any final decision upon the question.

As you inform me that the Commissioners are prepared to receive and consider any definitive proposal that I may make on the subject, I hope that I may still be allowed to state the opinion to which I have been led after much anxious thought upon it.

The Commissioners are aware that Hartlebury is eleven miles distant from the City of Worcester. There is a railway from Worcester, which has a station in the parish; but there is no waiting-room at the station; the Castle is more than a mile distant from it, and there is no conveyance to be had, except by sending for it from Kidderminster, which is four miles distant. It would, no doubt, be the duty of the Bishop to pay frequent visits to Worcester, and give his clergy and others the opportunity of seeing him there. But the loss of time to the Bishop in such repeated journies would be serious, and it is obvious that such means of communication would very imperfectly supply the wants of the clergy of the diocese. The experience which I have had of official life in Cambridge makes me value very highly the opportunity of ready and frequent intercourse between a person in high office and those with whom he has to deal.

The house at Hartlebury is singularly inconvenient, covering a great deal of ground, and requiring of necessity a large establishment, such as could only be maintained at a larger cost than a Bishop without private resources could prudently afford; while, at the same time, the accommodation for real use and comfort, particularly in the number and size of the bed-rooms, is scanty and insufficient.

I have received many communications from the clergy of the diocese, urging in strong terms the inconvenience which has been long felt in the difficulty of access to the Bishop by reason of his living at Hartlebury, and I have good ground for thinking that the clergy throughout the diocese are almost unanimous in wishing that he should live at Worcester. I cannot be insensible to the force of the arguments which they use, and I have been led to the conclusion that it will be very difficult to do satisfactorily the business of a diocese containing 586 parochial clergy, if the Bishop is to live in a country house so inaccessible as Hartlebury Castle.

As the Commissioners suggest that I should make some definite proposal, I will venture to propose that steps should be taken for restoring to the see the Old Palace at Worcester, if it be possible on the next avoidance of the deanery; that Hartebury Castle should be disposed of, together with the park in which it stands, and that the Bishop should be provided with a temporary residence till the Old Palace at Worcester can be given him.

I venture to make this proposal with regard to the Old Palace at Worcester, because I understand that it is generally held to be too large and expensive a house for the Deans of Worcester in general to live in.

There is a house, Pudiswell, distant 1½ mile from Worcester, the early possession of which could be obtained at a moderate rent, for the term of three years, or, I believe, for a longer term if required; I took the opportunity of my visit to Worcester to go and see this house, and it appears to me a very suitable residence for the Bishop.

If steps were taken to build a new deanery during the three years for which Pudiswell might be taken, and if the present Dean of Worcester should wish, as is probable, to continue to live in the house which he now inhabits, it would not be thought improper, perhaps, under the circumstances of the case, if the bishop himself were to occupy the new deanery till the Old Palace could be got.

I have endeavoured to consider the question purely on public grounds, without reference to myself individually, and it is my desire that the Commissioners should deal with it wholly on the same principle.

I will only beg that if they kindly reconsider the question, their decision may be made as early as convenient, that I may take steps for going to reside in the diocese as soon as practicable.

Dear Sir,

I venture to ask you, should occasion offer, to circulate amongst the Commissioners a second letter (No. 24), which I have published on the question of the Worcester Episcopal residence. Embodied in it are some facts and figures respecting the income, which probably are not known to the Commissioners, but for the accuracy of which I can confidently vouch. As the Commissioners will have strong memorials in favour of Worcester as the Bishop's place of residence, from the Bishop designate, and the two archdeacons, I should hope that the just expectations of the clergy in this matter will not be disappointed.

Extract from the "Worcester Journal."

Shall the See of Worcester be Removed from Hartlebury?

To the Editor of the "Worcester Journal."

Sir,

Oblige me with space to reply to the courteous comments of "A Worcestershire Rector," inserted in your last impression, on the letter of mine which appeared in your paper of the 12th instant.

"A Rector" states that my assertion of the revenues of the see being formerly exactly double what they now are, is altogether a misconception. In support of his views the "Rector" says, that "during the episcopate of Bishop Carr, the income of the see was sometimes less and sometimes more than the 5,000 l. received by the late Bishop Pepys, and that depending, as it formerly did, upon the receipts from the renewals of leases, the income would be necessarily fluctuating and uncertain." I really cannot see that "A Rector" has in any way made out his objection, or that he has proved any fact when he tells us that the income was sometimes above and sometimes below what it now is. In the Report of the Ecclesiastical Commissioners of 1831, the total net value of Worcester see, on an average of three years, was given as 6,569 l. But the Returns then made of the incomes of the sees, excepting one or two of the worst endowed, were all notoriously low. It is exceedingly questionable whether the probable rental of the Hartlebury domain (the value of which may be estimated at 30,000 l.) was included. The fines of three years was given as 3,179 l. In a subsequent year, one fine alone produced 10,000 l. The woods are reported as having yielded 64 l.

But

But in the two years of 1833–4, timber was felled to nearly the amount of 5,000 l. In 1841, a return of the revenues of the see for the then previous 10 years was made out, and showed an average of 10,000 l. per annum. It should, however, be stated that a sum of 19,000 l. was included in it for timber, which would not be realisable again for 30 years. I am, therefore, within the mark when I give 8,000 l. per annum as the income of the see, previous to the commutation for the fixed sum of 5,000 l.

"A Rector" wishes to know whence I derived my information as to the baronial domains of Hartlebury being "a ruinous burden on the Bishop's reduced income." In a printed memorial now before me from the late Bishop to the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, about the year 1850, the Bishop complains of his "maintaining so expensive a place as Hartlebury Castle," and of his defraying "the charges as to hospitality and charitable subscriptions, which, in consequence of the larger incomes hitherto enjoyed by the Bishops of Worcester, are still expected from him." Public newspapers are hardly the organs for quoting private conversations. I must, therefore, content myself by stating, on authority which none would gainsay, that if the successor of the see is not possessed of private means he will be compelled to let the domain, and that, therefore, he will be a trespasser on leaving his own doors—a hardly dignified position for a Spiritual Peer of the Realm.

None, I believe, would be disposed to give an English dean less than 2,000 l. per annum, were important duties, such for example as those of archdeacon, or head of a Diocesan Theological College annexed to the deanery. As the matter now stands, a dean is overpaid with an income of 1,000 l., at least if there is to be any proportion between work done and stipend paid.

"A Rector" objects to the Worcester Palace on sanitary grounds. The Severn is certainly the main sewer of Worcester, but as it is not subject to the tide at the city, and there is no reflux of its contents, and a vast body of water is now pent up, and none of the bed, as formerly, is exposed to the sun's rays, the pollution of the water must be as inappreciable as it is invisible. Had the Palace been unhealthy, the present dean, with a full knowledge of its site, would not voluntarily have selected it as the residence of himself and family.

It will be a subject of sincere satisfaction to almost every churchman of the diocese to learn that such a memorial has been already transmitted to the Ecclesiastical Commissioners as will decide the question in favour of Worcester, at least if the Commissioners are to be influenced by an expression of opinion on the part of those most deeply interested in the matter, and best qualified to know the merits of the case; and that by the middle of next month there is every certainty of its being settled, that atsome certain date the cathedral town will again become the seat of her Episcopal head.

Yours, &c.
(signed) A Warwickshire Incumbent.

23 January 1861.

P.S.—The Ecclesiastical Commissioners will hold meetings on the 24th instant and the 14th proximo, and the question with respect to Hartlebury Castle will probably be discussed at the first meeting, and finally disposed of at the second.

LETTER from the Archdeacon of Worcester to the Secretary.

Vicarage, Halesowen, Birmingham.
Sir, 11 February 1861.

Episcopal Residence—Diocese of Worcester.

BY this post, I address to you a paper (No. 26) bearing the names of 45 clergymen in this archdeaconry, expressive of their desire that Worcester may be made the residence of the Bishops of Worcester.

I have taken no steps with a view of ascertaining the wishes of the clergy of this archdeaconry. Your letter on the subject, in answer to one of inquiry which I had written, did not encourage me to make any such effort.

These names, therefore, are to be regarded as those of clergymen who were anxious to seize an opportunity suggested by local papers, of making known to the Commissioners, through me, what their opinions are.

I ought further to state, that the two latter names only are those of clergymen in Warwickshire, from which county, if I had taken means of gathering their suffrages, I believe that I should have almost perfect unanimity in favour of the residence in Worcester from about 80 parishes, which form part of the Archdeaconry of Worcester.

I cannot forward this document with the above explanations, without reminding you that in a former letter, written about a month since, I gave my own reasons for believing that Worcester was a more fitting place for the Bishop's residence than Hartlebury, as being more convenient to the greater number.

A map of the diocese would be more convincing than any argument that I could employ.

There is, however, one consideration to which I wish to return, under an impression that I did not show its importance as clearly as I might have done.

I believe, then, that if the Bishop resides at Hartlebury without considerable alterations being made in that residence, it is impossible for the examinations for ordination to be conducted in the best manner.

1. I believe that Hartlebury Castle could not provide accommodation for the candidates. If I am mistaken, this ground of objection is invalid; but if I am right, then I must add, that no accommodation is to be procured in the village, nor in the neighbourhood. If, therefore, the Bishop is to avail himself of that most important opportunity of exercising influence and giving advice, Hartlebury Castle must undergo considerable alterations if the ordinations are to take place at Hartlebury.

2. The only alternative is, that of the Bishop going in daily to Worcester, and seeing nothing of the candidates excepting during the hours of examination; not having them under his roof, and leaving them to live in inns and lodgings in a place to them wholly strange. Under these circumstances, a few may be fortunate enough to have an introduction to clergymen or laymen in Worcester, with whom they may spend part of their leisure time; but during that period they cannot have the benefit which is possible, and is enjoyed in many dioceses, of spending their evenings with the Bishop, and perhaps hearing from him daily words of warning, encouragement, and so forth. The most part have no friends to go to.

I trust that these considerations may have their full weight with the Commissioners when they are entertaining this question. I believe them to be of very great moment. I once conducted one of the examinations. I frequently have curates ordained at Worcester; and in both ways I know that the evil is a serious one, and that many of the candidates have felt it deeply.

I have, &c.

Dear Sir,

As you are doubtless aware the question of a removal of the residence of the Bishop of Worcester from Hartlebury Castle has for some time been before the Ecclesiastical Commissioners for England and in the course of its consideration, it has become requisite to ascertain the probable cost of a future conversion of the deanery at Worcester into an episcopal residence ; I am therefore directed by the Commissioners to express to you their wish that you would be so good as to allow their architect, Mr. Christian, to view the deanery premises, so as to enable him to report to the Commissioners on the subject.

REPORT from Ewan Christian, Esq., to the Secretary.

10, Whitehall Place, S.W.,
21 February 1861.

Dear Sir,

Worcester Episcopal Residence.

AGREEABLY to the instructions in your letter of the 18th instant, I have been to Worcester, and have seen the Dean, who conducted me over a portion of his residence, and gave me some information respecting it. It is a large and ancient house, the greater part having been erected in the 15th century, but the east front is work of the last century. The entrance is through a square hall of moderate dimensions, level with the road, from which a single flight of steps conducts to the large hall on a higher level. This hall forms part of the ancient structure, and gives access to the drawing-room at the western end, and the dining-room on a higher level at the eastern end, also to a small chapel at the south side—it is a fine lofty room, lighted by a large mullioned window at the western end, overlooking the Severn. It is paved with stone, but the Dean has furnished it and uses it as a drawing-room. The drawing-room proper also overlooks the Severn and the Malvern Hills, and is a very good lofty room, with a large bay window. The dining-room is a large, well-proportioned, lofty apartment, but rather awkward of access from the offices. The Dean's study is on the lower level under the dining-room. There are two good bed-rooms on the same level as the great hall, but with the exception of these, and one other elsewhere, the bed-rooms are poor apartments and deficient in number, there being only eight bed-rooms and dressing-rooms, besides servants' rooms.

The interior of the house is deficient in light and airiness, and the drainage is stated to be defective, and occasionally very offensive. There are some nuisances in the neighbourhood of the river, such as bone mills, &c., which it was stated to me occasionally affect not only the deanery but the whole of the precincts of the cathedral, but in other respects the situation of the house is as open and airy as can reasonably be expected in a city, and to the westward the view of the Malvern Hills is beautiful.

There is ample stabling, somewhat objectionably placed in front of the entrance without the intervention of any inclosed yard.

I was unable to obtain permission to take a plan of the house, as the Dean and Chapter collectively take a somewhat strong view of the case, and no preliminary proposal having as yet been made to them, they object to a detailed survey of the residence, which, by the Order in Council, No. 241, they deem to be their absolute inalienable property. Under these circumstances, I am, of course, unable to report fully upon the case, or to state with any accuracy what would be the probable cost of fitting the house for an episcopal residence. From the general view I was enabled to take of it, however, I judge that a considerable sum must, of necessi y, be expended in repairs and improvements for that purpose, but that, although not unattended with difficulty, it would be perfectly practicable, so to enlarge it at the southern end, as not only to make it sufficient in respect of accommodation, but greatly to improve its general comfort and healthfulness.

As regards a new deanery, there appears to be no house in the precincts of the cathedral suitable for the purpose, and except by the removal of existing houses no adequate site could be obtained. The old deanery adjoined the ancient guesten hall, a portion of which was also incorporated with the residence, but no house ought again to be erected there. There are some leasehold houses belonging, I was told, to the Commissioners on the south side of the College Green, but the ground on which they stand is very narrow, and of necessity, they all have northern aspects. There is another house belonging to the Chapter leased at 60*l.* per annum to a maiden lady, for a term of which about 30 years still remain unexpired. This stands in a more eligible position than the others at the south west end of the College Green, overlooking the river, and if removed, would probably afford a good site for a house, but on what terms this could be obtained, I was not able to learn. I think, therefore, that until some further preliminary particulars are obtained it would be premature to offer an opinion as to the probable cost of a new residence.

Dear Sir, Cambridge, 25 February 1861.

Worcester Episcopal Residence.

IN your letter of the 5th instant, you informed me that the communication which I addressed to you on the preceding day should be laid before the Ecclesiastical Commissioners at their next meeting. As I have received no communication since, I presume that the Board has not yet come to any decision on the question of relieving the See from the episcopal residence at Hartlebury.

I write to ask if you can tell me when the Board will take the subject into consideration, for there are questions connected with it which press for early answers.

I stated in my letter of the 4th instant, that if Hartlebury were given up, a house near Worcester could be obtained as a temporary residence for the Bishop; but I am now informed that unless an answer be given very soon to the present occupier of the house, he will not consider himself bound by his offer, and the opportunity of securing the house will be lost.

This consideration, among many others relating to the diocese and myself, makes it a matter of much importance that the Commissioners should come to a final decision on the question as soon as practicable.

PRESENT:

The Archbishop of Canterbury.

The Viscount Eversley.
The Bishop of London.
The Bishop of Winchester.
The Bishop of St. Asaph.
The Bishop of Carlisle.
The Bishop of St. David's.
The Bishop of Gloucester and Bristol.
The Bishop of Lincoln
The Bishop of Llandaff.
The Bishop of Norwich.
The Bishop of Oxford.
The Dean of Canterbury.
The Right Hon. S. H. Walpole.
The Right Hon. E. P. Bouverie.
William Deedes, Esq.

Read,—A communication from the Bishop of Worcester (elect) (No. 36), calling the attention of the Board to his letter of the 4th instant (No. 22) urging the expediency of the removal of the episcopal residence of the See of Worcester, from Hartlebury to Worcester, the desirableness of an early decision on which subject his Lordship points out.

Read also,—Communications from the Rev. Nash Stephenson and from the Archdeacon of Worcester (Nos. 23, 24, 25, 26, and 11).

Resolved,—That the Commissioners do not think it expedient, during the present occupation of the old palace by the Dean of Worcester, to take any steps for the sale of Hartlebury Castle.

Ordered,—That the Bishop be forthwith informed that at a general meeting, held this day, the number of Commissioners present being above the average, the foregoing resolution was passed, subject to its confirmation at the meeting to be held on the 14th proximo.

Ordered further,—That the answers to the other communications on this subject be deferred until the foregoing resolution shall have been confirmed.

No. 38.

LETTER from the Secretary to the Bishop of Worcester (elect).

My Lord, 11, Whitehall Place, S.W., 1 March 1861.

YOUR Lordship's letter of the 25th ultimo was considered by the Ecclesiastical Commissioners for England, at the general meeting held yesterday, the number of Commissioners present being above the average, and I am directed to communicate to you that the resolution which they came to with respect to it, subject to its confirmation at the general meeting, to be held on the 14th instant, was, "That the Commissioners do not think it expedient, during the present occupation of the old palace by the Dean of Worcester, to take any steps for the sale of Hartlebury Castle."

I have, &c.

(signed) James J. Chalk.

No. 39.

LETTER from the Secretary to the Rev. Nash Stephenson.

Dear Sir, 11, Whitehall Place, S.W., 2 March 1861.

Worcester Episcopal Residence.

I HAVE to acknowledge the receipt of your communication of the 24th ultimo relative to the episcopal residence of the See of Worcester, and to state that the matter has been under consideration by the Ecclesiastical Commissioners for England, but that I am not at present in a position to communicate to you their views upon the subject.

I am, &c.

(signed) James J. Chalk.

No. 40.

LETTER from the Bishop of Worcester (elect), to the Secretary.

Dear Sir, Cambridge, 8th March 1861.

Worcester Episcopal Residence.

I BEG to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 1st instant, in which you communicate to me the resolution of the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, passed on the preceding day, that "They do not think it expedient during the present occupation of the old palace by the Dean of Worcester, to take any steps for the sale of Hartlebury Castle."

This resolution has caused me great perplexity, for it seems to imply that the Commissioners are disposed to take such steps on the termination of the occupation of the old palace by the present Dean of Worcester; and yet I cannot think it to be the intention of the Board, that I should incur the very heavy expense of making Hartlebury Castle fit for occupation, from the state in which it is now, with the prospect of being asked to move out of it again on the next avoidance of the deanery, and go to Worcester.

It seems natural also to look forward to the difficulty which will arise on the next vacancy of the deanery if no house be provided in the meantime for the new dean.

If the resolution should be confirmed by the Board at the general meeting on the 14th instant, I cannot, in common prudence, adopt any other course than take possession of Hartlebury Castle as a permanent residence; but I shall do so with deep regret for the loss of the opportunity of correcting the arrangement by which both the bishopric and the deanery are burdened with unsuitable houses, and the satisfactory administration of the diocese is made extremely difficult.

I shall be obliged if you will be so good as to inform me whether the resolution is confirmed on the 14th instant, for it will then, I presume, be necessary, in accordance with Section 2 of the Act 23 & 24 Vict., c. 124, to form a scheme for attaching to the episcopal residence such lands as are "Necessary for the enjoyment of it."

I am, &c.

(signed) H. Worcester (elect).

To Daniel Mather, Esq.

WHEREAS the Ecclesiastical Commissioners for Ireland have, pursuant to the provisions of an Act of Parliament, made in the 3rd and 4th years of the reign of His Majesty King William the Fourth, intituled, "An Act to alter and amend the laws relating to the Temporalities of the Church in Ireland," ascertained the terms of purchase of the fee and inheritance of the lands, premises, and hereditaments, hereinafter mentioned, that is to say, the town and lands of Fahalty and Clonburren, now commonly called or known as the town and lands of Falty, otherwise Fahalty, America, Rooty, Cappadocia, Hillsend, Clonburren, Devenish Island, and Small Island, containing in the whole by estimation 2,145 acres, 3 roods, and 18 perches, statute measure, or thereabouts, be the same more or less, situate in the half barony of Moycarron and county of Roscommon, which lands, premises, and hereditaments are held by you immediately from and under the See of Meath, by virtue of a certain lease bearing date the 27th day of July 1852.

I am, therefore, directed by the said Ecclesiastical Commissioners for Ireland to notify to you, that the amount of the purchase money to be paid for the conveyance of the fee and inheritance of and in the said lands, premises, and hereditaments, is 3,529 l. 9*s.*, and that the amount of the annual rent to be reserved and made payable after the completion of such purchase, out of the said lands, premises, and hereditaments is 156 l. 15*s.*

By Order of the Commissioners,

Dated this 19th day of November 1853.

Note.—Before a conveyance can be executed all rent due out of the premises, and all fines and proportions of fines for such lapses as may have been incurred since the commencement of the last lease, must be paid, irrespective of the purchase money above mentioned.

To the Right Honourable and Reverend Ecclesiastical Commissioners for Ireland.

Halbrule, near Hawick, Scotland,
My Lords, 28 February 1853.

I AM in receipt of my agent's letter of the 25th, conveying the terms you propose giving the perpetuity of the lands of Fahalty, &c., in the county of Roscommon, held from the See of Meath; the terms on which it is offered of 3,529 l. 9*s.*, with an increase of rent to the See from 68 l. 5*s.* to 150 l. 15 s. annually, annually, is so far beyond what I believed would be required, that I cannot help thinking there is a great mistake by not looking to the run-out condition of the land, the great outlay and risk of life and property in an uncertain endeavour to improve them; poor and county rates levied at from 2 s. 3 d. to 1 s. in the pound by the rent yearly of 23 l. 5 s. 1 d., and a lease newly entered upon of 21 years, at a yearly rent of 68 l. 5 s. to the See of Meath. Your Lordships may inadvertently get wrong, and not have considered it in all its bearings.

These lands were sold by the Commissioners for the Sale of Incumbered Estates in Ireland, with a burthen of 200 l. a year for the life of Lady St. George, aged 65 years, and a sum of 5,225 l. laid down by me, which purchase your Lordships may think very differently about; but I am sure, looking to the arrears of rent and unpaid fines for renewals, only one opinion can prevail, and that, how it give so much; and now, with the sum asked for the perpetuity, nothing so circumstanced has been yet sold in the Incumbered Estates Court so dear, not even a fee simple inheritance. Allow me to state, that the whole of the Bishop's land in the parish of Moore is in the worst condition it can be turned into; and when I entered upon this lot it was my determination to carry out improvements on a scale of permanence never before seen in the parish, expecting to be secured in my outlay by your Lordship's granting me the perpetuity on terms worth purchasing; and unless the demand be changed, I must reluctantly withdraw the application, as well as the capital required to plant, build, and fence, and drain the lands.

Believe me, &c.

In reply to your letter of the 28th ultimo, objecting to the terms upon which the Commissioners are willing to grant you a perpetuity in the lands of Fahalty, &c., under the See of Meath, I am directed to state, that the calculation was made on the basis of the valuation which they procured; but if you have any reason to think the purchase money so ascertained too high, the Commissioners will take into consideration the valuation of Mr. Byrne, Mr. Brassington, or other qualified person, who shall be approved of by them, if you shall think fit to procure and lay same before them.

My Lords,

I have directed J. J. Byrne, Esq., to call for the instructions you require to give him in the valuation of the lands of Fahalty, &c., held by me from the See of Meath, to have his valuation returned for your consideration, in regard to a reduction of the terms you are making for me to obtain a perpetuity. The improvements made, and are in progress of making, being of some considerable value, for which there will be no return for some time, I beg to state that Mr. Byrne will not be instructed to take them into account, or I shall decline his entering upon the lands on my account.

VALUATION of Part of the Estate of the See of Meath, in the Barony of Moycarron and County of Roscommon, formerly held by Sir Thomas Bligh St. George, now belonging to Daniel Mather, Esq.

NO.	DENOMINATIONS.	PLANTATION MEASURE. A. R. P.	STATUTE MEASURE. A. R. P.	ANNUAL VALUE. £. s. d	OBSERVATIONS.
1	Fahalty - - -	267 0 17	432 2 27	144 – –	- - The upland portion, about 100 statute acres, is naturally very good sound arable, but greatly abused by the conacre system; the residue is wet, cold bottom pasture, and bog; draining and fencing has been commenced extensively, and a good farm-house erected thereon.
2	America - - -	179 2 27	291 0 6	62 – –	- - About one-third of this denomination is bog or boggy pasture, or moor of little or no value; one-third poor light pasture or worn-out tillage; the residue along the road side is naturally good tillage, but in part much abused.
3	Rooty - - -	97 2 31	158 0 39	60 15 –	- - Rooty contains some good arable, but having been let to small holders, is greatly worn; about one-third is poor and wet, on which portion drainage is progressing, that will, after a short time, have a very beneficial effect on the entire.
4	Cappadocia - -	166 0 7	268 3 24	61 12 –	- - Cappadocia has some naturally good arable, a few acres about the village, and in some scattered places; but the larger portion is wet, cold, and poor bottom pasture of trifling value, and one-third of the entire denomination is bog.
5	Hillsend - - -	46 0 39	74 3 25	23 16 –	- - About 10 acres of Hillsend, near the tenants' houses, are good arable; part, however, is very poor, and about one-third is bog, or moory tillage on bog.
6	Clonburren - -	554 1 16	897 3 34	260 12 –	- - On the lands of Clonburren is an old burial-ground and church ruins; also the ruins of a once respectable cottage residence, garden, &c., around which part the land is of a superior quality, but much injured by the last occupier; there is a ridge nearly a mile in length passing through it of light, poor, gravelly hill, usually called an eskir, with a large portion of coarse callow adjoining the Shannon; and over one-fourth is bog and moory arable, or cut away bog.
7	Devenish Island -	12 2 27	20 2 3	18 15 –	- - This is an island in the Shannon that occasionally yields a good deal of meadow, but floods render the removal thereof precarious; situated so inconveniently, 30 s. per Irish acre as a permanent rent is, in my opinion, full value.
		1,323 3 4	2,144 0 38	631 10 –	TOTAL gross annual value, Six hundred and Thirty-one pounds Ten shillings sterling.

Referring to your valuation of the lands of Fahalty, under the See of Meath, made by the directions of Mr. Mather, the tenant, I am directed to call your attention to the great difference between it and the Ordnance valuation, and to inquire whether your valuation was made pursuant to any special instructions or in the ordinary course, with the view of ascertaining the bonâ fide value between landlord and tenant, the Ordnance valuation being 887 l. 18 s. 4 d.

Sir, 10, Lower Mount-street, 2 May 1853.

I have to acknowledge the receipt of yours of the 30th ultimo, making inquiry as to the mode in which I valued the lands of Fahalty, &c., held by Mr. Mather, under the See of Meath, and in reply beg to state, that I did not receive any instructions whatever as to this valuation, but a request from Mr. Mather to view them and report thereon. The return I furnished is, to the best of my judgment and ability, the fair letting value of these lands between landlord and tenant, and as much as would be realised if going to be let to solvent tenants. I have further to add, that I was long since aware of the Ordnance valuation thereof, as previous to their being sold in 1852, I caused them to be inspected by my assistant, an experienced farmer, for the purpose of guiding an intending purchaser; but when the Ecclesiastical Commissioners for Ireland required a valuation I went myself to make it (as I never did any business for them by deputy), and found the Ordnance valuation to be as my assistant represented it a year back, viz., a gross exaggeration, and fully 200 l. a year more than was paid for these lands during the last 20 years. There is a great extent of ground, but the proportion of bog to the arable or pasture land is considerable, and since the potato failure all land over-tenanted, as this was, has been worn out and exhausted in tillage, with bog stuff as the only manure. Were it not for the drainage now in active operation, by which I could perceive the improvement that will result in a few years, I would not have valued these lands even so high as I did, for if all left in possession of the former occupiers such improvements would never take place.

They therefore would require to be informed as to the value of the several parts into which the property has been divided, with the view of seeing that a fair proportion of fine has been allocated to each.

My dear Mr. Quin,

Just before I left Ardbracan, I received a note from Mr. Crofton, my agent, enclosing one from Mr. Bushe, asking him to account for a difference of 18 s. in his estimate of Mr. Mather's renewal fine, and my return of the same to the Commissioners. I have looked everwhere for the paper on which I had made the calculation, but I have failed to find it. I remember only that I had divided nearly, but not altogether accurately, the entire renewal paid by St. George among the four purchasers, giving a little higher than the other to the person who paid the largest sum, and who had the largest portion of the land unoccupied. I think I stated this in my return to the Commissioners, but I suppose I am wrong, from Mr. Bushe's letter to Mr. Crofton. As my return was only a conjectural one, it may be amended by the Commissioners.

Sir, Halbrule, 14 November 1853.

I TAKE the liberty of enclosing Mr. French's statement of poor's rates struck for the past half-year on the lands of Fahalty, &c., which has been sent me for payment of stipend. You will favour me by showing this to the Commissioners; and I think they should be made aware of the burthen the lands are liable to pay, in order that they may have information to enable them to come to a proper value to ask me for the perpetuity which I am seeking to have reduced.

To William T. Potts, Esq.

WHEREAS the Ecclesiastical Commissioners for Ireland have, pursuant to the provisions of an Act of Parliament made in the 3d and 4th years of the reign of his Majesty King William the 4th, intituled, "An Act to alter and amend the Laws relating to the Temporalities of the Church in Ireland," ascertained the terms of purchase of the fee-simple and inheritance of the lands, premises, and hereditaments hereinafter mentioned; that is to say, all that and those the town and lands of Kilbegly, otherwise Kilvegly, Cullaghmore, and Clonfad, otherwise Clonfadda, containing altogether by estimation, 2,728 acres, 2 roods, and 26 perches, statute measure, or thereabouts, all which said several lands and premises are situate, lying, and being in the half barony of Moycarron, and county of Roscommon, which said lands, premises and hereditaments, are held by you, immediately from and under the See of Meath, by virtue of a certain lease, bearing date the 21st day of October 1858. I am therefore directed by the said Ecclesiastical Commissioners for Ireland to notify to you that the amount of the purchase-money to be paid for the conveyance of the fee-simple and inheritance of and in the lands, premises, and hereditaments, is 3,213 l. 17 s. 11 d., and that the amount of the annual rent to be reserved and made payable, after the completion of such purchase, out of the said lands, premises, and hereditaments, is 115 l. 0 s. 3 d.

Dated this 26th day of March 1859.

Note.—Before a conveyance can be executed, all rent due out of the premises, and all fines, and proportions of fines, for such lapses as may have been incurred since the commencement of the last lease, must be paid, irrespective of the purchase-money above demanded.

Sir, 37, Lower Baggot-street, 28 March 1859.

ON behalf of Mr. William T. Potts, I beg to acknowledge the receipt of your communication of the 26th instant, enclosing a notice relative to the purchase of the perpetuity in the lands of Kilbegly, &c., county of Roscommon.

Mr. Potts is of opinion that the purchase-money demanded is entirely too much (3,213 l. 17 s. 11 d.), and has authorised me to offer the Commissioners the sum of 2,000 l. (two thousand pounds) for the perpetuity in said lands. Waiting your reply,

In re Kilbegly Perpetuity.

Office of the Ecclesiastical Commissioners for Ireland,
Sir, 24, Upper Merrion-street, 1 April 1859.

Referring to your letter of the 28th ultimo, respecting the terms of purchase in the above case, I am directed to state that the Commissioners cannot make any abatement in the terms demanded, the same being based on the valuation furnished by Mr. Gordon, after making a certain allowance for the value of the buildings occupied by Mr. Dillon.

I have, &c.

A. B. Todd, Esq.,

In re Kilbegly Perpetuity, See of Meath.

Sir, 37, Lower Baggot-street, 11 April 1859.

In reply to your communication of the 1st inst., stating that the Commissioners will not make any abatement in the terms demanded for the purchase in the above case, I beg to refer you to the purchase of the perpetuity made by Mr. Mather of his interest in the lands of Falty, and others, in the barony of Moycarron and county of Roscommon, held by him as tenant under the See of Meath, containing 2,145 acres, 3 roods, 18 perches, statute measure, of which there are about 261 acres of bog; the gross yearly rental is 608 l. 9 s. 4 d.; rent, fees, and fines, 155 l. 15 s.; Ordnance valuation, 887 l. 18 s. 4 d.; Poor Law valuation, 611 l. 2 s. 4 d.

It appears in this case, the Commissioners granted to Mr. Mather the perpetuity for the sum of 1,912 l. 17 s. 10 d.

In comparing Mr. Mather's holding with Mr. Potts', it will appear that Mr. Mather has over 500 acres of arable land more than Mr. Potts; that the Ordnance and Poor Law valuations of Mr. Mather's land is higher than Mr. Potts', and, notwithstanding so great a difference, the Commissioners demand from Mr. Potts for the purchase of the perpetuity of his lease nearly twice the sum they received from Mr. Mather. Why such a difference should exist I am at a loss to find out, and, therefore, hope the Commissioners may consider Mr. Potts' case, and reduce their demand in proportion to the sum they received from Mr. Mather.

I beg also to add, that Mr. Potts' land is subject to 24 l. 15 s. 9 d. tithe rent charge. Waiting your reply,

In the Kilbegly Perpetuity, See of Meath.

Sir, 37, Lower Baggot-street, 26 April 1859.

In reply to your communication of the 14th inst., I find that when the Commissioners were applied to by Mr. Mather, to convert his lease into a perpetuity, demanded the sum of 3,529 l. 5 s., and afterwards accepted the sum of 1,912 l. 17 s. 10 d. I beg to refer you to my letter of the 11th inst., and shall thank you to let me know the mode of valuation adopted by the Commissioners in Mr. Mather's case, which induced them to reduce their original demand from 3,529 l. 5 s. to 1,912 l. 17 s. 10 d. Mr. Mather's land is superior in quality, both the Ordnance and Poor Law valuations are higher, and therefore I am at a loss to understand why the Commissioners, as a public body, should demand from Mr. Potts nearly double the sum they took from Mr. Mather; the amount payable by Mr. Potts, if ascertained by the same mode of calculation adopted in Mr. Mathers' case, ought to be nearly the same.

Mr. Potts feels it a hardship to be asked to pay nearly double what Mr. Mather paid, and therefore as the Commissioners were wrong in the sum they at first demanded from Mr. Mather, they are also wrong in the sum they now demand from Mr. Potts; they should act towards Mr. Potts as they acted with Mr. Mather.

If, therefore, the Commissioners refuse to grant a perpetuity to Mr. Potts on the same terms upon which they granted Mr. Mather the perpetuity of his lease, he must only seek redress from the proper tribunal.

In re Mr. Potts' application for Perpetuity, Kilbegly, Meath.

Office of the Ecclesiastical Commissioners for Ireland,
Sir, 24, Upper Merrion-street, 21 May 1859.

With reference to your letter of the 26th ult. on the subject of your objections to the terms of purchase demanded on the application of Mr. Potts in the above matter, and referring to the purchase made Mr. Mather of the lands of Falty, under the same See, I am directed to inform you that the Commissioners in calculating the terms of purchase, in the first instance, in the case of Mr. Mather, acted upon a valuation which they afterwards found was erroneous, but in the case of Mr. Potts they acted upon a valuation which was furnished to them by him (Mr. Potts) after making a certain deduction from it warranted by their regulations, they therefore apprehend there can be little doubt as to the correctness of the terms demanded.

I have, &c.
(signed) Thomas Bushe,
Secretary.

In re Mr. Potts' application for Perpetuity, Kilbegly, See of Meath.

Sir, 37, Lower Baggot-street, 1 June 1859.

In reply to your communication of the 21st ult., stating that in the case of Mr. Mather's, the Commissioners in calculating the terms of purchase, in the first instance, acted upon a valuation which they afterwards found to be erroneous, it would therefore appear they are also erroneous in their demand from Mr. Potts, as his land is still of less value than Mr. Mather's.

Mr. Potts

Mr. Potts in applying for a perpetuity of his lease has acted according to the printed forms furnished by the Commissioners; Mr. Mather did the same; onw all Mr. Potts asks for, is to be treated in the same manner as the Commissioners treated Mr. Mather when they reduced their demand from 3,529 l. 5 s., to the sum of 1,912 l. 17 s. 10 d., which they afterwards accepted.

It cannot for a moment be conceived that when an estate is valued under the general valuation for Ireland lower than another, that the Commissioners are correct in demanding a sum by one-half greater for the estate of the lower valuation, and accept a sum of one-half less for the estate which is of the greater valuation. Mr. Mather's property is valued higher than Mr. Potts' property, and it cannot be said that the Commissioners are correct in asking from Mr. Potts a sum of 3,213 l. 17 s. 11 d., when they took a sum of 1,912 l. 17 s. 10 d. from Mr. Mather, as they were wrong in the first demand from Mr. Mather, it would appear they are now wrong in asking Mr. Potts to pay the sum of 3,213 l. 17 s. 11 d. for the perpetuity of his lease.

I shall, therefore, thank you to submit this matter again to the Commissioners for their reconsideration, and to let me know the result.

I have, &c.,

In re Mr. Potts' application for purchase Lands of Kilbegly, See of Meath.

Office of the Ecclesiastical Commissioners for Ireland,

Sir, 24, Upper Merrion street, 11 June 1859.

Referring to your letter of the 1st instant questioning the correctness of the sum which the Commissioners have demanded for the purchase of a perpetuity in this case, and referring to the purchase made by Mr. Mather under the same See, I am directed to inform you that in making the calculations in those two cases, the Commissioners had reference solely to the facts of each case, and did not introduce into their consideration, as to either, any circumstances relating to the other; that in Mr. Mather's case, after their first calculation was made, distinct evidence was afforded to them that the valuation upon which their computation was based was erroneous, and they accordingly recalculated the terms; whence arose the variation in the terms adopted from those first declared, and the Commissioners believe that the terms acted upon in that case were fair and proper; but supposing they were not, any mistake made by them in that case (assuming that there was one) can have no influence in Mr. Potts' case, no possible connexion existing between them; in the latter case the Commissioners adopted as the basis of their calculation, the valuation returned by Mr. Potts himself, which was made for him, and not for the Commissioners, by an eminent surveyor and valuer, in whom the Commissioners had full confidence; and from that valuation the Commissioners made such deductions as are usual, and declared the terms, which, according to the facts of the case, they see no cause to doubt are reasonable and accurate.

If, however, Mr. Potts should think that Mr. Gordon's estimate of the value of the property is inaccurate, and if he be willing to pay the expenses of another valuation, the Commissioners will instruct the same gentleman who valued Mr. Mather's property to proceed to Mr. Potts' property, and make a valuation of it; upon receipt of which they will consider whether any change should be made in the terms they have declared, but they must decline to have any regard to what they may have done in respect to one property in dealing with another property.

In re Mr. Potts' application for purchase Lands of Kilbegly, See of Meath.

Sir, 37, Lower Baggot-street 23, June 1859.

In reply to your letter of the 11th instant, I am to inform you that Mr. Potts cannot for a moment suppose that Mr. Gordon's valuation is inaccurate, and therefore declines your suggestion of his incurring the expense of a re-valuation of his estate.

Mr. Potts is still convinced that the sum of 3,213 l. 17 s. 11 d. demanded by the Commissioners for converting his lease into a perpetuity much too great, and that their computation is erroneous, even supposing that the Commissioners have adopted the valuation made by Mr. Gordon as the basis of their calculation.

The Commissioners having refused to disclose the mode of calculation by which they have ascertained the sum they demanded from Mr. Potts, he is advised that taking the measure for calculating such matters as prescribed by the Act of Parliament, the Commissioners have not a right to demand from him a sum greater than 1,597 l. 1 s. 6 d., and which sum has been ascertained, taking the valuation made by Mr. Gordon as a basis.

Mr. Potts, however, is still willing to adhere to his first proposition, and pay 2,000 l. for the perpetuity in question, and which amount he feels assured that the Commissioners on more mature consideration will conceive it their duty, in common justice, to accept.

Sir, 24, Upper Merrion-street, 1 July 1859.

I have laid before the Ecclesiastical Commissioners your letter of the 23d ultimo, and I am directed to acquaint you that the accuracy of Mr. Gordon's valuation having been admitted by Mr. Potts, and adopted by the Commissioners, they cannot consent to make any change in the terms of purchase which they have declared in this case.

Sir, 37, Lower Baggot-street, 20 July 1859.

I am directed by Mr. Potts to state, in reply to yours of the 1st inst., that he considers it only common justice for a public body such as the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, to explain why there should be such a difference in the sum demanded from him for the purchase of his perpetuity and that accepted from Mr. Mather, the property of the former being of less value than the property of the latter.

Mr. Potts, therefore, repeats his request to be informed on what grounds such an excessive charge is made in his case, and by doing so put an end to this correspondence.

The Commissioners having adopted Mr. Gordon's valuation, and Mr. Potts having full confidence in its correctness, he considers makes his demand on the present occasion, if possible, more reasonable, and more imperative upon the Commissioners to explain why such a difference should be made in the purchase of the perpetuity already referred to.

Sir, 24, Upper Merrion-street, 25 July 1859.

In reference to your letter dated the 20th inst., requesting on the part of Mr. Potts to be informed why there should be such a difference in the sum demanded from him for his proposed perpetuity purchase, and that accepted from Mr. Mather, I am directed by the Commissioners to state that they cannot give any further explanation than is contained in their letter of the 11th ult., as to the cause of the difference referred to by you, unless they were deceived in the valuation of Mr. Mather's property, which they have no reason to believe was the case, the calculation having been made exactly on the same principles which are applicable to all perpetuity purchases.

Re Kilbegly Perpetuity.

Sir, Bovicen Castle, 21 July 1859.

Finding by the reply of the Ecclesiastical Commissioners to the letter of my solicitor of the 20th inst. that all my efforts have failed in obtaining any explanation of their reason for making so great a difference between Mr. Mather's case and mine, and also finding that they have obstinately refused to state on what data they grounded their calculation for the value of the perpetuity in my case, I have now only to say that, in justice to myself, as well as on public grounds, I think it my duty to bring the entire matter before Parliament with the least possible delay.

My dear Mr. Bushe, Quin's Hotel, Bray, 11 August 1859.

I regret that I am not well enough to attend our Board. I am come here for a short time, hoping to be restored to the full use of my legs.

I have been spoken to by a friend of Mr. Potts, a tenant of the See of Meath, and one who wishes to purchase a perpetuity, and the Commissioners have been blamed for asking an exorbitant sum as purchase money. They add, that Mr. Mather was charged a great deal less, though his holding was equal in value. Will you allow me to ask you to give me an account of the facts of the two cases, that I may set my friend right upon the subject.

I am sorry indeed to hear of Mr. Quin's illness. I trust it will be only temporary.

Yours, &c.

Office of the Ecclesiastical Commissioners for Ireland,
My Lord, 24, Upper Merrion-street, 13 August 1859.

Referring to your Lordship's letter of the 11th inst., I am directed to acquaint your Lordship, that the Commissioners made the calculation of the purchase money in Mr. Potts' case upon the same principles exactly as are followed in every like case; and the reason the purchase money is so much greater in Mr. Potts' case than Mr. Mather's is simply, that the two perpetuities, instead of being of equal value, are dissimilar in every point, the gross value of Mr. Mather's property being much less than that of Mr. Potts, and his rent and fine considerably greater, consequently, his purchase money was considerably less. The rent now payable to your Lordship in the case of Mr. Mather's is much more than will be payable by Mr. Potts, should he complete his purchase, which affords an additional reason why the purchase money paid by Mr. Mather should be less. I am further to state, that the exact figures would be sent to your Lordship, were it not that it is contrary to the practice of the Board to give such information.

EDUCATION COMMISSION.

RETURN to an Address of the Honourable The House of Commons, dated 2 May 1861 ;—for,

"COPY of a LETTER to Earl Granville, written by Sir James Kay Shuttleworth, on the REPORT of the COMMISSION appointed to inquire into the State of NATIONAL EDUCATION."

LETTER to the Right Honourable the Earl Granville, K. G., President of the Council and of the Committee of Council on Education, &c. &c., on the Report of the Commissioners appointed to inquire into the State of Popular Education in England.

My Lord,

THE Commission which has reviewed the Minutes of the Committee of Council and the administration of the Parliamentary Grant for Public Education in England were called to the discharge of that duty, chiefly in consequence of the questions raised by the increase of the charge on the public revenue.

But the whole system was submitted to their scrutiny. They have, by a large majority, decided against relying for the support of elementary schools on the voluntary aid of parents and promoters. They have unanimously approved of the management of training and primary schools by the religious bodies; of the denominational character of the inspection; of the training of the teacher by his five years' apprenticeship and two years' education as a Queen's scholar in a training college. They even require that the proportion of pupil teachers should be increased from the present ratio of 1 in 50 on the average attendance to that of 1 in 30. They do not alter the grants to training colleges. To the extent of 7 s. to 8 s. 6 d. per scholar, on the average attendance, they subsidise the certificated and pupil teachers, who, in the proportions required by them would, at the present rate of aid, require 13 s. 5½ d. But they provide a subsidiary grant, which might raise the aid to a successful school even to 15 s. per scholar, so as also to meet, in some degree, that obtained from book and capitation grants under the present system. The Commissioners confirm the half-time system as applied to the associated labour of children in factories and other works, and recommend its extension.

They also perceive the necessity of encouraging evening schools, and recommend that grants be made for their organization. The urgency of this need will be made daily more apparent by experience and discussion. They confirm the recommendations of the Report on the Training of Pauper Children, published in 1840, and urge that these children should be removed from the workhouses, and brought up in district schools. They recommend a steady progress in the development of reformatory institutions for vagrant and criminal children, and offer useful suggestions as to the schools of the army, navy, dockyards, and military asylums. A very able part of this report confirms the efforts made by successive keepers of the Great Seal to invest the Privy Council with important administrative functions as to certain endowments for education and for the poor.

The general result of the Commissioners' judicial examination of the existing system is, therefore, to erect a buttress to sustain it—apparently firm—if it could be regarded separately, from some suggestions which are like a dry rot in the new timber.

The grant from the Consolidated Fund is assessed on an annual value of 550,000,000 l.; but the growth of the Miscellaneous Estimates within a few years has made successive Chancellors of the Exchequer jealous of the increase of each item. Calculations had been hazarded as to the claims which the present mode of administering the education grant would create on this fund. One principal question, therefore, to which the Commissioners had to direct their attention was, whether the Consolidated Fund could be relieved of any part of this burthen.

They have decided that the growth of income from school fees and from voluntary subscriptions must be so gradual, that no immediate and remarkable change in their proportions to the amount of public aid can be expected. One of the results of improved and extended education will, however, obviously be to develope the income from both of these sources until, in a quarter of a century, considerable relief may be had to the charge on the national fund. At least half a million annually may, within that time, be added to the present income from school pence alone.

In searching for means of immediate relief to the Parliamentary grant, the Commissioners have examined the question of local rating. They had been warned that this subject had undergone anxious and prolonged scrutiny. The question presented is simply this: How can any part of the burthen of public education be transferred from an area of assessment of 550,000,000 l., on which the Consolidated Fund is charged, to one of 86,000,000 l., from which the county and borough rates are collected, without such a change as shall transfer the controlling and managing power altogether, or substantially, from the religious communions and the Committee of Council on Education to the ratepayers?

This question was examined during many months in 1851–52, by a mixed committee, representing all the religious communions of Manchester. The result of their deliberations was, that no authority could be confided to the corporation of that city, or to any education committee appointed by it, except the administration of a capitation grant, upon terms which conferred mainly a power of registration and the rare arbitration of certain questions of civil and religious freedom. The Bill framed on this basis, was laboriously examined by a Committee of the House of Commons during two successive Sessions of Parliament. Moreover, Lord John Russell's Borough Education Bill of 1853, was founded on this basis. Both these measures failed to secure support, because they were constructed on the principle of shifting a burthen from a wide area of assessment to one of less than one-sixth the capacity, without conferring local powers to economise the charge, or any substantial authority over its application. The corporations would not accept this illusive shadow of local government, with a real increase of their rates; cast on them for the relief of property, six times greater than that locally assessed.

I speak of this the more emphatically, because I was responsible for aiding in the careful analysis of this question, so that the result might be brought before Parliament, in both forms, for public discussion.

My own impression finally was, that the ratepayers would not accept a transference of the charge of public education, in whole or in part, from the assessment of 550,000,000 l. of annual value to the local assessment of 86,000,000 l. without so substantial a transference of authority in the management of the schools as would be subversive of that of the religious communions. If, for the sake of argument, we were to conceive that the control now exercised by the Committee of Council on Education over the training colleges, the apprenticeship, and the inspection, were in the hands of the ratepayers, I apprehend that civil and religious liberty would be in more danger from the dominant majority, than from a department of representative Government, watched by the religious bodies, under the criticism of the press, and subject to Parliament. This fear the elaborate investigation of the Commissioners confirms, by a new exhaustive process. They have doubtless examined numerous plans. Their scrutiny has resulted in one which consists in charging the county rates with an immediate burthen of 428,000 l. per annum, with the prospect of a very early increase to half a million. But they have not been able to confer on the county committee of education, any other administrative functions than the appointment of examiners, who are to be certificated schoolmasters of seven years' standing, and who are to examine and register how many children can read, write, and cypher, in each school. The county Board would thus have no real authority over the amount of the rates, except by appointing stingy examiners, and not the slightest influence in the schools, except by thus stinting their income to save the rates. The transfer is itself a contradiction to Sir Robert Peel's policy, which removed the stipends of the teachers of pauper children and other similar charges from the poor rates to the Consolidated Fund. The local administrative power acquired is so utterly disproportionate to the taxation imposed, that it rather oppresses than supports the principle of local administeration, by transferring a central charge without giving the county Board such authority as the magistracy have over the police, the prisons, the asylums, the bridges, and other objects of county expenditure.

This is not, therefore, decentralization of anything, but taxation. It is a removal of a charge of half a million from an area of 550,000,000 l. to one of 86,000,000 l., without giving any such control over the institutions to which this money is to be paid, as exists in every other case.

There are certain words in the Report of the Commission which the religious bodies must interpret for themselves. Among "the direct effects which" they "anticipate from this recommendation," they state that (p. 338), "it will secure as much local management as is at present desirable." Whether the increase of local management, in the future, is to be obtained by transferring to the county Board the examination of any training college within the county, or of the pupil teachers and Queen's scholars, or by placing in its hands the appointment and direction of the inspection, together with a corresponding transference of the charge from the Consolidated Fund to the county rates, is not defined. But it must mean some or all of these things, or, on the other hand, such an interference by the county Board with the management of the schools by the committees now appointed under their school deeds, as should give either the magistrates or the delegates of the ratepayers power to appoint and dismiss the teachers and regulate the details of school management.

This county Board is, therefore, either the thin end of the wedge of a total change in administrative action, or its power is too insignificant to justify the doubling of the county rates.

The grant administered for elementary education now amounts to 723,115 l. The Commissioners are of opinion that it can be restrained within the limits of 1,200,000 l., and will not increase to that amount for several years. The transfer of 500,000 l., from the Consolidated Fund to the county rates would secure no economy, and if unaccompanied with adequate local authority over education would be an unjustifiable expedient.

If, therefore, this charge cannot be justified as an economy of public funds, on what other grounds can it be defended?

The education department has for many years been in the condition of a juvenile hero outgrowing the suit of armour in which it was at first encased. Its helmet, greaves, and gauntlets have become instruments of torture. In other words, the building is too small; departments have swarmed out of it into the neighbouring streets, its staff is too slender, and the provisional character of its arrangements has been injuriously prolonged. In their despair, the secretaries, worn out with the worry of an insufficient organization, appeal to the Commission for relief.

The relief which the Commission offers is described as simplification. This consists in transacting the business of payment in 40 county treasurers' offices and all the county banks, besides the education department, instead of as at present in the council office, and the post offices only.

The cost of the present plan consists in the salaries of a few registering clerks in London, and in one-quarter per cent., paid from the education grant into the revenues of the post office. The payments are made by post-office orders drawn in favour of each recipient of the grant, and sent to the correspondent of the school for distribution. The risks of confusion and misappropriation are thus minimized.

The plan proposed is, that the whole sum of grants due to a county should be paid in one sum periodically (it is not said whether monthly, quarterly, or annually), to the account of the county treasurer, accompanied by a statement of its appropriation to each school.

The correspondent of each school is to claim what is due to it from the county treasurer, who is to transfer the money to the local bank appointed by the correspondent. The cheques on this local bank are to be drawn in favour of each person who has acquired a claim to aid under the minutes; the voucher of each payment is to be sent by the local bank to the county treasurer, who is to tabulate them for publication.

The complication consists in the employment of four agencies, besides the school managers, instead of two. The increase of expense would arise from the much larger number of clerks required to transact this business in each county treasurer's office than in one central department, and the employment of many unconnected banks in each county instead of the post offices, organized into one system strictly regulated by a central inspection and control, and which really make a profit out of the transaction. The risks of loss from error, confusion, and fraud, are obviously greatly increased by this complication. The clerks' work in the county treasurer's office, and the county banker's charge would be a burden on the county. The local bank could not afford to make minute payments and conduct the correspondence for less than one quarter per cent. of deduction from the grants to each school. All this involves an increase of complication, risk, and expense. The Commissioners do not announce any plan, but they leave an alarming suspicion that (as they expect such a simplification) this end will be sought under this scheme, by holding the examination of pupil teachers half-yearly in certain places, and sending their papers to a London office, where they are to be examined, and the apprentice passed or rejected without appeal. Yet the inspectors are to visit each elementary school as heretofore, they are to satisfy themselves as to the character and conduct of the apprentice, they are to hear him read, and observe his teaching and management of a class. Their report on the skill, character, and conduct of the pupil teachers, must be made either conjointly with that on the merely scholastic examination of the apprentices on paper, or separately. If conjointly, then both of these matters should come under the same eye for the primary report. Otherwise there would be complication. If separately, then there must be delay, confusion and conflict of authority. There would be no important change if the inspectors are to conduct the collective examination of the apprentices on paper, or supposing they deputed the merely formal superintendence of this examination, then if the examination papers of the pupil teachers whose schools they have visited were to be brought under their review and reported on by them conjointly with their report on their character, conduct, and skill.

The inspectors of late have availed themselves of every opportunity afforded by facilities of conveyance to assemble the pupil teachers of schools within a radius of four, six, or eight miles for their scholastic examination, but they have thus brought together those pupil teachers whose schools they had visited or were about to visit. This has saved trouble to the inspectors by the use of the same exercises for apprentices in the same year, and it has enabled the pupil teachers to work their papers with less interruption than is often possible on the day of the inspector's parochial visit. But there are limits of convenience, as to distance and means or conveyance, in this, which cannot be overstepped without mischief. Few managers of schools would like their pupil teachers to go more than 10 miles from home. A journey of 20 miles (10 each way) in a farmer's open spring-cart, on a cold, wet day, a luncheon on cold bread and meat, and five hours' head work on examination papers, would endanger the health of many apprentices and their teachers accompanying them.

A distance of five or six miles should be the limit.

The system of apprenticeship has succeeded so as to secure the approbation of the managers of schools, of the principals of training colleges, of the inspectors, and of this Commission. But it has succeeded mainly because of the way in which the hourly influence of the teacher, and the authority of the clergy and the managers, have been in harmony with the final report of the inspector, to whose judgment and experience all are inclined to defer, because he acts from personal communication with all concerned, and not as a mere scholastitic calculating machine, but as a moral arbitrator. If there be any material change in this plan, I should expect the system of apprenticeship to give continually less and less satisfaction, and ultimately to fail.

But the proposals of the Commission, for the consolidation of the annual grants into three capitation grants are also liable to serious objections.

The grants proposed to be paid from the Consolidated Fund are :—

First. A grant of 5 s. 6 d. to 6 s. in schools containing less than 60 children, and from 4 s. 6*d.* to 5 s. in schools containing more than 60 children, to be paid per head, on the average number of children attending the school, where a certificated teacher is employed.

Secondly. A like capitation grant of 2 s. 6 d. where one duly qualified pupil teacher is employed for every 30 children in average attendance.

Thirdly. A payment of 20 s. on the average attendance of children under seven in infant schools, without examination or condition.

In

In page 586, the Commissioners report that the present payments from the Parliamentary grant, for certified teachers, amount to 3 s. 5½ d. per head on the average atendance of scholars in Church of England inspected schools, to 3 s. 3 d. per head in British inspected schools, and 4 s. 4 d. per head in denominational schools, and for pupil teachers (who are now employed in the proportion of one to every 50 scholars), the grant is at the rate of 6 s. 2¾ d. per head.

The grants to teachers and pupil teachers in Church of England inspected schools, amount together to 9 s. 8½ d. per scholar in attendance. But if one pupil teacher were now paid for by the Committee of Council for every 30 scholars in average attendance, the grant would be at the rate of 10 s. per head for that alone.

A proposal, therefore, to raise the capitation grant, on account of the employment of certificated teachers, from 3 s. 5½ d. to 5 s. 6 d., and at the same time to depress the rate of grant for pupil teachers, from what would be 10 s. under the present system to 2 s. 6 d., ought not to have proceeded from a Commission which approves the pupil teacher system so heartily, that it proposes to insist on an increase of more than one-third of their relative numbers. The managers are called on to decide whether they will incur a charge of 10 s. per scholar for a grant of 2 s. 6 d. per scholar. Throughout England and Wales, more than three-fifths of the children attend the same school less than two years, and more than two-fifths less than one year. If, therefore, it be replied that the managers might make up the difference by the fourth capitation grant proposed by the Commissioners for every child who may pass an examination in reading, writing, and arithmetic, the answer is, that there would obviously be more risk of failure than of success, since the migration of scholars is so frequent. The rate of capitation grant which the Commission propose to give on the average attendance, where certificated teachers and pupil teachers respectively are employed, is obviously an error which, in practice, would produce only confusion.

The capitation grant of 20 s., on the average attendance of children in infant schools under seven, is to be given without any examination, or so far as I can perceive, any other condition than the attendance of the child in a building of a certain size which can be reported to be not unhealthy.

This mode of administration would be novel, and, if expedient, might save all trouble but the keeping of registers. If the managers of infant schools are entitled to this confidence, good ground would have to be shown why it should not be extended to the managers of schools having children above seven years of age. If such a principle were adopted in practice, the whole machinery of public inspection, apprenticeships, and training colleges would have to be disused or disconnected from the education department, for it would have no administrative value whatever. All that would be needed for the administration of such an unconditional capitation grant would be a pay office and local audit clerks to examine registers of schools and certify claims founded on the attendance thus recorded. This cannot be the intention of the Commissioners, yet it is the necessary consequence of their proposal as it stands.

If even the infant schools to be thus aided were required to employ certificated teachers and pupil teachers in the present proportions, they would receive at least 20 s. per scholar from this form of grant, whereas the Committee of Council obtain the same result for 9 s. 8 ½ d. per scholar on the average attendance.

The Commissioners might have continued the present system of aiding infant schools, if they had not obviously shrunk from the contradiction of paying for the machinery of education trained and acting under inspection in these schools, while they repudiate the sufficiency of that system in boys' and girls' schools.

Turning from the capitation grants proposed by the Commission to be paid from the Consolidated Fund to that which is proposed to be charged on the county rate, we encounter a new principle of administration as applied to elementary schools. The Commission desire to increase the proportionate number of scholars who are able to pass an examination in reading, writing and arithmetic. For this purpose, they propose to make a capitation grant in a form which, in schools having only certificated teachers, might attain a maximum of from 9 s. to 10 s. 6 d. per head on the average attendance; which in those that had also the required number of pupil teachers might reach 7 s. per head; and in schools which had neither certificated teachers nor pupil teachers might reach any sum short of 22 s. 6 d. per head.

No condition is inserted in the scheme requiring subscriptions in any proportion to meet this fourth form of grant, for it is intended to encourage schools founded by independent or adventure teachers; nor is any stipulation even made as to school pence. The limitation in these respects applies only to the amount of grants from three sources of capitation collectively.

This fourth form of grant will be found to operate as far as it goes as a premium on discarding certificated teachers and pupil teachers; and on limiting instruction to reading, writing, and arithmetic. It is proper to illustrate its tendencies by extreme cases.

We might suppose a man, broken down in character, without a certificate, and without the technical knowledge required to obtain one, though with skill enough to teach reading, writing, and arithmetic. He registers himself as a schoolmaster, takes a cottage with a deserted loom-shop, or garret, 20 feet by 24 feet, or 16 feet by 30 feet. In this he puts writing desks, benches, and a grate or stove. At an outlay of a few pounds, and with the risk of five or seven pounds of annual rental he is a schoolmaster. He may be registered without examination (p. 96). He admits pupils solely with a view to claim the largest possible sum from the county rate. His scholars pay threepence or fourpence per week, conditionally that if regular in attendance for 150 days in the year, and if they pass their examination in reading, writing, and arithmetic, one-half the school pence is to be repaid to them. No scholars are admitted unless they can pass a certain preliminary examination. The children prepared by good infant schools are canvassed for and brought to this adventure school. He may even get the best scholars of the parochial or congregational school to attend for 140 days by some inducement to which the managers would not stoop, or which, in their case, would be subversive of discipline. The whole school-time is concentrated on the three subjects of instruction. Nothing else is taught. If 40 scholars attend and pass out of 60, probably 13 l. would be received from school pence, even though half were returned or lost, and the master could also receive 44 l. from the Government. He would have a clear income of 50 l. per year.

If we were to suppose such a man to have a patron willing to back him, either from opposition to the clergyman, or to the dissenting minister, or to the squire, or to the managing committee, or as a means of easily providing for one having claims of relationship or otherwise, or out of a spurious charity for a broken-down man, this grant may thus be made an effectual local blister, with the certainty of keeping the instruction limited to its lowest elements, without any moral redeeming qualities, and without any religious instruction. The Commissioners recognise the great moral and social benefits flowing from the schools of the religious communions. If, for the sake of argument, we were to admit that the arts of reading, writing, and cyphering would be more effectually taught on their plan, what becomes of the religious and moral influences, and the social bond?

But in an ordinary parochial school, which depends, as is too frequently the case, on some one individual for a third part or half of its resources (even supposing that the certificated teacher were employed), this grant would obviously, on the part of the teacher, be a strong motive to limit the instruction more and more to the three elementary subjects, and to concentrate all his efforts on them, in order to secure the 9 s. or 10 s. 6 d. per head which would still be attainable under the proposed scheme of grants. He would thus save his patron's purse, and establish claims on his gratitude. In other cases, a niggard patron, or committee, or managers starved in their resources, would eke out these funds by the most stringent limitation of the instruction to that which would pay. They would aim at securing the largest amount of grant for teaching these elements only.

This effort endangers not merely the religious instruction, the general information of the scholars, but even their understanding of what they read and their orthography. They are not required to write from dictation, nor to be examined in the meaning of what they read. The largest amount of this capitation grant can be obtained by sacrificing the moral and religious instruction, the intellectual training and general information, and restricting the instruction to a mechanical drill in the reading, writing, and arithmetic.

But any capitation grant, the distribution of which is determined by the results of instruction in schools, is liable to the fundamental objection that the average period of the attendance of the majority of scholars is so short, that, as far as that majority is concerned, few schools would be paid for the results of their their own work. In the specimen districts, 42·3 per cent. of the scholars (p. 659) had been in the same public week-day school less than one year, and 22·7 per cent. had been one year, but less than two years. These proportions for England and Wales are 41·65 per cent. of the scholars who had attended the same school less than one year, and 22·58 who had been one year and less than two years. With such migratory scholars, it is impossible justly to pay for work done in schools on any plan constructed to embrace those three-fifths of the scholars who attend school less than two years. The remaining 35·77 per cent. who attend more than two years are alone subjects for an examination of the results secured by the work of any school. This, however, is not the proposal of the Commission. Their proposal is to pay a capitation grant on every scholar who has attended 140 days in the preceding year, and can read, write, and cypher. A scholar cannot learn to read, write, and cypher so as to pass a public examination in two years, much less in 140 days. Any examination of the majority of more than three-fifths who attend less than two years must, therefore, obviously fail to ascertain how far even these elements have been taught to that majority in any school. If the remaining two-fifths who have been in the school more than two years were separated from the other scholars, and examined apart, some approximate estimate might be thus made of the work done in the school. If any grant could be devised, founded on the results of the school work, it must be proportionate only to the proficiency of this two-fifths of the scholars. But the working of any such grant was long ago examined, and rejected as full of difficulties which appeared insuperable.

I purposely confine my remarks to those practical recommendations of the Commissioners which affect the administration of the aid now distributed from the Parliamentary grant. In as far as the Report of the Commissioners approves of the present system, that sanction has its value, as the result of a careful critical analysis by a body of able men, selected because they had no previous connexion with this administration, and, for the most part, none with the controversies attending its establishment. Their Report, in the main agreeing with experience, points to a statesmanlike perseverance in those efforts, hitherto made with so much success, by the Committee of Council, to develope in the existing system all its civil and secular elements, in harmony with the religious, and also with liberty of conscience. But, where their Report departs from that system, I have endeavoured to show how difficult it is to do anything inconsistent with that experience.

The force which will ultimately transform the whole will be the result of education itself. When the people know that they have even more interest in the education of their children than their rulers have, they will more and more take charge of it. They now bear two-thirds of the burthen; but that third which they do not pay, has given value to what was before of little worth, and has thus created a transient power destined to pass from the Government into the hands of those who will take the charge. The transference of administrative power to the local managers and the parents, will attend the gradual assumption by them of the payment of the pupil teachers, and of the whole of the stipends of the certificated teachers, consequent on the effects of education on some generations of parents, and on the middle classes.

The Parliamentary grant has hitherto been so administered by the Committee of Council as to stimulate the investment of large sums in school buildings, by giving about one-third of their value. Between 1839 and 1860, grants amounting to 1,076,753 l. have caused an investment of subscriptions, amounting to 2,360,226 l. in school buildings; or, altogether, of 3,436,226 l. The grant has also promoted the rapid growth of the annual income of schools, by subsidies, at a similar rate of one-third the whole annual outlay, so that probably 2,000,000 l. annually are now expended in the support of schools. The Public Grant may, in a few years, increase with corresponding results to 1,000,000 l. or 1,200,000 l., making, in its progress, adequate provision for the education of youth from school age to manhood; but at that point, by well-devised antecedent expedients, its increase may not only be arrested, but this annual aid may be converted into an instrument, in the hands of skilful administrators, by which all the rest of the work may be done in the most apathetic as well as in the most earnest districts. That result attained, a new series of operations may commence, by which the charge of public education may be gradually transferred from the Consolidated Fund to the local sources of income, school pence, and subscriptions.

Both of these operations will be accelerated by giving to the Privy Council sufficient administrative authority over the charities applicable to the education of the poor.

The hopes of the voluntary educationists would thus, step by step, assume the form of probabilities or realities, through means which they have regarded with unwarrantable distrust. For, from the first, this system was composed of two elements: one of which, viz., the resource of Christian benevolence and parental solicitude, was, by the natural consequences of success, rendered capable of indefinite extension; while the other, the aid granted by Parliament, was destined as it grew, to awaken a jealousy and resistance, greater in a geometric ratio than its increase. It was therefore clear from the first, that if a system of aid from local rates were not adopted, the grant from Parliament must have an early limit, and must then be regarded as an instrument for the development of that other element in the system, which was capable of indefinite expansion. All proposals for deriving support for public education in England and Wales, from the local rates have failed; from Lord Brougham's early Bill to Sir James Graham's Education Clauses in his Factories' Bill in 1842; the Manchester and Salford Education Bill; and those of Lord John Russell and Sir John Pakington. To these failures, this Commission has added a proposal which, if it were practicable, is liable to the most grave objections. The question of deriving support for public education from the local rates is therefore probably settled in the negative.

But if it were not, it would be proper to observe at greater length on the difference between the tendencies of such a system, as respects its influence on voluntary support from parents and subscribers, when compared with that of the Parliamentary grant wisely administered. The tendency of the local rating system would be, not to stimulate but to benumb voluntary exertion. A subscriber might properly say, since local rates are by law established, "I see no reason why I should relieve the purses of absentee proprietors, or of niggardly residents, by my contribution." A parent would say, "If the schools are provided by law and paid for from the rates for the education of all who are disposed to send their children there, it is unjust to ask from me a payment so disproportionate to my means as school pence. I will pay the rate which is proportionate to my means, but not the school pence, which are disproportionate. I claim the education for my child as a citizen." Thus the sense of parental duty would be superseded by the policy of the State, which would wean the child from the parent. It is evident that neither subscriptions or school pence would long be paid under such a system. The whole of the three millions annually required to educate two millions of scholars would soon come to be charged on the local rates.

The opposite result of a gradual transference of the burthen to the local resources, school pence and subscriptions, might be attained by a wise administration of the Parliamentary grant, after it had attained the maximum which I have indicated.

In the impatience felt that all is not yet done, it is forgotten that seven years, from 1839, when the Committee of Council was founded, were chiefly expended in a succession of almost mortal conflicts, as to the principles on which the system of public education should be founded. The Minutes of 1846, and those of 1853, settled the course of administration, which, with modifications of detail, has since been pursued. Fifteen years are but a brief period for a great national change. All permanently beneficial improvements are the slow growth of secular development. Up to this time, the Minutes of Council have had a remarkable success, out-stepping the expectation of their authors, but rebuking hasty generalization, which had conceived that a national system of education could be extemporised on paper, approved in Parliament, and when made law, have a universal existence, like a new post-office administration, or a new tax.

These views, which are the gradual result of observation of the working of the education scheme, I desire to submit through your Lordship to the consideration of the Committee of Council on Education.

I have, &c.

Sir, 3, Dean-street, Park-lane, 27 January 1860.

I HAVE the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your circular of March last, in which you invite my opinion upon such portions of the subject of popular education in England as experience or thought may have rendered me especially familiar with.

Amount of experience.

My experience upon this subject commenced in 1839. At the latter end of that year I was appointed one of Her Majesty's Inspectors of Schools, and in that capacity I made reports to the Committee of Council on Education upon the general state of popular education in the mining district of South Wales, in Norfolk, in London and its neighbourhood, in regard to the schools of the British and Foreign Society, Reports on Poor Law Union Schools, and others of a similar nature.

In the year 1843 I was entrusted with the duty of causing the Act 5 & 6 Vict. c. 99, forbidding the employment in collieries of females, and of boys under 10 years of age, together with other matters, to be carried into effect, and I was at the same time commissioned to make annual reports to the Secretary of State, to be laid before Parliament, upon the general state and condition of the colliery population.

In the course of the latter duty, I have continued, up to the present time, to give a large portion of my attention to the state of elementary education in the colliery districts, with a view to promote the extension, as widely as possible, among the rising generation in those districts, of sound elementary instruction.

The portion of the population in those districts which is employed in the ironstone mines and in the iron works being so mixed up, and often interchangeably employed with those working in collieries, I have treated the whole as coming within the scope of my inquiries.

Also, although having nothing to do with the underground employments of the miner, all matters relating to underground inspection being under the Inspectors of Coal Mines, appointed under a separate Act, I have been led to look at the question of elementary education in those districts, in its bearing upon the general interests and employments of that part of the population, not only in a moral and intellectual, but in an industrial point of view.

Under the above circumstances it was natural that the general question of the mode of aiding elementary education in this country by Parliamentary grants, should have occupied much of my thoughts.

I may further mention that I have availed myself of opportunities of studying the the workings of the systems of popular education adopted in France, Germany, Holland, the United States, and Canada.

What was the object of the country in aiding local efforts by Parliamentary grants; and to what extent have those objects been realized?

In order to answer satisfactorily the inquiries proposed by the Education Commissioners, it appears to me necessary that there should be no misapprehension as to the precise object which Parliament and the country had in view, in commencing the system of aiding local efforts for the extension of elementary education, by Parliamentary grants.

Was it to offer to the whole of the labouring class, as that class is defined by the Commissioners, namely, to " the families of day labourers, mechanics, and the poorer classes " of farmers and shopkeepers," sound elementary instruction, without reference to their respective means of paying for it, and without any limitation as to what was included in the term " elementary instruction?"

If so, is that still the object and intention of Parliament and the country?

It was, without doubt, at the time of the formation of the Committee of Council on Education, now just 20 years ago, the prevailing opinion among those who were promoting the movement in favour of a greater extension of popular education, that it was essential to the general welfare, in the then existing state of society, that greatly increased facilities should be given for bringing elementary education within the reach of the whole labouring class, and offering to them, for a very moderate payment, not only the ordinary branches of reading (including grammar), writing, arithmetic, and the elements of religious knowledge, which were the staples of instruction at most of the existing schools, public and private; but also geography, singing, drawing, and the rudiments of historical knowledge, of mechanics, and of political economy. It was said that an acquaintance with these subjects, if gained by the children, would open the mind and improve the taste, and therefore raise the standard of intelligence among the lower classes of society.

It was anticipated that if those subjects were offered to be taught by good masters, and included in the same low rate of payment (1 d. or 2 d. per week) with the strictly necessary elementary subjects, the children of the labouring classes of all grades would take advantage of the opportunity, and would stay long enough at school to receive such instruction.

The experience of 20 years has shown that those anticipations have not been realised.

The demands for juvenile labour, the exigencies of parents, or their indifference, have caused the great mass of the children to attend very irregularly, and to leave the day school finally when about 10 years of age, often before. They have consequently obtained but little mastery over the primary subjects—reading, writing, and arithmetic—(almost the sole objects of their parents), and accordingly the difficulty of applying that little causes it to be of scarcely any use, and often to be almost all forgotten.

Upon the great mass therefore of the children of the labouring classes, the opportunities of learning the more advanced subjects above enumerated have manifestly been almost entirely thrown away.

As regards the rest, the small minority, it is important to know to what class they generally belong.

I have no doubt, from my own observation, that the inquiries of the Commissioners will show that this small minority belongs, with few exceptions, to the superior class of artisans, earning from 1 l. to 2 l. a week, and upwards, to the class of shopkeepers and small farmers, and to that of persons in subordinate but comparatively well-paid situations of trust and authority.

All these persons, if they wish their children to learn the more advanced subjects, can well afford to pay proportionately for it. They did pay to the old class of schools a much higher rate (4 d. to 6 d. per week, and upwards) than is now charged, except in a few rare instances, in the schools aided by public grants; and I believe it will be clearly shown that they continue to pay those high rates in private schools to which they prefer, for various reasons, to send their children.

It results from the above facts that if the great mass of the children who pass through the elementary schools aided by public grants acquire scarcely more than the rudiments of the arts of reading, writing, and arithmetic, and all this very imperfectly; and if the remaining few receive all but gratuitous instruction in the advanced subjects, for which the parents, if they wish it for their children, are well able to pay, the State is failing to give what it desires to those who are the proper objects of its assistance, and is spending more than it need upon the small minority who are not the proper objects of any such expenditure.

The time has arrived for reconsidering the mode of applying the public grants.

The time has therefore manifestly arrived when it is necessary that the country should reconsider the principles upon which the funds of the State have been applied for the last 20 years in furtherance of popular education.

If the acknowledgment of the necessity for this reconsideration may very allowably occasion no little disappointment, it is, nevertheless, equally allowable to feel that a review review of the present state of popular education, and of the general opinion regarding it, as compared with what existed 20 years ago, is, all drawbacks notwithstanding, calculated to afford much encouragement to those who have devoted their thoughts and energies to this subject. And if, on mature reflection, at the present time, it may appear desirable to modify some of the existing measures of the Government, it cannot admit of doubt that those measures have been productive of an immense amount of good.

The points that have been gained through the measures of the Government.

It is of importance to record briefly some of the principal points which may be said to have been effectually gained for the cause of popular education within the last 20 years.

1. Instead of contests between the Church, the different dissenting denominations, and the Government, and controversies between those who favoured and those who apprehended evil consequences from, and wished to obstruct popular education, there is a general acquiescence in the action of the Government through the Committee of Council on Education, and in most of its measures, and an almost universal desire to promote sound elementary education, religious and secular, among the labouring population.

2. Without disparagement to what had been previously effected by the National Society and by the British and Foreign School Society and others, it may be asserted that a far higher standard has been introduced and made familiar to the public mind, in everything on which the efficiency of elementary education depends.

Instead of the popular idea of a school for the labouring classes being for the most part limited, as regards its external aspect, to a small, or close, or ill-arranged room, school buildings have been erected all over the country in a style of architecture graceful, appropriate, and even beautiful, which cannot fail to raise the conception of a school in public estimation, and to give dignity to the profession of a schoolmaster.

Instead of the former class of masters, composed principally of broken-down workmen, or of men who had been unsuccessful in other pursuits, the increased social estimation of the schoolmaster, the higher emoluments and the encouragements held out by the pupil-teacherships and the training colleges, have attracted to the profession a body of teachers whose acquirements give them the power of teaching a great deal more than they usually are called upon to teach.

Instead of the harsh discipline, or the entire want of it, which was the general characteristic of the old kind of schools, a mode of conducting a school has been introduced through the training colleges which secures salutary discipline without severity; which appeals more to the moral sense, and tends to raise the moral tone; which corrects manners, represses bad language, and tends to soften asperities of character and conduct.

Instead of a poor supply of indifferent books (the Bible excepted), no school need now be without books and apparatus, most excellently adapted to every stage of elementary teaching in every department, the purchase of which at a greatly reduced price is facilitated to every school under inspection, by the arrangements of the Committee of Council.

3. Inspection, instead of being opposed, or looked upon with distrust and coldly welcomed, is invited, and its benefits are recognised in the improvements it has been the means of suggesting, and in the impulse it has given to the cause of elementary education.

All these points of progress and improvement are unquestionably matters for much legitimate satisfaction. Nevertheless, when we contemplate the annual public expenditure by which this system is sustained, and its prospective increase, and then look closely into the actual results, it is of imperative necessity to take another survey of the position from the point of view now arrived at.

Table (A.) of the Minutes should be arranged as above.

Premising that it would conduce much to the readier understanding of the state of the education grant, if the expenditure were for the future to be classified as above, instead of the various items being thrown together without order or classification, as in the existing Table A. (Report of 1858-9, p. xxi), I proceed to point out that the heaviest group of grants, that expended in aid of what may be termed the teaching-power of the schools, amounting in the gross to 435,307 l. 16 s. 11 d., is precisely the one, of the whole grant for education, most threatened with increase, especially since the recent enlargement of the basis of the capitation grant in England, and its proposed extension to Scotland; and so great is that prospective increase, that it has been estimated that, within a few years, the sum that may be demanded for the education grant may amount to upwards of 2,000,000 l.

Allowing for over-estimates of the total numbers to be provided for in day schools (as shown in my paper in the volume of the Education Conference in 1857, p. 168), the prospective increase of the grant under the present system must still be very considerable. I leave to others to discuss several general considerations arising out of this fact, and in particular whether such an expenditure can be fitly superintended by a department in London.

Easier now to adopt a different course than it will be hereafter.

I am of opinion that it would be wiser to embark upon another course before such an increase of expenditure has been reached; and that it is easier now to do so than it will be some years hence, when so many thousand more individuals have been encouraged by the present measures of the Government to enter upon their career of life, in reliance upon the permanence and prospective development of those measures.

Branches of expenditure which should be gradually reduced and finally abolished.

I, therefore, purpose assigning my reasons for thinking that the above sum of 435,307 l. 16 s. 11 d. should be gradually reduced year by year, and the whole finally saved to the State within a period of 10 years; and that of the sum of 58,442 l. 13 s. 11 d. for inspection, administration, &c., a large proportion should be saved within the same period; and I propose to show that a mode of action may be substituted which, according to my belief, would attain the end of diffusing sound elementary education among the labouring classes, in a shorter time than would be effected by the most liberal extension of the Parliamentary grant upon the existing plan, or by any plan founded on the principle of aiding elementary education by local rates, which has been usually looked to as the alternative, and against which public opinion appears to have definitively declared itself, under the conviction that more would be lost than could be gained by exchanging the voluntary system, imperfect as it has hitherto been, for one depending upon or assisted by rates.

It will be observed, on referring to the analysis of expenditure given above, that the remaining items are—

Branches of expenditure which would be permanent.

For school-buildings, books, and apparatus - - - - -	147,507	14	6
Pensions - - - - - - - - - - -	589	8	4
Reformatory and industrial schools - - - - - - -	27,025	15	1
Making a Total of - - - £.	175,122	17	11

Which alone, with the costs of inspection and administration (office in London), much reduced from what they are at present, I consider, under the state of circumstances now arrived at, to be the legitimate and permanent objects of the education grant.

These would be subject only to the comparatively small and gradual annual increase arising from the progress of school-buildings, from pensions to those entitled to expect them them, and from reformatory and industrial schools, should it please Parliament to continue to aid the two latter from the education grant, instead of placing them in connexion with the Poor Law Board, or otherwise upon the county rates, and from one other small item of a temporary character, to be hereafter mentioned, Appendix (A.) p. 24.

* This will be materially reduced in future, by Minute of 21 January 1860.

Guiding facts exhibited by the Report of 1858.

The following prominent and guiding facts are exhibited by the Report of the Committee of Council on Education for the year 1858.

As to attendance.

The average attendance at the schools visited on account of annual grants (Appendix, No. 1, p. 3,) was 672,728. The schools themselves are stated as meant to hold 1,012,554 children; consequently there was room for 339,826, or upwards of 50 per cent. more children than were in average attendance.

There were in average attendance at the schools visited for simple inspection only, 88,299 children; the schools themselves would hold 143,410 children, being 55,111, or upwards of 75 per cent. more children than were in average attendance.

The aggregate average attendance in both kinds of schools was 761,027; the schools themselves being capable of containing 1,155,964 children at eight square feet per child; there was, therefore, room for 394,937 more children than were in average attendance.

As to age.

It appears by the table annexed to the above, of the per-centage of children on the school registers, that in the schools visited on account of annual grants, very nearly 70 per cent. (69·79) were under 10 years of age, and very nearly 80 per cent. under 11 years of age.

In the schools visited for simple inspection only, 70·37 per cent. were under 10 years of age, and 80·71 per cent. were under 11 years of age.

As to length of ti at same school.

It appears also by the latter part of the same table, that nearly 80 per cent. (77·60) of the whole had been under 3 years in the same school, while only 22·30 per cent. had been there for three years and upwards. Upwards of 60 per cent. of the whole had been under 2 years in the same school.

From the tables upon the same subject at p. 3, it appears that, although the duration of time at the same school had slightly increased, the general result of the average of the last five years is substantially to the same effect, namely, that upwards of 80 per cent. (80·44) of the children had been less than three years at the same school, of whom nearly 66 per cent. (65·98) had been less than two years; while from the table of comparative age, from 1850 to 1858, it also appears that nearly 67 per cent. (66·96) of the scholars in inspected schools were under 10 years of age, and upwards of 88 per cent. (88·47) under 11 years of age.

Questions which arise from those facts.

The first question which suggests itself upon the above facts is, whether the expense incurred by the Government in aid of the teaching power of the schools, and in inspection, is not out of all proportion to the results obtained, or that can be expected to be obtained, under the existing system.

The next question is, whether the whole sum expended by the Government in aid of the teaching power of the schools, namely, in stipends to public teachers, in salaries to teachers, and in capitation grants, which amounted last year to 351,187 l. 8 s. 10 d., could not, if necessary for maintaining and improving the standard of elementary education, be raised in another way, without any assistance from the Government; and whether the same rule might not be applied to the sum now expended upon the training colleges.

As regards the first question, I think there cannot be a doubt that the large expenditure of the Government in aid of the teaching power of the schools is looked upon with dissatisfaction by many disinterested and independent persons in Parliament and elsewhere, not only in itself, but in reference to its great prospective increase, when taken in connexion with the fact of this large amount of teaching power being employed upon children of the age and acquirements above described. It may reasonably be argued, that if teachers so qualified are required, those who are instructed by them should pay for them, at all events, in larger proportion than they do at present; that the present mode of providing part of their salaries from the Government grant teaches both the parents of the children and the local supporters of schools to rely upon the Government instead of upon themselves; that however desirable it may have been for the Government to step forward and accustom the people to a better description of school, and a higher class of teachers than existed 20 years ago, that point has been now attained; every one now knows what a good school is or ought to be, and no one would consent to go back to the old standard: and that if schools and their supporters were thrown gradually upon their own resources, by the withdrawal of the Government aid to the teaching power at a defined rate per annum, the whole terminating in 10 years, by which time the present system would have been in force, if not fully, at least in its spirit, for nearly 30 years, the entire sum might be made up from the increase of present sources of income.

In considering the second question (namely, how that sum might be made up), it is necessary to analyse the income and expenditure of schools visited on account of annual grants, as given at page 11 of the Report for 1858, and the centesimal proportion of payments of school pence, as given in the table, page 15.

According to the table at page 11, the income of an ascertained number of schools (4,690) visited on account of annual grants in 1858 was, from school pence, 228,211 l. 14 s. 10 d., paid by 624,949 children, or 1 ¾ d. per head per week for 48 weeks.

From the table at page 15 it appears, that upon a return embracing 754,705 children, the centesimal proportion of payments of school fees was as follows:—

Paying per week—
One penny and less than two pence - -	35·12 per cent.
Two pence and less than three pence - -	38·25 „
	73·37 per cent.
Three pence and less than four pence - -	16·17 per cent.
Four pence - - - - - - - -	6·86 „
Over four pence - - - - - - -	3·6 „
	26·09 per cent.

Can the rate of payment of school fees be increased?

Now, since so large a portion as upwards of 73 per cent. of the children pays only from 1*d.* to 2*d.* per week, and so small a portion from 3*d.* to 4*d.* only, the question arises, Can the parents who pay these sums respectively afford no more? And if the want of the means of paying more is not the obstacle with the great majority, as is now generally acknowledged, under what stimulus could they be induced to appropriate a larger weekly payment for their children's instruction?

That the want of means is not the obstacle with a very large number is proved by the fact that parents in precisely similar circumstances do now in fact pay higher rates to what are called private schools, which a large number of the labouring classes prefer for their children, because they erroneously suppose either that a better education is to be received at them on account of the payments being higher, or that it is more respectable to send their children to schools which have a decided character of independence, inasmuch as such schools receive no aid from any one, nor can in any respect be looked upon as charity schools.

That the want of means is not the obstacle with nearly all the remaining portion may safely be inferred from the acknowledged higher rate of wages which now prevails among nearly all sections of the labouring classes, so that if the parents send their children to school at all, the difference between 1*d.* and 2*d.* per week, or between 2*d.* and 3*d.*, or between 3*d.* or 4*d.*, to those who are now paying the smaller sums respectively, cannot, under the existing circumstances and prospects, and the known habits of the labouring classes, be so important as to prevent their paying the higher sum of each grade, if they saw an adequate motive for doing so. There can be few comparatively, who, while they keep their children at school at all, could not, with a small exercise of self-denial, pay the next highest rate to their actual payment, at all events for one child. The small minority who could not, and those who, by reason of real poverty, were unable to pay, even for one child's schooling, are the legitimate objects of private charity, or might be provided for by a modification and extension of the Act 18 & 19 Vict. c. 34, commonly called Mr. Denison's Act,—in its present state, I believe, nearly inoperative.

Given therefore a sufficient motive to produce the above result, what would be the increase of income derived from the school fees?

Amount of increase under adequate stimulus.

The object being to replace the sum of 351,187*l.* 8*s.* 10*d.*,—the sum spent by the Government last year upon stipends, salaries, and capitation grants,—we must take the number of scholars in average attendance last year in all the schools visited on account of those grants, namely, 672,728.

An additional penny per head per week for 48 weeks would yield for the school year - - - - - - - - - - - - - - -	134,544
But the schools in which there were in average attendance only 672,728, would hold 1,012,554 children; consequently, as adverted to above, at p. 9, there was room for 339,826 more children.
If the adequate motive were found which would induce the parents of the labouring class to pay an additional penny a week for the children now sent to these schools, it may be assumed that it would operate very widely beyond the existing numbers of the parents patronising, and the children frequenting, those schools.
I do not think it is assuming too much to say that it would operate to fill the existing schools.
If it did so, the additional income from 339,826 children at the average above assumed by the additional penny, namely, at 2¾*d.* per head per week, would amount to - - - - - - - - - - - - - -	186,864
Giving a Total of - - -	£. 321,408

Or not far short of the present annual grant in aid of salaries, &c. of 351,187*l.* 8*s.* 10*d.*

But another source of income would be restored to the teachers by the cessation of the pupil-teacher system on its present footing, and the consequent withdrawal of the restriction in regard to teaching in evening schools; which a great majority of masters are quite equal to, for three or four evenings a week.

If

If only one half of the number of teachers of the * 4,690 schools which contributed the 624,949 children referred to in p. 5, were to make 10 l. a year only by their evening schools, a sum of 23,450 l. would be added to their available resources, which would raise the total to a sum nearly equal to that now received in aid of salaries, &c. from the public grant, namely to 344,906 l.

The amount, therefore, would be nearly made up without any additional demand upon the voluntary contributions, which were, for the above schools, 214,537 l. 12 s. 2 d., or from the "other sources," which were 62,665 l. 1 s. 7 d. for the same year (1858), according to the same table at p. 11 of the report, above referred to; and this at the moderate estimate above given.

But in regard to the voluntary contributions, it is to be remarked that they constitute less than 40 per cent. (39·5) of the total income of the above schools from all sources (546,750 l. 19 s. 2 d.), as given in the table at p. 11. It would appear therefore that, considering the number of persons in each locality,—representing a large amount of the property in each,—whose names are not yet found among the subscribers to individual schools, it may be anticipated that some portion at least of any deficiency not made good according to the above calculation, would be supplied by an increase of the voluntary contributions; fully enough, in all probability, to cover what results from infant schools being included in the calculation.

To illustrate the above by an individual example, the case may be taken of a teacher who receives from the various sources now open to him from the public grant, the large addition of 30 l. to his income. Supposing those resources to be withdrawn, that sum might be made up from the three sources above indicated, namely, say 10 l. from increased fees, 10 l. from the evening school, and 10 l. from increased voluntary contributions. It is, however, very possible that the whole might be made up from the first two sources, under the stimulus hereinafter proposed.

Again, the calculation assumes that the whole number of pupil teachers, the recipients of the grant of 221,719 l. 5 s. 9 d. for 1858, would be retained, at their present average payment of 15 l.† per annum, or about 6 s. per week; whereas, it may be fairly argued that for the instruction of schools, 70 per cent. of the children in which are under 10 years of age, monitors paid at the rate of 6 l. or 8 l. per annum, or from 2 s. 4 d. to 3 s. per week, would very sufficiently supply the place of a large proportion of them.

This would be in accordance with an opinion of their Lordships the Committee of Council on Education, in their Minute, p. 17 (Report for 1858), and which appears to me to be susceptible of more general application than the one given to it in the text. They state, in reference to a portion of the annual grant, that "the reasons for special encou- "ragement, which were legitimate in an earlier stage of the present system, have ceased." And in the same paragraph (5) they recommend the employment of paid monitors, where the pupil teachers exceed a certain number.

Objections answered

It may be objected that as it is more difficult to teach young and ignorant children than old, the want of pupil-teachers of the present grade in sufficient numbers to teach the lower classes, would be felt in the slower progress of those classes. This would be undoubtedly true; monitors would not get those classes on so quickly as pupil-teachers. But rapidity of progress in those classes, in learning to read, write, and cipher, is not the especial aim of the Government. Experience has shown that the quicker those elementary subjects are learnt, the sooner in many districts do the children leave school altogether. This may be a pecuniary gain to the parent, who has the benefit of the child's earnings at an earlier age, but it is not what the Government has in view in subsidising teachers and pupil-teachers. It is, in point of fact, the direct contrary of what was hoped 20 years ago, and anticipated; and it is attended also with disadvantage to the child in two ways; the moral influence resulting from a longer period under school discipline is lost; and the more immature mind of the child is less capable of retaining the little it has learnt.

Again, if it is objected that in estimating the possible increase of school fees to the extent of producing an average of 2¾ d. per head per week (the present average being 1¾ d. for annual grant schools, i. e. 228,211 l. 14 s. 10 d., from an average attendance of 624,949, table, p. 11), I have exceeded what can safely be reckoned upon, I beg to appeal to the following considerations:

I conceive it highly desirable to hold forth a standard of payment, by coming up to which the labouring classes will have the pride and satisfaction of paying a sum which will more nearly approximate to the real cost of their education, and will to that extent relieve themselves, and the schools which are denominated public elementary schools, from the stamp of dependence and charity, which now lowers those schools in their estimation, and induces many among them to send their children in preference to private schools, where they usually are worse instructed.

I am confident that that standard of payment would not be found too high, under the arrangements

* The total number of certificated teachers employed in teaching on 31st December 1858, was:—
Males, 3,568; Females, 2,320; Total, 5,888 (Table, p. xxviii.).
Assistant-teachers: Male, 184; Female, 59; Total, 243.

† Report of 1858 (p. xxxi.). Total number of pupil-teachers 31st December 1858, 14,024 (p. xxviii.). Total number, May 1859, 15,000 (p. xxxii.).

arrangements and the stimulus which I am about to propose in a subsequent page (p. 10, et seq.), and for the following reasons.

In the first place, it is seen by the centesimal proportion of payments, p. 6, that 35 per cent. of the labouring class would only be required to increase their payments from 1*d.* to 2*d.* per week. This 35 per cent. would include a very large proportion of the labouring class receiving the lower rates of wages; such as the portion of agricultural labourers receiving the lower rates, and similarly situated persons of other classes. If any among these could not, by reason of having large families, or of wishing to keep more than one child at school at a time, afford such increase, those are precisely the instances where private benevolence would be most likely to come in aid.

In the second place, I think there cannot be a doubt that those at the other end of the centesimal scale (p. 6), amounting to nearly 30 per cent. of the whole, could well afford even more than the additional penny per week; composed as they are, for the most part, of children of the more highly paid artizans, or of small shop-keepers; a class which already pays much more than those rates at private schools.

Thirdly, of the 38 per cent. in the intermediate part of the scale, paying 2*d.* per week, it may also fairly be said that a large portion of them will be of the same class as those specified in the last paragraph, and will have no difficulty in paying the higher rate of 3*d.* per week.

I believe, therefore, that I am entitled to assume that an average of even 3*d.* per week is attainable, as I shall show further on.

But I have intentionally stated the case more unfavourably to my own views than need be; for I have assumed that it is necessary to provide for the replacing of the whole sum that would be withdrawn from the income of the day schools by the cessation of the annual grant. I will, therefore, present the case from another point of view.

It has been seen above, (p. 7), that there are good grounds for concluding that paid monitors at 2*s.* 4*d.* to 3*s.* per week may be substituted to a great extent for the pupil-teachers at 6*s.* per week.

I will assume, from what has been already urged upon that point, that this may be done, without detriment, to the extent of one-half.

If this were effected, a reduction of, in round numbers, 55,000*l.* a year would be produced, in the expense of conducting the schools (i. e., present cost of pupil-teachers 222,000*l.*; one-half retained, 111,000*l.*; monitors at 3*s.* per week substituted for the other half, 55,000*l.*)

But is this 55,000*l.* the only sum to be calculated upon? Is it to be admitted, that on the withdrawal, by the Government, of the annual grant, there will be no increase in the voluntary contributions? Can it be said that assistance to those schools has reached its limit at the present sum, 214,537*l.*? Can this be for a moment entertained in the face of such facts as the following: 1st. That the net annual value of property assessed to the poor's rate increased from 62,540,000*l.* in 1840–41, to 67,700,153*l.* in 1849–50 (the last return), and has notoriously greatly increased since, while the rate of levy in the pound which was 2*s.* 0·4*d.* in the first period, and 2*s.* 1·8*d.* in the second, cannot have materially increased since, inasmuch as the rate of levy upon the estimated population has only slightly increased, namely, from 8*s.* 2*d.* per head in 1847 to 8*s.* 5½*d.* in 1858 (Eleventh Annual Report of the Poor Law Board (1858–59), pp. 38 and 118). 2dly. That the income of the country, as shown by the three Schedules A., B., and D. of the income tax (relating to lands and tenements, &c., and trades and professions), according to the estimate of the Chancellor of the Exchequer in his Financial Statement of 15th February of this year, had been in 1842, 154,000,000*l.*; in 1853, 172,000,000*l.*; in 1857–58, 191,000,000*l.*; and in 1858–59, 200,000,000*l.*; being an increase in the first period of 12 per cent. in eleven years, and an increase in the last period of 16½ per cent. in six years. 3dly. That the voluntary contributions to an ascertained number of schools have not increased in relative proportion to the number of children in average attendance, but, on the contrary, have rather decreased, as shown by the following figures:

YEARS.	Voluntary Contributions.	Children in Average Attendance.	Ratio of Contribution to Numbers per Cent.	Amount of Contribution per Head.
1852-53 - - - -	119,612 18 1¾	339,893	35·2	6 9½
1853-54 - - - -	114,444 1 0¾	329,040	34·7	6 11½
1854-55 - - - -	149,688 6 7¾	431,378	34·6	6 11¼
1855-56 - - - -	187,776 7 1½	519,798	36·1	7 2¼
1856-57 - - - -	194,900 4 7½	545,244	35·1	7 1½

The

The encouraging fact, on the other hand, which appears from the above figures is, that the actual amount of voluntary contribution has increased with the increased demand upon them arising from the greater numbers of children under education.

Is it, therefore, too much to anticipate that on the Government throwing the schools on their own resources for their annual support, as it may now do most justly, some not inconsiderable addition may, wherever the need shows itself, be looked for from voluntary contributions, which, even if the total sum contributed be quadruple the above, would still represent but a fraction of the enormous income of the country?

I have shown that a margin of 55,000 l. can with reasonable assurance be calculated upon. There is also this further and not inconsiderable one from increased voluntary contributions. Taken together they may fairly be expected to meet any "deficiency not "made good according to the above calculations" at p. 6.

How the existing number of pupil-teachers to be disposed of.

It is desirable in this place to state what would be a just mode of disposing of the existing number of pupil-teachers.

It may fairly be urged on behalf of those in the fourth and fifth year of their apprenticeship, that they may have so far looked forward to the near approach of the time when they would participate in the advantages of the present system as teachers, as to have a claim that their expectations should be fulfilled. These, therefore, numbering according to the Table at p. xxviii, 4,078, should be placed in the category of teachers, and dealt with according to the proposition in a subsequent paragraph.

The remainder,—those in the three first years of their apprenticeship,—might have the option of continuing their services until the expiration of their five years, upon the present footing. The excellent education they would receive,—tending to procure them valuable employment in other lines of life, should they not adopt the profession of teaching,—would, with the annual payment for their services, leave them without any ground of complaint.

Thus, at the end of five years, the whole sum of 221,719 l. 5 s. 9 d., now paid in stipends to pupil-teachers, and gratuities for their instruction, would cease to appear in the education grant, and the great increase upon it now in prospect would be avoided.

How grant in aid of salaries to masters, &c., to be disposed of.

The remaining sum of 129,468 l. 3 s. 1 d. making with the above the 351,187 l. 8 s. 10 d. under consideration), composed of 74,041 l. 3 s. 8 d. salaries of certificated masters and mistresses, 49,522 l. 3 s. 7 d. capitation grants, and 5,904 l. 5 s. 10 d. salaries of assistant teachers, should be withdrawn from the grant in 10 years at the rate of nearly 13,000 l. a year, a reduction of one-tenth per annum being made under those three respective heads, in the rate of assistance to masters, mistresses, and assistant-teachers.

The sum, however, of 129,468 l. 3 s. 1 d. would not represent the exact sum to be dealt with. To it must be added the assistance, at the rate now in force, to the 2,136 pupil-teachers in the fourth year of their apprenticeship, and the 1,942 in their fifth on the 31st December 1858 (Table p. xxviii), total 4,078, plus those who may have since been added in those years; all of whom would, according to the proposition, be placed in the same situation as regards assistance from present sources, as if they were already masters or mistresses or assistant-teachers, until the expiration of the 10 years above mentioned.

Main question, Can adequate stimulus be pointed out?

The main question therefore arises: Can any adequate motive be pointed out which is likely so to operate upon the minds of the labouring classes as to make them willing to pay the higher rates above adverted to, and, further, to cause the schools to be filled from the large proportion of children of school-age not now attending school?

To be found in an extension of the principle of the prize-schemes.

I contend that such a motive can be pointed out in the extension of that system of public examination and public recognition and reward, in the prize-schemes, that has been already attended with so much success over a large proportion of the kingdom.

These associations for offering prizes to be competed for by large groups of schools have appealed successfully to the principle of emulation, and the desire of public approval and reward, the stimulus afforded by which is equally felt by all classes, but in the effects of which, as far as education is concerned, the labouring classes have, until the prize-schemes were set on foot, had no opportunities of participating.

If the prize schemes have done as much as they have, and become so numerous, by private efforts alone, I contend that it may be legitimately inferred that if the principle were adopted and made general by the co-operation of the Government, the additional weight given to it, the credit attaching to the passing a good examination, and the publication of the lists of all who came up to a certain standard, with the consequent very possible advantage resulting from it in the way of obtaining employment, would attract the attention of the working classes so forcibly that it would create a universal desire among them that their children should participate in the credit and advantage of the competition, although no pecuniary rewards might be given as in the prize-schemes; but there would be good grounds for anticipating that individuals would combine to offer prizes to be competed for by the candidates of each group of schools, as in the prize-schemes.

Origin, progress, and present position of the prize-schemes.

It is necessary towards understanding the mode in which I should propose that this plan of a general examination should be carried into effect, that I should state briefly the origin, progress, and present position of the prize schemes.

In November 1850, I addressed a circular to the iron and coal masters of South Staffordshire, in which, on certain grounds mentioned therein, I suggested to them the formation of an association for offering prizes to a certain number of schools within that district.

I urged among other things that although "the principle of excitiug emulation by prizes "has for generations been acted upon at our public schools and universities, and at the "schools generally for the upper and middle classes, the only schools to which no such "stimulants to exertion and to effectual education are usually offered are those which, from "the circumstances of the case, are most in need of such aid" (Report on Mining Districts for 1851, p. 44); and in my personal communications with them, I represented the great moral weight which would attach to their act of "coming forward as a body" in support of "a plan of educational improvement which treats their district as a whole, with the ameli- "oration of every portion of which they have some concern" (p. 9).

Having submitted the plan to the inspector of the district, the Rev. J. P. Norris, and it having met with his approval (p. 43), I proceeded to ascertain from the iron and coal masters, who had very readily signified to me their desire to give the plan their support, the amount of annual subscriptions they would be willing to contribute. In a very short time the whole sum necessary was raised (155 l. per annum). The bishop of the diocese, the archdeacons, the clergy, and several of the most influential persons of the district, gave their zealous co-operation; the Committee of Council on Education, on my application, permitted Mr. Norris to give his valuable services towards arranging the details; and, after much consideration and many communications between several of those gentlemen, Mr. Norris, and myself, the first rules were drawn up, and the scheme came into operation (p. 29 of Report on Mining Districts for 1852). In March 1852 Mr. Norris examined the first set of candidates from 18 schools. A few days afterwards, at a meeting for the distribution of the prizes, the Archdeacon of Stafford in the chair, 86 prizes were delivered, accompanied with a large card, printed in colour, and ornamented with an appropriate design, testifying to the fact of the prize gained, the nature of the examination, and the general good conduct of the child obtaining it (p. 32 of Report for 1852).

The valuable reports of Mr. Norris during the next few years upon this association, upon two formed immediately after by himself for North Staffordshire and Shropshire, and upon a fourth formed conjointly by Mr. Norris and myself for the district of South Staffordshire and Worcestershire west of Dudley, showing the good effect which, with the aid of the improvements of detail which Mr. Norris's zeal, labour, and experience suggested, they were producing, directed public attention towards this mode of stimulating sound elementary education among the labouring classes.

My representations of the success of those associations led to the formation of one for the mining district of Northumberland and Durham; and I was enabled in the next few years to induce the principal employers of mining labour and many of the most influential persons of all classes, to form similar associations for the mining portions of Derbyshire, Nottinghamshire, and Leicestershire, for a part of Yorkshire, and for the mining districts of Monmouthshire, East Glamorganshire, and West Glamorganshire, and Carmarthenshire.*

The knowledge of the useful effects of these associations has led to the formation of several others in various parts of the country, namely, the Birmingham, the Worcester Archidiaconal, the Coventry Archidiaconal, the Hereford Diocesan, the Exeter Diocesan, the Oxford Diocesan, the Salisbury Diocesan, the Gloucester, the Gloucestershire, the Honiton, Sidmouth, and Axminster, and the Allhallows (Cumberland), and others (see List at p. 20); in all, with those in the mining districts, 23 associations, embracing, as is readily perceived, a large portion of the kingdom. All these, with two or three exceptions, publish their reports annually, accounts of which I have given from time to time in my own reports on mining districts. All testify to the good results in bringing out, by an impartial examination, the real state of elementary instruction, in creating a stimulus to exertion throughout the schools themselves, and in causing great gratification among both parents and children, by the distribution of the prizes and cards at a public meeting presided over by some person of eminent station in the district, and the subsequent publication of the names of all those who have gained prizes, and their relative position as to acquirements as shown by the examination.

It may be assumed that these 23 associations, and others now in course of formation (see p. 20), would not have come into existence during the short period of six or seven years, in parts of the country so different from each other, in mining districts, in large towns, and in purely rural districts, had not the principle on which they are founded been a sound one, and had not the results been seen to correspond with what had been anticipated.

The associations in the mining districts were formed by the aid of Her Majesty's Inspectors of Schools, and the examinations for the prizes offered have been conducted by them. But those in the large towns and in the rural districts have been set on foot and organized, and the examinations under them have been conducted entirely by members of the associations themselves, who had been led to form them by their acquaintance with the results of those in the mining districts. This fact has developed a circumstance of much importance towards the subject in hand, namely, the facility with which the examination of candidates belonging to large groups of schools has been conducted in the rural districts; the candidates having been collected in minor groups at convenient centres, and examined simultaneously, that is, on the same day, from papers of questions prepared beforehand and distributed on the appointed day. The latest example with which I am acquainted is that of the Oxford Diocesan Prize Association, which, in July last, examined 655 children,

* The number of candidates in the whole of the Prize-scheme Associations in the mining districts alone, in 1858, was 2,765 (Report on Mining Districts for 1859, p. 22).

children, from 116 parishes in the archdeaconries of Oxford, Berks, and Bucks, at 34 centres; "the rural dean, or Inspector, or some clergyman deputed by them, superintend" ing the examination."

But the principle of stimulating exertion by the examination of candidates from large groups of schools in competition with each other, and by public recognition and approval, has not been confined to the schools of the labouring classes. Shortly after the success of the first associations in Staffordshire had been demonstrated, Mr. Harry Chester proposed to the Society of Arts to offer prizes to be competed for by candidates from groups of mechanics' institutes, a movement which has been attended with very marked success. Not long afterwards, Mr. Acland, M. P., introduced the same system among a certain number of middle-class schools in the West of England. This, in its turn, was followed by the great and important movement of the two Universities of Oxford and Cambridge, to undertake the examination of candidates from middle-class schools in all parts of the kingdom. Sir James Kay Shuttleworth has also successfully applied the same principle to a group of mechanics' institutes and evening schools in Lancashire.

A recent incident in relation to the Oxford and Cambridge movement has an important bearing, as I shall hereafter show more particularly, upon the proposition submitted in this paper. The incident referred to is the following: At the conference of middle-class schoolmasters lately held in London, the opinion was expressed, that "but one " examination should be held annually, and that to take place at all the centres simul- " taneously."

I contend that all the circumstances above mentioned, the extension of the prize-schemes, the adoption of the principle of examining candidates from large groups of mechanics' institutes and of middle schools, the facility with which these examinations are conducted, the arrangements by which they are already made simultaneous in a large number of schools, and the proposal that this plan of simultaneous examination should be adopted for the Oxford and Cambridge examinations,—gave additional strength to the suggestion made in my paper read before the Educational Conference in London in June 1857, and published in their volume of Essays.* In that paper, after reviewing the effect of the prize-schemes, I state my belief that much more may be done by appealing still further to the principle of emulation in the children, and to the natural pride and self-interest of the parents, by affording an opportunity for all boys (to which girls may now be added) to pass a public examination, and to put on record the amount of their attainments at the time of their leaving school.

The above facts strengthen the suggestions contained in my Essay in the volume of the Conference on Education in 1857.

When that suggestion was made, there were only 16 prize-scheme associations; there are now 23.

There were in 1857 only 25 inspectors of schools, whose services I thought might be permitted by the Council on Education to be given to the proposed examinations (there were then also 14 assistant inspectors); there were, in 1858, 54 inspectors and assistant inspectors (Report for 1858, p. x). The official list in May 1860, shows that they are now 60. Of these I reckon that 50 might be available for the purpose in question in England and Wales. I exclude Scotland from view at the present moment, but it would be perfectly easy to apply the same principle to Scotland if it should be thought fit.

I have shown so fully in the paper above-mentioned how such examinations might be conducted, the time they would take, the subjects of examination, and the mode of recording the results, that I need do no more in this place than refer to it. The general reasonings will be found especially from p. 181 to p. 193 of the volume of Essays, and the details of the plan in the three following pages.

Instead of groups of 25 schools only, which I there contemplated by way of illustration, candidates from groups of near 40, near 60, and upwards of 100 schools, including both boys and girls, have been since examined under the prize-schemes, some with, some without the aid of Her Majesty's inspectors, either in organizing or examining.

Additional experience has been gained as to the facilities for conducting the examinations of large numbers in a few hours on several subjects; as to the fairest arrangements for the competition and for stating the results; and as to the publication of the class-lists with the name, age, and place of every child according to the marks obtained for each subject.

The readiness of large numbers of competent and influential persons to regulate, take part in, or superintend these examinations, has been proved.

The annexed skeleton map of England and Wales, on which I have coloured in red the area covered by the prize-schemes, shows how large a portion ef the country is already embraced in their organization. This organization has been effected over more than half, and that the most difficult, because the purely rural portion, of this area, without any aid asked from or given by Her Majesty's inspectors. Over the rest, their aid has, with few exceptions, been almost exclusively confined to the process of conducting the examinations, and to reporting the result.

It would seem only natural that the Government should take up and aid in making general, what has been already so far effected and prepared for them.

Were

* I was not aware, until after the publication of that paper, that 10 years previously a somewhat similar suggestion was made by the Rev. James Booth, LL.D., F.R.S., &c., &c., in a pamphlet entitled "Examination the Province of the State." (John W. Parker, West Strand, 1847.) Dr. Booth's experience and my own had led us on, many points, to similar conclusions.

Strong stimulus which would be given to elementary education by such general examination as is proposed.

Were they to do so, I think that a legitimate confidence might be felt that so strong a stimulus would be given by the prospect of the examination, open alike to all, and the fairness of which would be guaranteed by the co-operation of Her Majesty's inspectors and other independent persons, that a very considerable proportion of children, who now attend so irregularly and leave school so early as to derive no permanent benefit from it, would be anxious and able to show that, on leaving the day school, they have obtained the elements of instruction in a manner to be useful to themselves, and to make themselves useful to their future employers.

"As things are at present," (to recur to the words of the Essay above-mentioned, "p. 183–8,) "the great crowd of boys [children] who pass through the schools rapidly and "attend irregularly, . . . generally speaking end their school-lives without receiving "themselves, or being able to show to their parents or to employers of labour, the least "token that their progress, such as it may be, has met with any public recognition. Such "boys feel that they have nothing to aim at; and the parents find that the boys have "nothing to gain by remaining at school after they have learnt the little that, in the idea of "the parents, comes within the word 'schooling.'"

"The result of such a public examination as has been described would speak for itself. "Good writing, correct spelling, correct arithmetic, as far as attempted, and, if any boy was "capable of anything further, correct grammar and some little knowledge of geography, "or of some other subject, would appear upon the face of a large number of the examina- "tion books* . . . . A new motive for regularity of attendance and diligence at school "would be supplied, by holding out to each boy [child] a definite object to work for, "namely, that of recording in a book, on a public occasion, his actual attainments pre- "viously to [at the time of] leaving the day school. . . . It would excite emulation among "the boys [children] themselves, and probably lead many to urge their parents to allow "them to stay long enough at school to obtain this record of what they could do. . . . . "This book would be looked upon with pride and pleasure by the better class of parents, "and could scarcely fail to be gratifying to those who are now indifferent to the education "of their children. It might be expected, therefore, to lead in both cases to their children "receiving better and more durable impressions from their attendance at school. . . . An "employer to whom this book might be presented by a boy wishing to be engaged would "see at a glance what a boy's attainments and character were when he left school, and "might from that form some judgment of the boy's general capacity. . . . The knowledge "that these school certificates had become, in many instances, a recommendation for em- "ployment, and perhaps, in some cases, for employment of a better kind, would soon spread "among the parents, and afford a tangible and intelligible motive to them for giving their "children enough 'schooling' to enable them to produce a creditable record of it in their "examination book. . . . By degrees so many boys [children] would be in possession of ". . . examination books, that it would seem reasonable to anticipate that the combined "example and numbers, and the instances of the material advantages flowing from those "distinctions, [including those of the prize-schemes,] would contribute to form a new kind "of public opinion among that class of the population in relation to education, inducing "them to fix their mark higher, and leading them by its results, moral and material, to a "truer estimate of the value of intellectual resources, and of early moral and religious in- "struction and training at school."

Alteration of the mode of inspection to which the adoption of the general examination would lead.

The new principle which this proposed general examination would lead to as regards inspection would be that of judging by results, instead of examining into the processes by which the results of elementary instruction, such as they are, are now attained.

Twenty years ago it was of great importance to examine into the processes, to familiarise the public with their then existing defects, and to introduce to general notice the better processes which were recommended by the experience of other countries. In 1837, when the Central Society of Education (of which I was one of the original members) published its first volume, the number of persons who had made themselves personally acquainted with the arrangements and methods of elementary teaching on the Continent were very few. The labours of Lord Brougham, the efforts of Mr. Wyse (late M.P. for Waterford), and of others in Parliament and elsewhere, had not penetrated far into the public mind. There was a strong disinclination to depart from the methods pursued by the National Society and by the British and Foreign School Society. The first inspectors of schools, and those appointed by the Committee of Council on Education during the first few years after 1839, were usefully engaged, not only in the examination of schools, but in diffusing a knowledge of better methods, better internal arrangements, better modes of discipline, and higher aims generally they they found existing; and they had before them the more difficult task of persuading others of the correctness of their views. Instead of Norwood and Battersea being the only places, as they then were, where those views were demonstrated, they are now generally adopted throughout the kingdom, and 36 training colleges under inspection, situated in various parts of the country, are not only training masters and mistresses, but making every one, in the least degree interested in the subject of elementary education, acquainted acquainted with the characteristics of a good school, and what is required and expected from a good teacher.

The missionary portion, therefore, if the expression may be used, of the inspector's duties is no longer required in the same direction. Neither can I think that the formal examination of schools, 70 per cent. of the children in which are under 10 years of age, and 66 per cent. (65·98) of whom have been at the particular school less than two years, is now the best mode in which the services of able and highly-educated men can be employed.

If the object of such examination is to obtain a knowledge of the state of discipline of a school, and of the capacity of the teacher for conducting a school properly, the diocesan inspector, or a neighbouring clergyman, or an organizing master, or, in many instances, the managers of the school themselves, would, with the present generally diffused knowledge of the subject, be able to give a good and impartial opinion. The actual amount of progress may or may not be fairly placed to the credit or discredit of the particular teacher. Some of the children most advanced for their age may have only lately come to the school from some other; many who would have done the teacher credit at the examination may have recently left the school. Those who have been longest at the school are known personally to the managers, and from their progress the managers can form a better opinion of the qualifications of the teacher than can be formed by the inspector during an examination which cannot afford time for entering into individual circumstances, but must deal with general results.

The 54 inspectors and assistant inspectors of common day schools, "everywhere crossing "each other," (Report for 1858, p. x.) visited, in 1858, 9,384 schools, or departments of schools under separate teachers.

From the inspectors' reports, it appears that the numbers actually inspected in England and Wales, exclusive of infant schools, and of training colleges and schools for pauper and vagrant children, varied, according to circumstances, from about 150 to about 250 each; in some few cases much exceeding, in others being below those numbers; facilities of communication and the nature of the schools apparently determining the numbers visited.*

If, instead of the inspectors visiting those schools for the complete examination of each, as at present, and being obliged, in order to reach them, frequently to retrace their steps, and "everywhere to cross each other," a group of schools was to be assigned to each, within a given area, large or small according to relative position, and facilities of communication; if those groups were again arranged in convenient subdivisions; and if, instead of aiming at an examination of every child in each school, the attention of the inspectors was confined to an examination on paper, at certain periods, of all the children capable of passing it, either brought together to a convenient centre, or under independent superintendence in their own school-rooms, the time of the inspectors would be greatly economised, the expense of inspection much reduced, and something definite obtained and recorded which it would be useful for the country to know, and the publication of which would be well calculated to give an additional stimulus to the desire for education among the labouring classes.

The number of children capable yearly of passing the minimum examination on paper, already referred to, would probably range from about 20 to about 30 per cent. of the whole. To these, such an examination so conducted, would be of much service, both in itself and in its results. The occasional examination of the remaining 70 or 80 per cent., chiefly children under 10 years of age, may safely be left in the hands of the school managers, or of the agencies already adverted to unconnected with the Government.

Practicability of proposed plan.

That the areas within which those groups would be need not be large, may be roughly estimated from the following facts: The squares upon the Index Ordnance Map of England and Wales (see copy annexed) amount, after deducting those which cover a portion of the sea, to about 80, varying from about 25 miles square in the thickly peopled, to 35 miles square in the scantily-peopled districts. It is not likely, therefore, that any of the proposed groups would be more than from 50 to 70 miles square; a distance now easily traversed, generally speaking, by means of the net-work of railways, from a convenient centre. As regards the number of schools within each group, candidates from near 40 to upwards of 100 schools having been already examined under the prize-schemes, there could be no difficulty in assigning to the inspectors groups of from 150 to 250 schools (the present average number) for examinations that would take place once or at most twice a year; which groups could be also subdivided for the purposes of the examinations, as convenience might dictate.

The prize-schemes show that the inspectors would obtain the ready assistance of the clergy and others interested in promoting education, in organizing these groups and conducting the examinations. That the schoolmasters also would lend their cordial aid, I anticipate from the fact, that the United Association of Schoolmasters, after hearing from me, at a meeting of that body held in London, in 1857, an explanation of my paper read at the Education Conference, above referred to, passed a resolution approving of the proposal,

* From the figures given at p. xli., and in the Table No. 1 of Report for 1858, I calculated that, deducting Scotch schools and infant schools, the number of departments of boys' and girls' schools under separate teachers in England and Wales, liable to inspection in 1858, was about 8,500; giving an average of 170 each to 50 inspectors.

posal, and expressing their readiness to co-operate in carryiag it into effect. (See Appendix B. p. 25.)

The experience of several of theprize-schemes also shows that National schools and schools not connected with the Church send their candidates freely to join in the same competition. The inspectors of Church and the inspectors of dissenting schools have in many cases acted cordially together in conducting the examinations. In other cases the examinations have embraced schools of all denominations, although the examination has been conducted by the clerical inspector alone or by churchmen. For the purposes of examination, therefore, in the secular subjects, I believe that former jealousies have so far disappeared that churchmen and dissenters would have equal confidence in the statement of the results of such examination as is proposed, from papers prepared beforehand, and upon paper, at certain centres, or, under certain conditions providing for fairness, in individul schools. Provision could easily be made for the religious examination.

Occupation of inspectors.

Paper-examinations being as yet little practised in the elementary schools, the inspectors might at first be usefully employed in introducing them in individual schools, among the children of perhaps the first and second classes. Experience would also be thus acquired in conducting the examination of a large group of children, on several subjects, in the few hours in one day that can be devoted to it; a matter upon which the inspectors, who have so kindly and zealously undertaken the examinations under the prize-schemes, have obtained satisfactory results after various trials; and which requires somewhat different arrangements from the already familiar annual examinations of pupil-teachers and candidates for apprenticeship, by the inspectors, at various centres in their districts.

In conferring with the managers of schools as to the formation of the different subdivisions, the inspector would have an opportunity of explaining the object to be aimed at and inviting co-operation.

The greater freedom of action which would result to the inspector would leave him at liberty to resume more frequently that which I have denominated the missionary portion of his duties, in the direction now most required. It often happens where schools are much wanted or are inadequately supported, that the suggestions of a disinterested and independent person, such as the inspector, removes obstacles and produces unity of action, especially if he has time and opportunity to follow up the matter in detail, and by personal communications. The great blanks in education still existing in many parts of the rural districts especially, would, I think, by these means be more readily filled up. And here I would beg leave to refer to one mode of partially, at least, overcoming the difficulty of establishing good schools in country districts where the population is small and somewhat scattered, which might be adopted, without the least interference with the parochial system, after the example of the "ambulatory" schoolmasters once common in Wales. Where the means cannot be found for paying a good master for one school exclusively, his time might be divided between two, giving three days or 18 hours a week to each. I have stated fully in my Report on Mining Districts for 1853 (p. 11 to 21) the respectable amount of instruction obtained by boys employed in various printworks in England and Scotland, who only attended school on an average for 10 hours a week (from the age of eight to thirteen); and on comparing it with the amount obtained by the boys in the two great district schools under the Poor Law Commissioners, near Liverpool and Manchester (at Kirkdale and Swinton), where they attended for about 20 hours per week, the difference in their attainments in reading, writing, or arithmetic was not considerable (p. 21). Much, therefore, might and would be learnt from 18 hours' instruction only per week, from a good master. If the school was for the remainder of the week under the exclusive management of the mistress, the elder boys might or might not attend, either for the whole or part of the three other days, as might be most convenient. The experience of the whole of the Poor Law schools in the kingdom, I believe, amply shows how large an amount of elementary instruction can be soundly impressed on the minds of children in regular attendance at school for some years, at an average of about 18 hours per week.

Economy resulting from it.

The alteration of the mode of employing the inspectors would greatly reduce the amount of correspondence with the Privy Council Office, and consequently the expenses of inspection and administration. The number also of inspectors, instead of increasing, as must be the case under the present system, would be capable of gradual reduction to half their present number.

Annual grant to training colleges should also be gradually extinguished.

The arguments already used in favour of the gradual extinction of the annual grant to the elementary schools apply also to the training colleges. Of these there were in 1858 (Report for that year, p. xxx) 36, the annual grant to which was for that year 73,731*l.* 17*s.* 7*d.* (Table A.), the number of students being 2,709; the average grant to each training college being upwards of 2,000*l.* per annum, and the cost of the students per head to the State being about 27*l.* 6*s.*

Few more training colleges being now required (Report for 1858, p. xxxi), if any, and the present system having been fairly established, at considerable public cost, and a public opinion created as to the acquirements and qualifications of a good teacher, it would seem reasonable to expect that henceforward those who require trained teachers should bear a larger portion of the cost of training them, and that the supporters of the training colleges, together with the friends of the students themselves, should supply the funds gradually withdrawn by the State.

The extent to which private resources may be reckoned upon, on the gradual withdrawal of the Government aid, may be measured by the proportionate decrease of those resources contemporaneously with the rise in the amount of the subventions by the Government,

Government, as exhibited by the Rev. B. M. Cowie in his Report for 1858, upon the 14 Church of England Male Training Colleges (Report, p. 301), in the following Table:

YEAR.	Total Income.	Sources of Income.			Proportion per Cent. of Income supplied by

Also, in the same volume, p. 334, the Rev. F. C. Cook, in his Report upon the Twelve Church of England Female Training Colleges, states, that while the grants from the Committee of Council on Queen's scholars and examinations had increased from 8,190 l. 1 s. 10 d. in 1855, to 12,183 l. 15 s. 2 d. in 1858, the fees paid by students and their friends had decreased from 6,790 l. 13 s. 5 d. to 3,786 l. 9 s. 2 d., and the subscriptions, donations, and grants from the diocesan boards had decreased from 6,820 l. 13 s. 5 d. to 4,342 l. 19 s. 2 d. Mr. Cook at the same time expresses his opinion that "it cannot be "doubted that, should it be found necessary, much larger collections might be raised," (p. 335).

Succession and training of pupil teachers.

The diminished number of pupil-teachers, which I have assumed as sufficient (p. 7), would, together with the monitors, be paid from the general funds of the school, instead of, as at present, by the Government; and the remuneration to the teachers for their instruction out of school hours would come from the same source. This instruction might be received partly in the evening school, partly before the morning school hour (9 o'clock). It would be in the power of the training colleges, by their examinations on admission, to prevent the standard of acquirement falling below the point necessary to enable the students to derive full benefit from the special instruction in the art of school management, and from the discipline in manners and character, which are the particular objects of those colleges. An opinion appears to be gaining ground that a lower standard of intellectual proficiency would admit to the profession of teaching a considerable body of excellent and zealous persons, whose moral qualities would act most beneficially upon the children, while their knowledge of elementary subjects would be ample for a certain class of schools.

The reasons for the large annual grants to schools and training colleges no longer exist.

Twenty years ago it was absolutely essential to the public safety and well-being that a great effort should be made by the Government to extend elementary education more widely among the labouring classes, to increase its amount, to raise the qualifications of teachers, and to produce a higher estimate of what could be effected for the moral and religious and the intellectual improvement of the labouring classes through the instrumentality of the elementary school. The large sum spent by the Government (upwards of 3,655,000 l. from 1839 to December 1858) is a proof of the earnestness with which those objects have been sought to be obtained. So much has been effected by that and the vast private expenditure to which it came in aid, that a greatly improved state of opinion and feeling in regard to popular education has been created among nearly all classes of the community, as compared with what existed at the commencement of that period. The greater diffusion of instruction, the multiplication of cheap means of obtaining it, and the great abundance of legislative measures during the last 20 years, all tending to remove legitimate causes of complaint, and to promote the welfare and comfort of the labouring classes, have put an end to the plea of paramount State necessity, which justified the Government in taking upon itself so large a share of the annual support of schools and training colleges. The whole country can no longer be fairly called upon to pay the school fees of those who, if thrown upon their own resources, would be well able, as a general rule, and with the stimulus held out to them which I have described, would, I believe, be willing to pay them themselves. The same argument applies equally to the training colleges, as above adverted to.

Facts in support of these reasons.

Some few salient facts, in addition to those already presented for consideration, deserve to be kept in view in support of the above conclusions.

The returns of the National Society for Church of England schools in 1847, comprising 955,865 week-day scholars, gave as the annual expenditure per scholar, from school fees, subscriptions, and endowments, 17 s. 1 ½ d. per scholar. (Public Education, by Sir James Kay Shuttleworth, 1853, p. 118.)

According to the summaries in the Report of the Committee of Council on Education for 1858, including schools of all denominations in England, Wales, and Scotland, and comprising 668,681 children, the average income per scholar from the same sources was 17 s. 3 d.

If the average of the five last years be taken, including schools visited for simple inspection only, it amounts to 17 s. 5 d.

The total cost of education per scholar, the annual Government grants included, is about 1 l. 7 s. 6 d.

It appears, therefore, that the sum derived from school fees, subscriptions, &c., having remained nearly the same since 1847, the whole of the additional cost, amounting to 10 s. per head, has been defrayed by the Government.

As a temporary measure, rendered expedient by circumstances, and with the object of raising the standard of education in the public mind, no expenditure on the part of the Government could have been better applied.

Nor would there be much to say yet against its continuance, if it was, in fact, doing the precise work which Parliament had in view in voting it, namely, bringing that higher standard to bear upon the portion of the working classes whose education it is the principal aim of the Government to aid in promoting.

But upon this portion (the great mass) of the working classes this higher standard, and the accompanying greater efficiency of the teaching power, is unfortunately producing the smallest possible effect.

The Rev. J. P. Norris, writing of the counties of Staffordshire, Shropshire, and Cheshire, says (Minutes for 1854, p. 539) that "out of every hundred children in that "district, not more than six or seven were really profiting by the improved education "introduced by their Lordships' measures."

The Rev. Canon Moseley states in his Report on Male Training Schools (1854, p. 302), that "their Lordships' efforts for education are practically defeated;" "what is gained "on the one hand, by the improvement of the schools, being lost on the other by the "earlier age at which the children are taken from them."

The Rev. F. C. Cook, writing of the counties of Middlesex, Hertford, Bedford, and Buckingham, says (1854, p. 395) "the great mass leave before they rise into the first "class."

The Rev. F. Watkins, whose district is the county of York, asks (1854, p. 439) whether the reality does not afford "a pretty fair assurance that all the long and imposing array of "certified masters and mistresses, assistant teachers, pupil-teachers of both sexes and "different grades . . . all the instructive books, all the excellent maps, all the ingenious "apparatus, if not absolutely wasted, are indeed far too costly and too cumbrous for the "service in which they are engaged?"

The Rev. D. J. Stewart, speaking of the northern counties, says (1854, p. 575-6), "a very low standard of instruction is maintained with difficulty by a very costly system;" and that "one effect of having efficient teachers and well furnished schools seems to be "that children can now be taught in less time than formerly the meagre smattering which "passes for education, and that they are ready at an earlier age for the labour market."

In his Report upon the counties of Cambridge, Huntingdon, Bedford, Hertford, and Buckingham for 1856 (p. 443), Mr. Stewart states that it is his impression "that the "number of children of the strictly labouring classes attending parochial schools annually "decreases."

The Rev. G. R. Moncrieff, speaking of Northumberland, Durham, Cumberland and Westmoreland, in his Report for 1856 (p. 493), expresses "an emphatic opinion" that the results are utterly insignificant, and that we have "an elaborate and expensive machinery "wasted on little children too young for permanent impression." And in his Report for 1857 (p. 473), he states that, "of the large sums raised from all sources for educational "purposes, seven-tenths are in this district spent on little children under 10 years of age, "and hardly one-fortieth on those who are likely to receive permanent impression."

Such opinions, to which others might be added from the inspectors' Reports down to the present time, coupled with the fact of the statistical returns, which show the results as to age and attendance at school, already quoted, outweigh any contrary opinions derived from particular districts. There is also abundant testimony in the reports to the fact of children who could read at 10 years of age having lost the power a few years later, the little they had acquired having been learnt too superficially and imperfectly to be retained.

The offer made at the expense of the State, of excellent and comprehensive instruction at the lowest possible payment, has therefore failed to reach those for whom it was designed.

It cannot be expected that the State should continue indefinitely to offer what is not accepted, and to encourage a dependence on itself, followed by no equivalent results.

Two resources still untried.

What course then remains? How are the elements of sound education to be diffused among the mass of the working classes without that cost to the Government which experience proves to be almost entirely thrown away?

There are two resources still untried.

The first is that which I have sketched out in this paper, of appealing on a large scale to the principle of emulation, and to the desire of public approbation and reward; and of giving an opportunity for recording what a child can do on leaving school, in an indisputable manner, and in a form likely to be useful towards obtaining employment.

The prospect of being able to do this is likely to cause the best use to be made of the school years before 10, and it is notorious that a great deal may be learnt under good instruction by that time. The satisfaction and the advantage of being able to pass a good examination at the time of leaving school will induce in the child a desire to do so, and in the parent a greater willingness to pay for it. And the longer the system, if adopted, lasts, the greater will be its moral influence, inasmuch as the number will be every year greater of those who will have shown that they possess the elements of a sound education; and the contrast will be more strongly to the disadvantage of those who are growing up in ignorance.

The second resource (which will not be adopted as long as annual aid to the school funds can be obtained from the State, but on the withdrawal of that aid would be immediately resorted to with, without doubt, the most complete success), is the exaction of higher school fees in proportion to the capabilities of the parents to pay them.

This principle long since recommended by some of the ablest authorities on this subject, has been urged by many of Her Majesty's inspectors, by arguments and examples that only require the stimulus of necessity to cause their general acceptance.

Mr. Norris mentions the case of three schools that had been made self-supporting, by some portion of the children paying 3*d.* and more (1854, p. 537), while 170 schools in his district had raised the school fees in the same manner. I. Bowstead, Esq., (1854, pp. 634, 645) shows the successful result of the change from low to high fees in a school in the town of Bideford, "not more favourably circumstanced than other moderately sized "towns;" the payments ranging from 1*s.* per quarter for the children of workmen earning less than 12*s.* a week, to 5*s.* a quarter for those of workmen earning 20*s.* a week, and graduated also according to the number of children in a family; the scale for tradesmen and others, paying a rent of 6*l.*, being 3*s.* 6*d.* per quarter, and 5*s.* for those paying a rent of 10*l.* The school fees are paid in advance; and "every advantage the school possesses "is alike open to all." Mr. Cook (1855, p. 319) states that "the exaction of a larger school "fee improves the character of the school, and, in nine cases out of ten, increases the number "of applications for admission." . . . "Parents who can afford to pay, very much "prefer paying." Mr. Cook adds that these facts have been tested by repeated experiments "in all parts of England." Mr. Watkins (1855, p. 359) mentions that in many cases in his district, "where the school fees have been raised, the number of children has remained the "same, while the school funds have been proportionally increased;" and he gives the scale of payments in force at one of Lord Downe's schools, from 2*s.* a quarter for one child of a labourer earning under 14*s.* a week, to 3*s.* a quarter for children of artisans earning more than 14*s.* a week, 4*s.* a quarter for those of farmers holding from 30 to 70 acres of land, and 5*s.* a quarter for those of farmers holding more than 70 acres. The Rev. H. Longeville Jones (1856, p. 594) mentions the case of "one of the most successful schools in "Wales," in a "locality chiefly agricultural," at which 48 per cent. of the children pay 3*d.* per week, and 20 per cent. higher rates, and quarterly. J. D. Morell, Esq. (1856, p. 521), in his Report on the Wesleyan and other denominational schools in the north-western division of England, states that the "more usual fee is 3*d.*, and, in many cases, 4*d.* and 6*d.*;" that the self-paying principle is being gradually substituted for the voluntary (p. 522), and that where it is "in vigorous operation (a state of things now not very infrequent), it lays "no burden upon private benevolence, reduces no one to a state of dependence, and, instead "of pauperising the population, as far as regards the instruction of their offspring, gives them "the honest and wholesome feeling that they are able to pay for the advantages they are "receiving."

Now the present average rate of school fees being about 1¾*d.* per head per week, in schools visited on account of annual grants, and about 1½*d.* in schools visited for simple inspection only; and the present average income per scholar from school fees, subscriptions, and endowments being, in round numbers, 17*s.* 6*d.*, let it be supposed that the application of the above principles raised the school fees to the extent only of one penny per head per week, or 4*s.* per annum. The income, irrespective of Government aid, would then amount to 1*l.* 1*s.* 6*d.

* In 1851, the rate of payment in Church of England schools averaged "about 1½*d.* per week, and in the schools of the separate communions about 1¾*d.* per week."—("Public Education," by Sir James Kay Shuttleworth, Bart., 1853. P. 262.)

The working classes in Scotland pay from 10*s.* to 16*s.* a year for each child, or at the rate of 2½*d.* to 4*d.* per head per week.—("Public Education," p. 345.)

The payments which that rate of school income will afford to the requisite number of teachers are exemplified by the following Table:—

According to the table (p. 13) of Report for 1858, the average salaries of masters from all sources (Government grants included) are, in round numbers, 50 l., 60 l., and 90 l.; and of mistresses, 30 l., 37 l., and 60 l.

Therefore, an addition to the school fees of 1 d. per head per week (which is far less than the vigorous application of those principles, under the stimulus of necessity, would produce) will afford the same average payment to teachers, without Government aid, as they now obtain with it, if the amount of assistant teaching power does not exceed what is given in the above table, which is calculated upon the usual proportion of one teacher to every 30 or 40 scholars. And it is submitted that for all purposes of strictly elementary instruction, the latter proportion is sufficient. Where more is demanded by the people themselves, or where it may be desirable to encourage the teaching of more subjects, with especial reference to the employments of a district and the requirements of the population, higher fees and an increase of voluntary aid should be looked to as the means. If otherwise, the undesirable habit will be confirmed of permanently substituting the initiative of the Government for that of individuals in matters which concern their own interests.

The figures of the above table are susceptible of variation, according to localities, and according to whether masters or mistresses are preferable. If lower fees only are obtainable, lower salaries, as a general rule, would be sufficient for the purposes of elementary teaching.

If it is objected that no provision is made for remunerating the teachers for the instruction of the pupil teachers and monitors, (averaging about 4 l. per head per annum), on the other hand no account has been taken of an increase of the voluntary contributions, which may assuredly be reckoned upon to that small extent, and beyond it, under the stimulus of a real necessity.

Great prospective saving, and no danger to the efficiency of popular education.

The amount of pecuniary inducement remaining the same, no reasonable apprehension could be entertained that persons intellectually, morally, and physically competent, would not be attracted to the profession of teaching. Indeed, by leaving in the hands of the managers of schools the selection of those who would be brought forward for that calling as pupil teachers and monitors, there would be a far higher probability of securing the permanent services of persons whose moral character, disposition, taste, and inclinations best fitted them for that sphere of duty, than now exists under a system which necessarily gives the greatest prominency to intellectual attainments. The country also would be spared the expense of the considerable proportion of pupil teachers who are now necessarily, from their mere numbers alone, lost to the profession of teaching as soon as their apprenticeship has expired. A large portion also of the expenses of inspection (amounting at present to about 5 l. for every school or department of school inspected) might cease with the discontinuance of the annual grants, to the proper application of which it is indispensable. I have already adverted to another source of saving in the cost of inspection, by by the substitution of the general examination proposed, of 20 or 30 per cent. only of the children, the inspection of the remaining 70 or 80 per cent. (children, as a rule, under 10 years of age) not requiring Government agency.

That liberal annual grants should have been made to the training colleges at the commencement of a system which was new and costly, and when the resources of voluntary contributions had been severely taxed by the expenditure upon suitable buildings, was to be expected. That such grants should be permanent may well be questioned.

The sums annually raised by the whole of the training colleges (now 36 in number) from subscriptions, grants from diocesan and other boards, and students' fees are not ascertainable from the Minutes of the Committee of Council, or from the Report of 1858. No accounts are published in those volumes of the Roman-catholic training colleges, or of three of the Scotch training colleges.

It has been seen (p. 15) that the income of the Church of England male and female training colleges (in all 26), from subscriptions, from diocesan and other boards, and from students' fees, had greatly declined, proportionately to the Government grant, its total for 1858 being only 22,249 l.

Taking the year 1854, it appears that the income of the 14 male training colleges, from subscriptions and the other sources other than the Government grant, was 18,815 l., and of 10 female training colleges for the same year, 13,704 l. (Mr. Cook's Report, p. 321): total, 32,519 l., showing an absolute decrease for 1858 of 10,270 l., although two more colleges are included in the accounts of that year.

In his work on Public Education (p. 231–2), Sir James Kay Shuttleworth states that the expenditure of the societies and boards of the various religious communions in England and Wales, in 1853, upon training colleges, was about 45,000 l., from subscriptions, collections, and students' fees alone. There were then 28 training colleges in England and Wales, many only commencing. There are now 31, nearly all in full work. As the income of the first, from voluntary sources only, amounted, in 1853, to 45,000 l., it is not unreasonable to anticipate that the income of the latter number from those sources might by degrees be brought up to 60,000 l., on the gradual withdrawing of the Government aid.*

Now it has been proved by the experience of the Church of England training colleges during the last few years, that the average cost of training is about 45 l. for males and 38 l. for females.

If, therefore, 60,000 l. be taken as a reasonable estimate of what might be produced from voluntary sources only, in support of the training colleges of England and Wales, that sum, at the high average of 42 l. each, would provide for the annual training of 1,428 masters and mistresses for England and Wales.

The number of students examined in the five training colleges of Scotland in 1858 was 608. The cost of their training at 40 l. each, the probable average for Scotland, would amount to 24,320 l.

In a country which has had the benefit of a parochial system of education, partially established by law since the Reformation, and wholly since the year 1696, which, by reason of the general use of the Assembly's catechism, is free from one great obstacle to the extension of that system; and which was capable a few years ago of one of the greatest recorded instances of voluntary pecuniary exertion, in obedience to what was believed to be a Christian duty, it may surely be assumed that the above sum would be gradually attainable within 10 years, from voluntary sources for the support of the number of students in training colleges above stated.

The two numbers (1,428 + 608) making together 2,036, fall far short indeed of the number assumed in the Report of 1858 (p. xxx.) to be the necessary complement of students at training colleges (3,000) to satisfy the permanent demands of the country. But with all deference to the authority of that report, it fairly admits of question whether that estimate is not excessive to the extent of nearly one-third.

If this is so, it is demonstrated, as regards England and Wales, that if the contributions from voluntary sources in support of training colleges were brought back to and only moderately increased beyond what they were in 1853, the training of the whole required number of teachers could be provided for without Government aid; and as regards Scotland, there appears no reason why the training of the whole number required should not be equally within the means of that country, by voluntary efforts, or by legislation, or by both combined.

The two sources of expenditure, therefore, mentioned in the early part of this paper having been removed from the Government grant, the estimated saving would be effected, namely, in 10 years the sum of 435,307 l. 16 s. 11 d. would have disappeared from the annual grant, and an increase of much more than that sum, which would take place within that time under the present system, would be prevented. I think also that I have shown that a mode of action might be adopted which, by appealing to the self-reliance, the independence, the emulation, and the love of distinction of the labouring classes—principles as common to them as to any other class of the community—would produce a much more efficient,

Appendix (A.) to Mr. Tremenheere's Paper.

Steps by which the proposed Arrangement could be brought about for the Examination, yearly or half-yearly, of all Children leaving the Day School finally, who could come up to a certain Minimum Standard of Acquirement.

I will suppose that the Government has assented to the proposal, and that Her Majesty's Inspectors of schools (in which term I also include the assistant inspectors) have, with the approval of the Committee of Council, arranged their respective districts, so as to comprise in each a certain number of day-schools under inspection; the number being decided with reference to facilities of communication with each other, and of access from some centre where the inspector would reside.

District assigned to each inspector.

I will first take the case of a district in which there is no prize scheme already in existence.

If no prize-scheme existing in it.

In that case the inspector would announce by advertisement in the principal local papers, that he was ready to co-operate with any persons interested in the promotion of popular education, who might be inclined to form themselves into a committee or committees, for the purpose of organizing, at certain convenient centres, examinations, on a certain day or days of the year, of all children about to leave the day-school, or who had left it within the previous six months, who could come up to a certain specified minimum standard of acquirement.

The inspector would then put himself in communication with the persons most interested in promoting education in each part of his district, and endeavour by their aid to cause to be formed either a central committee for the whole district, with sub-committees for the respective subdivisions, or several distinct committees, one for each subdivision.

Formation of Committee.

Judging from the experience of the prize schemes, it would in all probability be found a matter of no difficulty to form these committees. I have myself, unaided, formed five such, and have contributed to the formation of five more; all composed of a large number of persons of leading position and influence, lay and clerical, as may be seen by referring to their names in the accounts given of these associations in my reports on mining districts for 1852, 1853, 1854, 1856, 1857, and 1858.

After the formation of the first, the South Staffordshire, east of Dudley, in 1850-51, which being a new thing, required more time to recommend to the judgment of those who were asked to support it, I have found two or three weeks of personal communication and explanations with the different persons of influence, as employers or landowners in the district, sufficient to enable me to obtain the consent of a considerable number to become members of the committee, together with the promise of a sufficient amount of subscriptions.

In some of the prize schemes in the mining districts, the bishop of the diocese is the patron or president; in others the president is the Lord Lieutenant of the county, or some member of the House of Peers or the House of Commons. On the committees the Church is well represented, and the laity by persons of wealth and authority in their respective districts.

In all the prize schemes in the mining districts, and also in some of the others, the invitation to send candidates to the examination is addressed to all schools, whether church or denominational, and whether under Government inspection or not, and candidates from all kinds of schools have freely responded to the invitation.

All schools invited to send candidates to the examination.

I should anticipate, therefore, that the inspector would, in a district where no prize scheme already exists, meet with no difficulty in forming as many committees or sub-committees as would be required for the purposes of the proposed examination, on the above principle of inviting schools of all kinds and denominations to send candidates to the examination.

I am the more inclined to this opinion since the recent debate in the House of Lords (February 1860), on the subject of the admission of the children of dissenters to endowed schools: from which it appeared that the sanction of the Right Reverend Bench was given to the principle of admitting the children of dissenters to church schools, under arrangements, on the part of the trustees, in regard to religious instruction.

After such an expression of opinion on the part of the Right Reverend Bench in regard to the admission of the children of dissenters into church schools, it can hardly be anticipated that any objections can be made to children from church schools meeting children from other than church schools, for the purposes of a general examination, fairly conducted as it would be, and calculated to bring out distinctly the actual and relative amount of acquirements of the children, at or about the time of their leaving school.

The committees formed on the above basis would then, in conference with the inspector, decide upon the various centres at which the children would be most easily collected on the day of examination.

Arrangements for the examination.

These centres would probably be the schoolrooms capable of affording the requisite amount of accommodation, within easy access of a certain number of other schools.

The centres being determined upon, the members of the committee, central or local, would select one or more of their number who would be willing to undertake the duty of settling, with the inspector, the papers of questions for the examination on each subject, and who would also, with the aid of the teachers of the respective schools sending candidates, look over the work done, at the examination, and mark the errors, immediately after the conclusion of each subject, according to the mode described in my paper in the volume of the Educational Conference already referred to.

The papers of questions would be transmitted by the Inspector to the Council Office, to be printed (unless, as is most probable, the committee should form a fund for meeting this and other small expenses), and he would at the same time state the number of copies which he would require; one copy of each set of papers being requisite for each centre of examination.

Intervention of H. M. Inspector only temporary.

I would here remark that in proposing that the papers should be printed by the Government, I consider it, as well as the intervention of Her Majesty's Inspector at all, as only a temporary measure, with a view solely to facilitate the first introduction of the general examination, and to aid in establishing it in easy working order; after which, in the course of a very few years, I should anticipate that the Inspectors would be able to superintend more than one district, and finally that the Government may expect the local committees to maintain the system in operation.

Examination books.

These preliminaries having been so far arranged, the committees and the inspectors would order the examination-books, such as I have described (Note to p. 21), to be prepared. Messrs. Longman, engravers, Pall Mall, who designed and printed the certificate cards used with the prize schemes, are ready to furnish these books, which could be delivered (as stated at p. 21) at 6 d. each. Each child proposing to be present at the examination would be invited to purchase one of these. The results of the examination in dictation, arithmetic, religious knowledge, grammar, geography, &c., appearing in this book, would be an authentic record of what the child could do on leaving school. The external appearance of the book itself would be an additional inducement to value and preserve it.

Minimum standard of acquirement.

The next question for consideration would be, what is to be the minimum standard of acquirement, without a fair probability of reaching which, no child's name should be inserted by the teacher on the list to be sent to the Inspector on the day which would be named by him for receiving it, which day should be one month previous to the day of examination.

At first the minimum of acquirement would probably be, the power of writing with tolerable correctness a page of dictation from an easy lesson-book, of doing correctly the four first rules of arithmetic, simple and compound, and being able to answer in writing a few easy questions on one of the Gospels and on the Book of Genesis. Reading, from the difficulty, under the circumstances, of assigning marks to it with complete fairness, should, I think, be omitted from the general examination. But no child should be sent to take a part in it without a certificate from its teacher that it can read a plain narrative correctly, and that its character is good.

I should anticipate that, after a few years, the standard might be raised without diminishing the numbers coming forward for examination; and that thus the point might be secured that few children would leave the day-school without being able to reach such a standard as would afford a decided proof of the foundation of a sound elementary instruction having been laid; and that this might be done by the time the child reaches the age of ten, or a little after, admits of no doubt.

Errors to be marked and rectified.

On the day of the examination, the arrangements of which are described in the paper in the volume above adverted to, on the errors in the examination-books having been all marked, those books which were found to contain more than [four] errors in the dictation, or in which any sum in the first four rules of arithmetic was incorrect, or in which at least [four] of the questions on religious knowledge, or on geography, or grammar, were not correctly answered, should, after being signed by the member of the committee present, be delivered to its owner. The rest, examined and signed in like manner, should be sent in a sealed parcel to the inspector.

It may be expected that a certain number of the whole who present themselves will fail to satisfy the minimum test with the correctness above specified. The total number, therefore of the examination-books to be transmitted to the Inspector would be pro tanto, reduced; and as in each of these the errors would have been already marked, enumerated, and certified, it would be the more easy for the inspector to assign, on a rapid examination of the work done, the number of marks which the answers in the respective subjects deserved, and the class in which each name should be placed, with the aggregate number of marks attached to each name.

Class-lists to be made out.

Time required for this duty by Inspector.

As regards the time which might be occupied by the Inspector in examining the books, and assigning the marks, &c., I will suppose that his whole district contains 200 common day schools, or departments of schools under separate teachers, and that it is sub-divided into four groups of 50 each. I will also suppose that the large average of 10 books from each school or department have been sent to him. As he would arrange to receive those from each group in succession, he would have on his hands at one time, say, 500 examination books. Considering that the errors would have been already noted and certified, I do not think it would be difficult for the Inspector to assign the marks, &c., to from 60 to 80 books per day. If eight days be allowed for the whole, the books from the four groups would be disposed of by him in 32 days, or say, five weeks. This was the exact time occupied by Mr. Tinling in the much longer and more laborious work of examining 487 pupil-teachers and candidates for apprenticeship, and in revising the examination papers. (Minutes for 1856-7, p. 329, 330.)

The inspector would send a copy of his "Class-list" immediately after thus making it out, to the honorary secretary of the committee of each group, for publication. Class lists to be published.

It is important that the mode of application should be such as to bring each class-list to the notice of the parents, and of the labouring classes of the district generally. Considering the number of persons interested in possessing them, it is probable that the proprietors of the local papers would desire to have the class-lists for insertion. If not, a small subscription would enable the committee to print them in a cheap form for circulation among the schools and those who support them.

I have hitherto considered the course of action of the Inspector in case the district assigned to him contained no prize scheme, and in case, also, no offer of prizes should be made in conjunction with the examination; and it has been seen that even in that case the result of the general examination would be the not unimportant one of giving every child, at or about the time of its leaving school, an opportunity of recording in a book, on a public occasion, the amount of its acquirements on several of the most important elementary subjects; which book would be of such a kind that the child would be induced to preserve it; and the record of its attainments in which, together with the certificate of character, would be likely to be of service as a recommendation for employment. To this would also be added the subsequent publication of the marks obtained by each child upon each subject, and the class, and the place in the class, assigned to it by the Inspector. Prizes may be offered.

I believe that these proceedings alone, without any offer of prizes to be competed for at the examination, would act as a considerable stimulus to popular education, and have the effect of gradually raising the average amount of attainment among the young at the time of their leaving school.

But it would be very easy to apply the additional stimulus of prizes.

If no prize scheme already existed in the district, it would probably be found that the committee for each group would be willing to take the requisite measures for forming a fund, from whence prizes might be adjudged by the Inspector to a certain number of the children at the head of each class-list.

The nucleus of such fund would be a contribution of not less than 1 l. per school or department under a separate teacher. To this would be added subscriptions from persons in the district desirous of promoting education, as in the prize schemes, together with donations for special prizes, such as those offered in some of the prize schemes for book-keeping, letter-writing, mensuration, a knowledge of the laws of health, plain needlework and knitting, domestic economy, natural philosophy, economic science (as from "Lessons on the Phenomena of Industrial Life"), animal and vegetable physiology, English history, drawing, or other useful subjects.

The honorary secretary and treasurer of each group would receive these sums and distribute them, through the respective schools, to the successful candidates, or, according to the practice of the prize schemes, at a public meeting.

The course of action of the Inspector in case a prize scheme existed in any part of his district would be only slightly different from what has been above described. If a diocesan prize scheme existed in the district.

I will suppose the most difficult case with which he would have to deal, that of finding that a Diocesan Prize Scheme Association already existed, covering the whole or part of his district.

As a Diocesan Association necessarily embraces only Church schools, the problem before the Inspector would be, how to bring about an organization which would, without any sacrifice of principle in any one, draw into competition with each other, in a general examination, children from all the elementary schools in the district, of whatever kind, whether Church, or denominational, or neither.

If I am correct in the supposition which I have ventured upon in p. 21, that, after the recent debate in the House of Lords, there would be no reluctance on the part of the Bishop of the Diocese to sanction this kind of competition of the children of Church schools with any other children, in a general examination—a competition which the children of Church schools would have no reason whatever to fear — then the only question would be the formation of a district committee, to co-operate with the diocesan committee for this purpose.

Such a committee would, I apprehend, be easily formed from among the supporters of schools other than Church schools, and among the general promoters of education in the district. The honorary secretary and treasurer of such committee would collect the names of the schools not comprised in the Diocesan Association, would receive the specified contribution from each, together with the general subscription, and those for any special prizes which might be offered. He would also, on behalf of his committee, confer with the Inspector as to the lists of questions, both those on general subjects and those on religious knowledge. The latter would, as in many of the prize-schemes, be of two kinds, one on the catechism for Church schools, and one on Holy Scripture for the children from both Church and other schools, the examination on religious knowledge being entirely voluntary, and any prizes offered for it to come from a special fund. It is, of course, assumed that all the children from Church schools would answer questions from both papers. Also, in conjunction with the Inspector and with the secretary or other officer representing the Diocesan Association, he would decide upon the different centres where the examinations should take place, together with all other matters of detail.

The system could be organized in six months.

I would undertake to say that within six months from the time of the several districts being assigned to the Inspectors, this system of a general examination, with or without the addition of the offer of prizes according to the wishes of the several districts, but most probably with the offer of prizes, could be organized for the whole of England and Wales.

If examinations half-yearly, total time occupied by Inspector would be 16 weeks in the year.

I have shown that the time likely to be occupied by the Inspector in looking over the examination books and assigning the marks for the class-lists and the prizes, would, in all probability, not exceed five weeks. If three weeks more be added for the arrangement of the preliminaries, i.e., settling the questions, with personal communications or correspondence relative to the time, places, and other details connected with the examination, each would occupy the Inspector eight weeks. If the examinations were half-yearly, it would amount to 16 weeks for the whole year, leaving the rest of his time disposable for any other work that the committee of council might deem expedient, such as possibly the inspection of the schools for pauper and vagrant children, and the reformatories and industrial schools in his district, and the promotion generally of the cause of popular education in any way that might seem to the Inspector to afford the greatest scope for successful efforts in furtherance of that object.

But I should confidently anticipate, that after a short experience, a much less period than 16 weeks be required for one district, and that as vacancies occurred, two districts might be thrown into one, reducing therefore the Inspectors, by degrees, to one-half their present number.

I have already shown, that by the adoption of this system, and that of higher school fees, nearly 250,000 l. a year may be reduced in five years from the Education grant, and nearly 450,000 l. in 10 years, and the great increase upon those sums now threatened prevented; and I feel confident that a greater number of children would upon this system leave school, well instructed in all the ordinary elements, than has ever yet been the case, or is likely to be, upon the present system. The great increase in the numbers, and the rapid rise of the standard of proficiency, under nearly all the prize schemes, fully justify this confidence.

To keep up the stimulus afforded by these examinations, prizes might be offered, as first suggested by Mr. Norris, and acted upon in Shropshire and elsewhere, to boys who had left the day-school one, two, or three years, and continued their education at evening schools. And at a later age (that of 16 and upwards), the examinations by the local Boards of the Society of Arts, for candidates from mechanics' institutes and evening schools, would afford another object to look forward to, and would tend to prevent the loss, if not to augment the amount of the instruction gained at the elementary school.

I now beg leave to call attention to a small addition to the Education grant, which I venture to propose. I would suggest, that to the 1 l. per school or department under a separate teacher, mentioned at p. 23 as the nucleus of the fund from which prizes might be offered wherever a committee might think proper to add the offer of prizes to the general examination, the Committee of Council on Education should make a like contribution of 1 l. per school or department of school to the prize fund. On the supposition that there may be about 8,500 such schools or departments in England and Wales coming within the view of the present proposal, according to the calculations referred to at p. 13 of the foregoing paper, the contribution would only amount to 8,500 l. a year in the event of a prize fund being formed in every district comprising all the inspected common day schools; to which a similar contribution from the committee of council for all the private schools which might join in the competition would have to be added. I propose that this contribution on the part of the Government to these prize funds should only be temporary, and that it should cease at the time designated for the cessation of the other grants specified, namely, in 10 years. In the meantime it would have given great encouragement to the formation of the prize funds, and would have indicated approval of the principle of commending and rewarding results, instead of paying a large sum for means which, after all, are imperfectly used.

Some persons would, I believe, be disposed to carry this principle further, and to suggest that the Government should make a grant to the school funds in proportion to the number of successful candidates, at such a general examination as is proposed, paying, therefore, for results, instead of simply rewarding them. This seems to me undesirable, as perpetuating the practice of dependence upon Government aid in a matter which individuals are quite capable of doing themselves.

If it is said that by aiding in the building of schools the Government encourages, pro tanto, that dependence, the answer is, that it is often more difficult for individuals to raise at once the large sums required for school buildings, than to make the small annual contributions required to assist in carrying on the schools themselves; and that the Government, as the condition of that aid, secures for the purposes of education better buildings, better internal arrangements, and permanency of tenure. The justification of the portion of the education grant relating to books and apparatus is, that the Government, by purchasing on a large scale, is able to cause a considerable saving to schools in the purchase of those requisites. The justification of the aid given to reformatories and industrial schools stands on its own special ground.

In making the above suggestion, I merely repeat what I submitted to the Lord President of the Committee of Council on Education in 1855, as I have stated at p. 192, of the volume published by the Education Conference in 1857; namely, that "a certain proportionate sum should be added by the Government to the sum raised by the prize schemes."

The

The answer of the Lord President was to the effect, "that the prize schemes involved a "very small outlay; that they were organised in those parts of the country where there "were the richest capitalists; that they had hitherto succeeded without Government aid: "that the sanction of the Committee of Council was sufficiently shown by the presence "of Her Majesty's inspector, and by the promoters having at their disposal the advice and "assistance of a public officer of his experience; and that much greater liberty of action is "possible for all persons concerned, so long as the expenditure of public money is not to "be accounted for, and the degree of encouragement stops short of assuming to regulate "or answer for the several schemes." (pp. 192, 193.)

While the continued success and the increase of the numbers of the prize schemes since 1855, have added to their claims for the sanction and approbation of the Government, the objections put forward in the above answer of the Lord President, do not apply to the general examination, with the addition of prizes, proposed in this paper.

Appendix B.

In December 1857, I was invited by the United Association of Schoolmasters of Great Britain to give them further explanations of the plan for a general examination of children leaving the day school, as detailed in my paper published by the Education Conference in that year.

In December 1858, the Acting Committee of that Association communicated to me resolutions approving of the plan, and desiring to co-operate in carrying it into effect.

On the 16th March 1860, by invitation of the same body, I addressed them at St. Martin's Hall on the general features of the plan, as more fully described in the preceding pages. Upon which they passed the following resolutions:—

1. That this Association, having heard Mr. Tremenheere's statement in explanation of his proposed plan for an examination of all children leaving the day-school finally, considers the plan, as a whole, both desirable and practicable, and recommends it to the promoters and teachers of schools.

2. That an outline of the plan be printed and circulated at the expense of the Association.

Of the remaining 11 colleges, the accounts of the Borough Road and of the Free Church, Glasgow, are not given; and those of Bangor appear to be provisional.

The Government, therefore, contributes about 2⅓ times more than individuals.

The students in residence at the 28 Church of England training colleges were 918 males and 827 females, total 1,745. Average cost of training (70,499 × 1,745 =) 40 l. 9 s.

At two (Peterborough and Winchester) the cost was exceptionally high; the first having only 20, the second only 15 students (pp. 301–298). If these two are excluded, the average cost at the remaining 13 was 41 l.

The average cost at the 13 female training colleges was 32 l. 8 s. 4 d. (p. 367).

The average of the whole (41 l. + 32 l. + 44 l. = 117 ÷ 3) is 39 l. The difference between an average of 39 l. and those of 42 l. and 40 l. assumed at p. 19, would raise the total 2,036 in the tenth paragraph of page 19 to 2,200.

A "COPY of the REPORT to the COMMISSIONERS appointed to inquire into the State of POPULAR EDUCATION by the COMMITTEE appointed by them for the purpose of obtaining an Enumeration of DISSENTERS' SCHOOLS."

Education Commission, 4 July 1861.

T. J. BLACHFORD, Assistant Secretary.

REPORT and SUMMARY TABLES.—BAPTIST and CONGREGATIONAL COMMITTEE.

REPORT.

To his Grace the Duke of Newcastle.

My Lord Duke, London, 5 May 1859.

THE committee established to procure for the information of the Commission, of which your Grace is chairman, Returns relating to the state and progress of Education amongst the Baptist and Congregational bodies in England and Wales, have now the honour to forward their Report.

The schedules which have been received comprise returns from 911 day schools, 268 evening schools, and 3,391 Sunday schools. These numbers do not, of course, represent the whole number of schools connected with the two denominations from which information has been solicited. On closing their lists, in order to proceed with the work of tabulation, the committee were deficient in replies from rather more than 1,000 persons, to whom schedules had been forwarded. Had these replies been received, it is possible that the returns would have been as complete as those furnished in 1851. As it is, they are deficient with respect both to the numbers of schools and scholars in every county, but with regard to all other particulars from which averages could be drawn, it is believed that those which have been received and tabulated, and which are now forwarded to your Grace, may be relied upon as thoroughly trustworthy and accurate. The committee propose to lay before your Grace a brief statement of the results of their inquiry, as indicated in the series of summary tables appended to this report.

DAY SCHOOLS.

I. Accommodation.—The returns from day schools include 363 from British, 146 from Baptist, 388 from Congregational, and 14 from Undenominational Schools;* of these, 734 furnished reports regarding the accommodation for scholars. Out of this number 55 British, 46 Baptist, and 102 Congregational,—in all, 203 schools, report that the school-room has been either erected or enlarged enlarged since 1851. The rate of increase in the accommodation afforded for scholars, as indicated by these returns, is as follows:—

* Such as Town and City Mission Schools.

British Schools	21·34 per cent.
Baptist	72·84 ,,
Congregational	36·39 ,,

With regard to the last two the Committee remark, that the increase, in some instances, appears to consist in the adaptation of previously existing Sunday School-rooms to Day-school purposes. New Day-schools are thus created, but new buildings are not always, or at first erected.

II. Scholars belonging to the Schools.—These are returned as follows:—

British Schools	38,546
Baptist	9,469
Congregational	32,982
Unsectarian	1,021
TOTAL	82,018

III. Accommodation and Number of Scholars compared.—The average accommodation is found to be in British Schools, 148; in Baptist, 135; in Congregational, 161; and in Unsectarian, 94. The average number of scholars on the books is, in British Schools, 106; in Baptist, 75; in Congregational, 85; and in Unsectarian, 73. The per-centage of accommodation to the number of scholars belonging to the schools is, therefore, in British Schools, 139; in Baptist, 180; in Congregational, 189; and in Unsectarian, 128. There is thus in all descriptions of schools, of which the committee have received information, a large excess of accommodation over the present attendance.

IV. Paid Teachers.—The total number of paid teachers in 911 schools is reported at 1,911. The numbers for each description of school are given in the table.

V. Proportion of Teachers to Scholars.—This is greatest in the Unsectarian Schools, nearly identical in British and Baptist, and least in Congregational Schools, the proportions being in British Schools, one teacher to every 36 scholars; in Baptist, one to 38; in Congregational, one to 64; and in Unsectarian, one to 31.

VI. Proportion of Masters to Mistresses.—The table is given as a probably correct indication of the rank of each description of school, the class of scholars in attendance, and the range of the instruction afforded. Its results show that in the British schools the numbers of masters and mistresses are nearly equal; that in Baptist, the number of mistresses exceeds the number of masters by more than 50 per cent.; that in Congregational, the number of mistresses exceeds the number of masters by nearly 70 per cent.; and that in the few Unsectarian schools, the mistresses are to the masters as three to one.

VII. Income and Expenditure.—Returns of income and expenditure have been received;—

Full summaries for each county, distinguishing the source of income and the description of school, will be found in the table. The general result is given in the table of the—

VIII. Average Annual Income per Scholar from various Sources.—It will be seen that the details and the summary for each description of school exhibit a remarkable, and, with regard to school fees, a suggestive variation.

The

The average annual income, per scholar, from endowments, is in—

	s.	d.
British Schools	–	3 ½

The average annual income from school pence is, in—

	s.	d.
British Schools	6	6 ½
Baptist	4	11 ¾
Congregational	8	2
Unsectarian	4	2 ¼

The general average of this table gives about three halfpence per week per scholar, for which sum, in many instances, instruction appears to be given in every branch of an ordinary English education, and in many of the arts, sciences and accomplishments.

The average annual income per scholar from subscriptions and donations is, in—

	s.	d.
British Schools	5	5
Baptist	3	3 ¾
Congregational	4	8 ½
Unsectarian	9	5

The average total income per scholar is as follows:—

	s.	d.
British Schools	12	3
Baptist	9	1
Congregational	13	5 ½
Unsectarian	14	1 ¾

The British schools containing on an average a considerably larger number of scholars than either of the other classes, their income, per school, from all sources, is proportionately larger.

IX. Results of raising the School Fees.—Of the whole number of 911 schools, only 63 report that the school fee has been raised. In 24 of these the attendance has increased; in four it has decreased. The remainder report that no alteration has taken place. The Committee have remarked that the managers of the only Nonconformal school, who from want of sufficient funds, announced their intention of applying for aid to the Privy Council Committee, have not tried the experiment of raising the school fee.

X. Increase and Decrease of Scholars of the Poorer Class.—Reports from 75 schools have been received on this subject: 54 report an increase of attendance, and 21 a decrease.

XI. Ages of Scholars.—The Committee have received replies from 641 schools, giving information concerning the ages of 50,110 children stated to be in actual attendance at school. It is not considered, however, that these figures afford any correct indication of the attendance of scholars, as compared with the number belonging to the schools. In very many of the returns the actual attendance and the numbers belonging to the school are given as identical. The question, therefore, has evidently been misunderstood, and the replies, though trustworthy as to the ages of the children, are scarcely to be relied upon for a comparison of attendance with the whole number of scholars.

XII. Relative Proportions of Ages.—These have been calculated for both male and female scholars; the result is in harmony with all previously-collected information. Only 12 per cent. of the children remain at school after attaining 12 years of age, and only 4 per cent. after attaining the age of 13. The Committee direct attention to the difference between the attendances of male and female scholars, the result being considerably in favour of the male scholars.

XIII. Ages in Two Selected Counties.—A similar table is given of the ages of scholars in the two counties of Dorset and Lancaster; these two having been selected as offering, perhaps, the greatest contrasts, on account of their difference in race, habits, occupations, and mental characteristics. The result indicates the earlier attendance of children at school in the agricultural county, and the later attendance in the manufacturing. The proportions for Lancaster and the whole of England and Wales are almost identical.

XIV. The Average Age on Admission to School is given for the four descriptions of British, Baptist, Congregational, and Unsectarian schools, in all 509. This average is based upon the totals of both infant and other schools. It indicates the earlier attendance of children in the Unsectarian and Denominational schools.

XV. and XVI. Average Age on Leaving School.—It has been found to be necessary to take this for England and for Wales separately, the average in Wales being much higher than any attained in England. In England, reports have been received from 379 boys' and 349 girls' schools. The general average gives 11 years and 3½ months, as the age at which children are found to leave school. The average is highest in the Baptist and Unsectarian, and lowest in Congregational schools. In Wales, in 113 schools, the average age on leaving school is 1 year and 7½ months higher than in England, the age being 12 years and 11 months. The comparative averages indicate that the same rule obtains with respect to the several descriptions of school as in England, the highest average being attained by the Baptists, and the lowest by the Congregationalists.

Striking the difference between the age on admission to and the age on leaving school, the following result is arrived at:—

Length of Period under Instruction.

	Yrs.	Mos.
1. England.—British Schools	5	3½
Congregational	5	7
Baptists	6	5
Unsectarian	7	1
2. Wales.—British Schools	6	11

XVII. The Average Age on Leaving School has also been calculated for the three counties of Essex, Lancaster, and Middlesex, from each of which the number of returns is nearly equal. The lowest average is obtained in Lancashire, and the highest in Middlesex.

XVIII. Increasing and Decreasing Age on Leaving School.—Reports concerning 105 schools have been received: 40 state that the age is increasing; 65 that it is decreasing; the remainder either report no alteration or do not answer the question.

XIX. The Average Attendance of Children throughout the year is given for 301 schools. The highest is attained in the Unsectarian and the lowest in the British schools, the averages being—

The Committee have not thought it desirable to tabulate the answers relating to the number of scholars who have attended school for 176 days in the year, and the number given being in very many instances identical with those belonging to the above, and therefore not reliable, and comparatively few replies having been received from the Baptist and Congregational schools where a register for such information has not hitherto usually been kept.

Nor have the replies relating to the course of instruction pursued been arranged; such answers as have been received are registered in the schedules for tabulation, but in consideration of the question in the schedule of inquiry having been put in only a general form, the information given is neither full nor accurate. As an instance of its defectiveness the Committee remark, that scarcely any schools state that religious instruction is given, while it is known that the giving of religious instruction is an indispensable condition in all British and Denominational schools without exception. The only general conclusion which the Committee have been able to draw upon this branch of the inquiry is, that the range of instruction appears to be more limited in the Denominational than in the British schools.

Evening Schools.

XXI. Number of Scholars.—The Evening Schools reported to the Committee are as follows:—

British - - - - -	33	containing	1,088 scholars.
Baptist - - - - -	74	„	2,952 „
Congregational - - - -	152	„	6,344 „
Unsectarian - - - -	9	„	978 „
Total - - -	268		11,362

XXII. Scholars who have never attended a Day School.—Of the 268 schools, 108 give information as to day school attendance. In these schools there were 3,844 scholars, of whom 792 had never attended a day school. The proportion to the whole number is 26·68 per cent.

XXIII. The Number of Evening Scholars who have attended a Day School for Five Years in the same number of schools is 1,799, or 46·80 per cent. It is evident therefore that the majority of evening scholars, averaging 79·32 per cent. in 108 schools, have previously received some degree of instruction in a day school.

XXIV. Paid Teachers.—Nearly the whole of the teachers in the 268 evening schools, concerning which the Committee have received information, are unpaid and voluntary. Out of the whole number, only 20, viz., 16 males and four females, are reported to be paid.

XXV. and XXVI. Age of Scholars.—This information is given for 128 schools, containing 5,304 scholars, and exhibits the following proportions:—

Nine years and under	6·62 per cent.
Above 9 and under 15	47·15 „
„ 15 „ 20	35·79 „
„ 20 „ 25	10·44 „

The large majority therefore of attendants at evening schools, have ceased o attend day schools, nearly one-half of them being adults.

Sunday Schools.

XXVII. Numbers of Scholars and Teachers.—The number for each description of school of which information has been communicated is as follows:—

——	Schools.	Scholars.	Teachers.
Baptist	1,430	159,503	23,635
Congregational	1,935	262,226	33,329
British and Unsectarian	26	2,760	380
Totals	3,391	424,489	67,344

These numbers give an average of 125 scholars to each school, and of one teacher to every 6·30 children. It will be observed that the larger proportion of scholars is of the female sex, while the larger proportion of the teachers is of the male sex. All the teachers in these schools, without exception, are unpaid.

XXVIII. Sunday Scholars who have never attended a Day School.—In 1854, schools giving replies to this question, the number of scholars who have never attended a day school, is stated to be 17·047. On an average of 125 scholars to each school, this would give a proportion of 8·64 per cent. in both the Baptist and Congregational schools, and of five per cent. in the Baptist and Unsectarian. The ages of these are not given, so that it is impossible to tell how many are comparative infants. It is however suggested to notice, that the proportion of children under six years of age in 2,249 Sunday-schools is 17·50 per cent. of the whole number.

XXIX. The Number of Sunday Scholars who have attended a Day School for Five Years, in the same number of schools (1,584), is 55·805. On the same average attendance, this would give the following result:

In Baptist Schools	24 per cent.
Congregational	31·68 „
Unsectarian	14·66 „

XXX. The Increase or Decrease of Voluntary Teachers is reported for 1,253 schools; of these, 1,013, or about 80 per cent. of the number, report an increase, and 240, or about 20 per cent., a decrease. In the remaining schools, the numbers appear to have been stationary. The relative increase is greatest in the Congregational and least in the Baptist schools, and the decrease least in the Congregational and greatest in the Baptist schools.

XXXI. The Annual Income and Expenditure is given by counties for each class of school. It varies from upwards of 100 l. to a few shillings per school.

In

In all 2,484 reports have been received on this head, exhibiting the following average for each school:

	£.	s.	d.
Baptist Schools - - - - - -	7	19	3
Congregational - - - - - -	10	12	10
British and Unsectarian - - - -	4	14	7

The expenditure is about the same as the income in all cases.

XXXII. and XXXIII. The Age of Scholars has been returned for 2,249 schools, containing 244,276, or nearly a quarter of a million scholars. For the same reason as that given in connexion with day schools, this number, as exhibiting the attendance in proportion to the total number of scholars, is not to be relied upon. The following is the principal result of the table:

Six years of age and under - - -	17·50 per cent.
Between 6 and 12 years - - -	45·63 „
Above 12, and under 15 - - -	23·14 „
Above 15, and under 20 - - -	13·73 „

It would appear from the table, that a very large proportion of day scholars must continue their education in the Sunday schools, after leaving the day schools.

XXXIV. Ages in Three Selected Counties.—This table tends to support the supposition that in districts where opportunities for day school education are most deficient Sunday schools are most extensively conducted. The proportions of scholars in Sunday schools above 12 years of age have been compared for the counties of Lancaster, Middlesex and Wilts, as the best specimens of a manufacturing, a metropolitan and an agricultural district. The proportion of adults or persons above 15 years of age, is as follows:

Lancaster, 21·54 per cent.; Middlesex, 10·53; Wilts, 14·68.

Above 12 years of age, the proportions are, for Lancaster, 45·59 per cent.; Middlesex, 31·25; Wilts, 39·10. The proportion for the whole of England is 36·87 per cent. Lancaster therefore is much above the average in this respect, and Middlesex almost as much below.

The above appear to the Committee to be the principal results of the information which has been furnished to them. They do not consider it to be within their province to give expression to any opinions, favourable or otherwise, upon the facts communicated, but simply to lay them before Her Majesty's Commission, with the hope that they may be of service in the important inquiry of which your Grace has charge.

We beg, &c.

At the Council Chamber, Whitehall,

The 29th day of July 1861.

By the Lords of the Committee of the Privy Council on Education.

Their Lordships being desirous to render the distribution of the Parliamentary grant for public education in Great Britain more simple, more general, and more effective for its purpose, after having considered the Report of the Commissioners appointed by Warrant under the Queen's Sign Manual on 30 June 1858 to inquire into the present state of popular education in England,

Resolved,

To revise the Code of Minutes and Regulations* under which the grant is now distributed, and to adopt the following means of substituting the Revised Code for that at present in force, namely :—

1. To pay the next annual grants falling conditionally due in schools already admitted to receive such aid according to the Code hitherto in force. But
2. In schools where the next payment of annual grants does not fall due until after 31 March 1862, to permit the managers to signify in writing their wish to have this payment made upon the terms of the Revised Code—such managers undertaking at the same time to provide and pay from year to year the full stipends and gratuities which would otherwise have been severally payable out of the Parliamentary grant during the remainder of all current apprenticeships (if any) in the school.
3. To agree to new apprenticeships only upon the terms of the Revised Code; and subject, as regards the remainder of all current apprenticeships (if any) in the school, to the undertaking set forth in the last preceding paragraph.
4. To pay no further annual grants to schools hitherto admitted to receive them after the next which falls due, except either—
   (a.) Upon the terms of the Revised Code only; or,
   (b.) For the stipends and gratuities of current apprenticeships, where such exist, and the full charge of them for the remainder of the unexpired term has not been assumed by the managers.
5. Subject to the above conditions, to cancel the Code of Minutes and Regulations hitherto in force.

* House of Commons Paper, No. 252, Session 1860.

OF

MINUTES AND REGULATIONS OF THE COMMITTEE OF THE PRIVY COUNCIL ON EDUCATION.

REFERRED TO IN THE PRECEDING MINUTE.

PRELIMINARY CHAPTER.

1. A SUM of money is annually granted by Parliament for public Education in Great Britain.

2. This sum is administered by an establishment called the Education Department.

3. The head of the Education Department is the Lord President of the Council, assisted by a member of the Privy Council, who is called the Vice-President of the Committee on Education, and who acts under the direction of the Lord President, and for him in his absence (Order in Council, 25 February 1856, Act 19 & 20 Vict. c. 116).

4. The object of the grant is to promote the education of children belonging to the classes who support themselves by manual labour.

5. The means consist in aiding voluntary local exertion, under certain conditions, to establish or maintain schools, which are either:

(a.) For the instruction of children (elementary); or

(b.) For training schoolmasters and schoolmistresses (normal).

6. In elementary schools, the children attend from the homes of their parents, and charge is taken of them during the school-hours only.

7. In normal schools, entire charge is taken of the students.

8. Every school assisted from the grant must be either:

(a.) A school in connexion with some recognized religious denomination; or

(b.) A school in which, besides secular instruction, the Scriptures are read daily from the authorized version.

9. Aid to establish schools is given by grants towards the cost of building, enlarging, improving, or fitting up, elementary school-rooms and dwellings for elementary teachers. Aid is not given to establish normal schools.

10. Aid to maintain schools is given by grants to the Managers conditional upon the attendance and proficiency of the scholars, the qualifications of the teachers, and the state of the schools.

11. The aid given to maintain schools is known as "Annual Grants," being annually payable, at a fixed time, to each school allowed to receive them.

12. No grants are made to schools which are not open to inspection by inspectors appointed by Her Majesty in Council on the representation of the Committee of Council on Education.

13. The Committee of Council consults the religious or educational bodies which are mentioned in Article 30 before making representations to Her Majesty for the appointment of inspectors to visit schools in connexion with those several bodies.

14. The inspectors do not interfere with the religious instruction, discipline, or management of schools, but are employed to verify the fulfilment of the conditions on which grants are made, to collect information, and to report the results to the Committee of Council.

15. No annual grant is paid except on a report from the inspector, after a periodical visit, showing that the conditions of the grant have been fulfilled.

16. The Committee of Council at the time of agreeing to make annual grants to a school, informs the managers in what month to look for the inspector's annual visit. The inspector gives notice of the day of his visit beforehand to the managers.

17. Annual grants are issued to each school, only once per annum. The year for this purpose is reckoned as ending with the last day (inclusive) of the month preceding that fixed for the inspector's annual visit.

18. Schools which have received aid for building, but are not receiving annual grants, are inspected as often as the periodical inspection of the schools receiving annual grants permits.

19. The managers of schools fulfilling the conditions of Articles 4, 6, and 8, may apply for the benefit of Article 18, without having received, or applying for, any grant.

20. The duration of the period over which the right of inspection extends depends upon the degree of permanency of the object for which the grant is made.

(a.) If the grant is made for erecting, enlarging, or improving a school, the right of inspection is secured by a clause inserted in, or endorsed upon, the school deed, and is co-extensive with the interest conveyed by that deed.

(b.) If the grant is annual only, the inspector's visit may at any time be declined by the managers, on forfeiting the grant depending upon it.

21. No undertaking must be commenced in general reliance upon the aid to be obtained from the Parliamentary grant. Separate applications, in the form of proposals, must, in the first instance, be addressed to the Secretary, Committee on Education, Council Office, London, S.W.

Full instructions are thereupon issued according to the particulars of the application.

The promoters, or managers, must appoint one of their own body to act as correspondent with the Education Department. Teachers cannot act as correspondents for the schools in which they are employed.

CHAPTER I.

GRANTS TO ESTABLISH ELEMENTARY SCHOOLS.

Building.

22. Aid is not granted to build new elementary schools unless their Lordships are satisfied—

(a.) That there is a sufficient population of the labouring class which requires a school in the vicinity.

(b.) That the religious denomination of the new school is suitable to the families relied upon for supplying scholars.

(c.) That the school is likely to be maintained in efficiency.

(d.) That the buildings, at the time of application, have not been begun nor contracted for, and that no trust deed has been executed.

23. The grants made by the Committee of Council for building, enlarging, improving, or fitting up elementary schools, are not to exceed any one of the following limits, viz. :—

1*st Limit.*—The total amount voluntarily contributed by proprietors, residents, or employers of labour in the parish where the school is situated, or within a radius of four miles from the school. Such contributions may be in the form of—

(a.) Individual subscriptions;

(b.) Collections in churches or chapels in the same parish, or within the distance of four miles from the school;

(c.) Materials, at the price allowed for them by the contractor, or at which sold off;

(d.) Sites given without valuable consideration (the value to be certified by two professional surveyors);

(e.) Cartage (the value to be certified by the parochial surveyor of roads).

2nd Limit.—2*s.* 6*d.* per square foot of internal area in new school-rooms and class-rooms.

3rd Limit.—65*l.* for each teacher's residence.

24. The site, plans, estimates, specifications, title and trust deed, must be satisfactory to the Committee of Council.

25. The balance of expenditure which is not covered by the voluntary local contributions and by the public grant, taken together, may be made up from any other sources that are available, such as the proceeds of endowment, or subscriptions which are not local.

26. Grants are not made for rooms intended to be used on Sundays only; nor for rooms under places of worship; nor to pay off debts for building; nor in consideration of former expenditure for building; nor for maintenance of buildings; nor for improving or fitting up schools which have already received the maximum amount allowable under Article 23.

27. The extension of the area of existing school-rooms to receive more scholars, and the addition of teachers' dwellings to existing school-rooms, are treated pro tanto as new cases under Article 23.

28. No application can be made if the approved estimate (Article 24) falls below 20*l.* in small rural schools (Article 119), or 50*l.* in other schools.

The Site.

29. The site must be—

(a.) In extent,

Not less than 1,200 square yards.

(b.) In situation,

1. Not unhealthy, nor noisy.
2. Within convenient distance from the homes of the scholars.

(c.) In tenure,

Fee simple (Acts 4 & 5 Vict. c. 38., and 12 & 13 Vict. c. 49.)

(a.) Without incumbrance, or rights reserved over the surface.

(b.) If with reservation of minerals, the party in whom the fee simple of them is vested must covenant to make compensation in the event of damage, and the grant made by the Committee of Council must be the first charge upon such compensation; the whole of which is to be applied as the Secretary of State for the Home Department may direct in furtherance of the trust for a school.

(c.) If subjected to powers of leasing, sale, or re-entry, the lease or sale must not be without the written consent of the Secretary of State for the Home Department, nor the re-entry without first repaying any grant which may have been paid in respect of the premises.

(d.) Leaseholds are not admissible, if fee simple can be obtained. The term must not be less than 99 years, and there must be no onerous covenants, nor more than nominal rent.

(e.) Copyholds must be enfranchised (Act 12 & 13 Vict. c. 49. s. 6.)

The Trust Deed.

30. The trust deed must declare the premises to be granted in trust for the education of the poor, and for no other purpose whatever. It must also provide for the legal ownership of the premises, and for the inspection and management of the school, according to one or other of the precedents settled for: Church of England Schools, British Schools, Established Church of Scotland Schools; Wesleyan Schools, Free Church (Scotland) Schools, Roman Catholic Schools, Jewish Schools, Episcopal Church (Scotland) Schools, Undenominational Schools (belonging to none of the previous classes, but in which the Bible is read daily from the authorized version).

31. When the trust deed has been executed according to a draft approved and sealed by the Committee of Council, and (when necessary) enrolled or registered, a copy of it, including all signatures, attestations, and endorsements, must be made on plain unstamped parchment, and lodged in the Education Office.

32. When the application is for a grant to enlarge, improve, or fit up, an existing elementary school already conveyed in trust, the deed must be a legal conveyance of the land, and not at variance with any of the principles which determine the approval of new deeds. The right of inspection must be permanently secured (Act 7 & 8 Vict. c. 37. sections 1 and 2), and there must be no powers or reservations to which the Act 18 & 19 Vict. c. 131. cannot be applied, and which might become prejudicial to the school.

The Plans.

33. The plans (with specification and estimate), when approved and sealed, may be returned to the promoters for use, but must be lodged in the Education Office before a grant is paid.

Payment of Grants for Building, Enlarging, Improving, or Fitting up Elementary Schools.

34. The amount of the grant is not announced until after the draft trust deed and plans have been sealed.

35. The grant must be accepted or declined within 14 days.

36. The grant is paid on presentation of a certificate (with balance sheet annexed), by the Building and Managing Committees of the school, setting forth that the building and conveyance are completed, and that the money in hand, raised by absolute donations, will, when added to the grant, meet all claims, and finally close the account.

37. Grants under 50*l.* are treated as lapsed, if unpaid at the end of nine months, and grants above 50*l.* at the end of eighteen months, from the date of announcing them.

CHAPTER II.

GRANTS TO MAINTAIN SCHOOLS.

PART I.

ELEMENTARY SCHOOLS.

Section I.

Annual Grants conditional upon the Number and Proficiency of the Scholars, the Number and Qualifications of the Teachers, and the State of the Schools.

38. Schools may meet three times daily; viz., in the morning, afternoon, and evening.

39. Schools which do not meet more than once daily cannot receive grants.

40. The managers of schools may claim per scholar 1*d.* for every attendance, after the first 100, at the morning or afternoon meetings, and after the first 12 at the evening meetings, of their school, within the year defined by Article 17.* Attendances under Half-time Acts may be multiplied by two to make up the preliminary number. One-third part of the sum thus claimable is forfeited if the scholar fails to satisfy the inspector in reading, one-third if in writing, and one-third if in arithmetic respectively, according to Article 44.

* The Commissioners estimate the cost of education at 30*s.* per annum (p. 345) and recommend that the average grant obtainable should be about 10*s.* per child, never exceeding 15*s.* per child.

Fifteen shillings = 180 pence, may be earned, according to the proposed scale, by an attendance (twice per diem) of 140 days = the attendance proposed by the Commissioners as reasonable to aim at (p. 330).

According to the estimate of the Commissioners, the education of every 100 children = 150*l.*, and according to a rough application of the Table at p. 172 of their Report to the proposed scale, the grant obtainable for the attendance of 100 children would be 64*l.* 3*s.* 4*d.*, before the reductions consequent upon examination and inspection. The average therefore, including evening scholars, would probably not exceed 10*s.* per head. The calculation is as follows :—

Amount of Grant for 100 Children at 1*d. per Attendance after the First* 100 Attendances.

Out of every 100 children, according to the average of England and Wales, (Report, p. 172,) taking round numbers, and counting 1 day = 2 attendances :—

41. No claim may be made on account of—

(a.) Any scholar, except in group IV., who has given less than 16 morning or afternoon attendances, or 8 evening attendances, within the 31 days preceding the date of the return;

(b.) Evening attendances by scholars under 13 years of age;

(c.) A third attendance on the same day;

(d.) Scholars once passed in group IV.

42. The claim is to be made, and the examination recorded, in a schedule of the following form, or in such a modification of it as the Committee of Council shall from time to time prescribe.

No. of each Child.	Name of every Scholar who has attended more than 100 separate Meetings of the School in the Year ending ——186 (Article 17), of which attendances 16 or upwards were within 31 days of the last-mentioned date. But scholars attending in the evening only may be presented for examination in any group at the discretion of the managers.

45. The grant may either be withheld altogether or reduced.

46. The grant is withheld altogether,—

(a.) If the school be not held in a building certified by the inspector to be healthy, properly lighted, drained, and ventilated, supplied with offices, and containing in the principal school-room at least 80 cubical feet of internal space for each child in average attendance.

(b.) If the principal teacher be not duly certificated (Article 61).

(c.) If the girls in the school be not taught plain needlework as part of the ordinary course of instruction.

(d.) If the registers be not kept with sufficient accuracy to warrant confidence in the returns.

(e.) If, on the inspector's report, there appears to be any primâ facie objection of a gross kind. A second inspection, wherein another inspector or inspectors takes part, is made in every such instance, and if the grant be finally withheld, a special minute is made and recorded of the case.

(f.) If three persons at least be not designated to sign the receipt for the grant on behalf of the school.

47. The grant is reduced,—

(a.) By not less than one-tenth nor more than one-half in the whole, upon the inspector's report, for faults of instruction or discipline on the part of the teacher, or (after one year's notice) for failure on the part of the managers to remedy any such defect in the premises as seriously interferes with the efficiency of the school, or to provide proper furniture, books, maps, and other apparatus of elementary instruction.

(b.) By the sum of 10*l.* for every completed number of 30 scholars after the first 50 in average attendance who are without a teacher fulfilling the conditions of Articles 61, or 75–83, or 85–7.

(c.) By its excess above

1. The amount of school fees and subscriptions; or, } in the year defined
2. The rate of 15*s.* per scholar in average attendance, } by Article 17.

48. If the excess of scholars over the ratio of 30 to every pupil-teacher has arisen from increased attendance of children since the last settlement of the school staff (Articles 56, 57), the forfeiture prescribed by Article 47 (b) does not accrue.

49. In every school receiving annual grants is to be kept, besides the ordinary registers of attendance,—

(a.) A diary or log-book.

(b.) A portfolio wherein may be laid all official letters, which should be numbered (1, 2, 3, &c.) in the order of their receipt.

Diary or Log Book of School.

50. The diary or log-book must be stoutly bound and contain not less than 500 ruled pages

51. The principal teacher must daily make in the log-book the briefest entry which will suffice to specify either ordinary progress, or whatever other fact concerning the school or its teachers, such as the dates of withdrawals, commencements of duty, cautions, illness, &c., may require to be referred to at a future time, or may otherwise deserve to be recorded.

52. No reflections or opinions of a general character are to be entered in the log-book.

53. No entry once made in the log-book may be removed nor altered otherwise than by a subsequent entry.

54. The inspector will call for the log-book at his annual visit, and will report whether it appears to have been properly kept throughout the year.

55. The inspector will not write any report on the good or bad state of the school in the log-book at the time of his visit, but will enter therein with his own hand the full name and standing (certificated teacher of the —— class, or pupil-teacher of the —— year, or assistant-teacher) of each member of the school establishment. The inspector will not enter the names of pupil-teachers respecting whose admission the Committee of Council has not yet pronounced a decision.

56. The summary of the inspector's report when communicated by the Committee of Council to the managers must be copied into the log-book by the secretary of the latter, who must also enter the names and description of all teachers to be added to, or withdrawn from, those entered by the inspector, according to the decision of the Committee of Council upon the inspector's report. The secretary of the managers must sign this entry.

57. The inspector before making his entry of the school establishment in the following year will refer to his own entry made in the preceding year, and also to the entry which is required to be made by the secretary of the school pursuant to Article 56, and he will require to see entries in the log-book accounting for any subsequent change of the school establishment.

Section II.

Teachers referred to in the preceding Section.

58. The recognized classes of teachers are,—
(a.) Certificated teachers.
(b.) Pupil-teachers.
(c.) Assistant teachers.

59. Lay persons alone can be recognized as teachers in elementary schools.

Certificated Teachers.

60. Teachers in order to obtain certificates, must be examined (Article 116), and must undergo probation by actual service in school (Articles 67, 68).

61. Certificates are of four classes. The fourth (lowest) class consists of an upper and a lower grade (Article 117), and includes special certificates for teachers of infants (Article 111). No certificate is issued above the fourth class. Certificates are raised to the higher classes by good service only (Article 72).

Examination.

62. Teachers are examined for certificates as means of distributing the Parliamentary grant to schools. The examination is not open to candidates for professional diplomas only.

63. Examinations are held in December of each year at the several training schools under inspection (Articles 108 and 114). The relative proficiency of the candidates according to examination is recorded upon their certificates, but does not affect the class of them (Article 61).

64. A syllabus, for male and female candidates respectively, of the course of study may be had on application to the Committee of Council.

65. The names of teachers desiring to be examined must be notified by the managers of their schools to the Committee of Council before the 1st day of November preceding the examination.

66. Candidates admissible to be examined for certificates, must (in addition to Articles 62 and 65) fulfil one of the following conditions, viz.:—
(a.) They must have resided for one or more years as students in normal schools under inspection (Articles 88, 108, and 110); or,
(b.) Must be upwards of 22 years of age, and either,
1. Have completed an engagement as pupil-teacher satisfactorily; or,
2. Have obtained at least two favourable reports with an interval of one year between them upon the school in which they are still employed.

Probation.

67. Candidates for certificates, besides successfully passing their examination, must, as teachers continuously engaged in the same schools, obtain two favourable reports from the inspector, with an interval of one year between them; and, if the first of these reports be not preceded by service of three months (at the least) since the examination, a third report, at an interval of one year after the second report, is required.

68. One favourable report is sufficient after the examination, if the candidate, being continuously engaged in the same school, has obtained two favourable reports in consecutive years immediately preceding the examination.

69. Teachers under probation satisfy the conditions which require that schools be kept by certificated teachers.

70. If the second (or third) report is favourable, a certificate of the fourth class is issued, and remains in force (unless recalled under Articles 73, 74) for the next five years; after which interval it is open to revision, according to the intermediate annual reports; and so on after each further period of five years until the first class is reached.

71. No teacher who has changed more than once from one school to another during the five years preceding revision can be advanced to a higher class.

72. Re-examination is not permitted to candidates once passed, unless they fall under Article 117.

Concurrence of Managers and Inspector.

73. The managers must annually state whether the teacher's character, conduct, and attention to duty have been satisfactory.

83. Female pupil-teachers, before admission to apprenticeship, must produce a written attestation from the schoolmistress and managers that they possess reasonable competency as sempstresses; and, at the annual examinations, must bring certified specimens of plain needlework to the inspector, together with a statement from the schoolmistress, specifying whether they have been receiving practical instruction in any other kind of domestic industry. The inspector, at the time of examination, or afterwards, will obtain the opinion of some competent person upon the merit of the needlework.

Pupil-teachers who have successfully completed their Apprenticeship.

84. At the close of the apprenticeship pupil-teachers are perfectly free in the choice of employment. Any person properly interested in knowing the character of a pupil-teacher may apply to the Committee of Council for a testimonial, declaring that the pupil-teacher has successfully completed an apprenticeship; or the pupil-teacher, if willing to continue in the work of education, may become an assistant in an elementary school (Article 85), or may become a Queen's scholar in a normal school (Articles 92–107), or may be provisionally certificated for immediate service in charge of small rural schools (Articles 118–119).

Assistant Teachers.

85. Pupil-teachers who can be certified, pursuant to Article 84, to have completed their apprenticeship with credit, may serve as assistants in schools in place of pupil-teachers, without being required to be annually examined. But such assistants cease to fulfil the conditions of Article 47 (b), if at any time the inspector reports them to be inefficient teachers.

86. Vacancies caused by the withdrawal of assistants in the course of any school year (Article 17) must be supplied by the appointment of temporary monitors, pursuant to Articles 78–9; but if another assistant, qualified according to Article 85, be appointed before the inspector's next examination, the temporary monitors who preceded such appointment are not required to be examined.

87. Assistants are left entirely at liberty to make their own terms with their employers, both as to hours and wages.

PART II.

NORMAL SCHOOLS.

Section I.

88. A normal school includes—

(a.) A college, for boarding, lodging, and instructing candidates for the office of teacher in schools for the labouring classes; and (b.) A practising department, in which they may learn the exercise of their profession.

89. Grants are not made for building, enlarging, improving, or fitting up the premises of normal schools.

90. Annual Grants are made to normal schools under the heads of—

(a.) Exhibitions (Queen's scholarships) obtainable by competitive examination (Articles 92–107).

(b.) Allowances according to examinations passed at the end of each of two years of residence in the school (Articles 108–113).

(c.) The same Grants to the practising department as to any other school fulfilling the conditions of Articles 4, 6, and 8.

91. No grant is made to a normal school unless the Committee of Council is satisfied with the premises, management, and staff.

Section II.

Grants for Queen's Scholarships.

92. A competitive examination for "Queen's Scholarships" is annually held in December, by one or more of the inspectors at each normal school, during the week following the examination of the resident students. (Article 108.)

93. The examination extends to the subjects required at the end of a pupil teacher's engagement (Article 82).

94. The examinations are confined to persons who intend bonâ fide to adopt and follow the profession of teacher in schools fulfilling the conditions of Articles 4, 6, and 8, and who are either—

(a.) Pupil-teachers who have either completed their engagements (Article 84), or have reached the last year of them (under Article 75 (f), s. 2); or,

(b.) Students who have resided through one whole year's training without being chargeable to the public.

95. Candidates must apply to the authorities of the normal school at which they wish to be examined for permission to attend. No such application can be received by the Committee of Council.

96. All candidates who obtain the minimum number of marks are arranged in order of merit, and are divided into a first and second class, according as they exceed, or fall below, a certain standard.

97. From among the candidates declared to be admissible, pursuant to Article 96, the authorities of each normal school may select as many Queen's scholars as, together with those whose scholarships are extended (Article 105), are equal to four-fifths of the accommodation in each establishment.

98. The accommodation of each college is reckoned equal to the number of dormitories.

99. If the students live in lodgings out of college, the accommodation of each college must be defined to the satisfaction of the Committee of Council. But this system is not recognized except in Scotland where it is the national custom.

100. Before candidates are admitted—

(a.) The medical officer of the normal school must certify the state of their health to be satisfactory; and,

(b.) They must sign a declaration signifying their intention conformably to Article 94.

101. The grants allowed for Queen's scholars are 23*l.* for males and 17*l.* for females per annum.

102. In consideration of these grants, the authorities of the normal schools provide tuition, lodging, board, washing, and medical attendance, for such Queen's scholars as they admit, without further charge.

103. Queen's scholars of the first class (Article 96) are allowed, in addition, the following personal payments in aid of their travelling and private expenses, and of the purchase of books.

——	First Year.	Second Year.
Males - - - -	3	5
Females - - -	2	3

104. The exhibitions are issued by quarterly, the personal payments by half-yearly, instalments. Both depend upon quarterly certificates by the principal of the Queen's scholar's good conduct, attainments, and skill in the pursuit of his (or her) profession.

105. The scholarships may be conditionally extended (Articles 106–7) to a second year's residence if the authorities of the college apply for such extension, but no scholarship can be extended or granted to any student after a second year's residence.

106. The examinations passed by the Queen's scholars at the end of the year determine the class (Articles 96 and 103) of the extended scholarship. A place in the first or second division (Article 113) secures a Queen's scholarship of the first class for the ensuing year.

107. Queen's scholarships extended under Article 105 are withdrawn if the students named for them fall, in their examination (Article 108), below the third division (Article 112). The authorities of the college are not indemnified by the Committee of Council against the risk of acting upon assumed Queen's scholarships before the result of the students' examination has been ascertained and announced.

Section III.

Grants according to Examinations passed at the end of each of Two Years of Residence in Normal Schools.

108. An examination of the resident students is held in December at the several normal schools in the week preceding the examination for Queen's scholarships (Article 92). The day fixed for the commencement of this examination is printed on the syllabus (Article 64) from year to year.

109. No student may be presented who has not been resident throughout the whole year; and no Queen's scholar who has so resided may be left out.

110. The students have a different examination according as they are males or females, or are at the end of a first, or of a second, year of residence.

111. The first year's syllabus for females includes special subjects for the teachers of infants.

112. The allowances to normal schools in respect to each student examined are determined according to the following scale:—

At the End of	For Candidate placed by Examination in each Division.	To be allowed to College (in the case of Females, Two-thirds of these Sums).
First year's residence	1	20 0 0
	2	16 0 0
	3	13 0 0
	4	13 0 0
Second year's residence	1	24 0 0
	2	20 0 0
	4	16 0 0

113. Allowances under Article 112 are granted in respect of all students who pass the examination, whether Queen's scholars or not. They are not appropriated to individuals like the grants for Queen's scholarships, but become a part of the ordinary school funds in the hands of the managers.

Section IV.

Use made of Examinations in Normal Schools for awarding Teachers' Certificates.

114. Teachers qualified to be examined for certificates, according to Articles 62, 65, and 66, receive notice to attend these examinations.

115. Teachers attending these examinations pursuant to Article 114 may, at their option, take the papers of the first or second years' students.

116. No candidate (Article 66) can obtain a teacher's certificate without passing one of these examinations, but the order of the candidates according to examination, excepting the fourth division (Articles 107 and 117), is honorary (Articles 61 and 63).

117. Candidates (whether students or acting teachers), who are placed by examination in the fourth division, receive their first certificate in the lower grade of the fourth class (Article 61). Such teachers are not recognized, under Article 75 (a), for the superintendence of pupil-teachers until they have risen to a higher certificate either by re-examination (Article 72), or good service (Articles 70, 71).

118. Pupil-teachers who fulfil the conditions of Article 84, may, upon special recommendation by the inspector, and upon consideration of their last examination papers, be provisionally certified in the lower grade of the fourth division for immediate service in charge of small rural schools, but after the holder's 25th year of age (completed) such provisional certificates must have been exchanged for permanent certificates (Article 60), or are ipso facto cancelled.

119. Rural schools, in order to fall under Article 118, must not contain more than 1,200 square feet of superficial area in the whole of the school-rooms and class-rooms, or they must be certified as not needing nor likely to be attended by more than 100 scholars.

120. All teachers at present registered as competent to instruct pupil-teachers are included in the fourth class, upper grade, of certificated teachers; all other registered teachers, and all scheduled students acting as teachers, are included in the fourth class, lower grade.

CHAPTER III.

PART I.

GRANTS FOR ENDOWED SCHOOLS.

121. Endowed schools, in order to be admissible to receive either grants or inspection, must fulfil the conditions of Articles 4, 6, and 8.

122. No grants are made to endowed schools in which the endowment yields more than 30 shillings per scholar per annum, according to the number of scholars in average attendance throughout the year (Article 17).

123. Whenever voluntary subscriptions are specified among the conditions of a grant (Article 47 c), the proceeds of endowment are excluded from the reckoning.

PART II.

125. The Poor Law Board is advised by the Committee of Council in distributing a sum annually voted by Parliament upon the estimates of the Poor Law Board, in relief of the poor rate from the charge for schoolmasters and schoolmistresses in Poor Law schools.

126. Poor Law schools are periodically visited by inspectors, who report thereon to the Committee of Council. These inspectors are appointed pursuant to Article 12, and are chargeable to the grant for public education.

127. Teachers are especially certificated by the Committee of Council, in four grades, according to their merit, for service in Poor Law schools.

128. The amount to be issued by the Treasury, on an order from the Poor Law Board, to each parochial union, is regulated by the grade of the certificate which the teacher holds from the Committee of Council, and by the number of children in the school, according to the following table :—

(b.) If the salary at which the guardians have engaged the teacher exceeds the amount issued from the Treasury, the difference must continue to be paid to the teacher out of the poor rate, until the Poor Law Board has agreed to the engagement of the same or another teacher at a reduced salary.

(c.) If the teacher does not reside in the workhouse, and is not provided with rations, the guardians must allow the teacher the sum of 15*l.* a year in lieu thereof out of the poor-rate.

(d.) The teacher must have convenient and respectably furnished apartments; rations, the same in kind and quality as are supplied to the master of the workhouse; must be subjected to no menial offices; must have proper assistance in the management of the children when not in school.

(e.) If the Committee of Council's inspectors report that any Poor Law school is not furnished with the necessary books and school apparatus, the guardians must provide them.

130. Industrial instructors, as well as schoolmasters and schoolmistresses, may be certified by the Committee of Council to the Poor Law Board for repayment of their salaries by the Treasury to the Poor Law Union.

The schools in connexion with Greenwich Hospital, for shipwright apprentices in the Royal Dockyards, for the Royal Marines, and on board ships of the Royal Navy in harbour, are inspected by an Inspector, who reports to the Committee of Council for the information of the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty.

135. This Inspector is appointed pursuant to Article 12, and is chargeable to the grant for Public Education in Great Britain.

AMOUNT of INCOME of each PROFESSOR in the UNIVERSITY during the Years 1839, 1849, and 1859 respectively, specifying the Sources whence derived.

PROFESSORS.	Years.	Endowment.	Stipend. £. s. d.	Fees. £. s. d.	REMARKS.
Professor of Divinity - -	1839	- - - -	600 - -	119 - -	In 1839 there was, strictly speaking, no Professor of Divinity, the Professor of Greek at that time, according to arrangement made in 1835 by Bishop Van Mildert, doing the work and receiving the income of the Professor of Divinity.
	1849	The third Canonry in Durham Cathedral	- - -	* See Remarks.	In 1849 and 1859 the Professor of Divinity received the income of the third Canonry in the Cathedral of Durham, to which he was collated in November 1839, as Professor of Greek, under an Act of Parliament recognising the engagements made with him by Bishop Van Mildert.
Professor of Greek - -	1839	—	—	—	In June 1841 (the Professor of Greek having been appointed Professor of Divinity in January 1841) this third Canonry was permanently annexed to the Professorship of Divinity by an Order in Council, and was made subject, upon the next vacancy, to such alterations as should be duly made for regulating the income thereof. These regulations have since been settled, and have fixed the income at 1,000 l. a year. Thus the permanent endowment of the Professorship of Divinity is the third Canonry at the reduced income of 1,000 l. a year; and the Professor is also entitled to a certain portion of the fees paid by divinity students. These fees the present Professor, from 1839 (when he became Canon) to 1851, placed at the disposal of the Senate. From 1851 to 1859 he applied them to the formation of a fund for rewarding meritorious divinity students, which fund now amounts to 1,700 l. consols. In the year 1859–60 he has paid them to an assistant.
	1849	The eleventh Canonry in Durham Cathedral, as reduced by Order in Council, dated 11 August 1841 - - -	- - -	137 4 3
	1859		- - -	54 5 6
Professor of Mathematics and Astronomy.	1839	- - - -	400 - -	298 10 -
	1849	- - - -	700 - -	137 10 -
	1859	- - - -	700 - -	57 - -

* These fees amounted to 227 l. in 1849, and 127 l. 7 s. 6 d. in 1859.

The future endowment of the Professorship of Greek upon the next vacancy will be the eleventh Canonry, at the fixed income of 1,000 l. a year, and a certain portion of the fees paid by students as at present.

NUMBER of LECTURES delivered weekly by each Professor, and the Period during which such Lectures continued, for the Academical Year 1859–60, and the Number of STUDENTS that attended at such Lectures respectively.

PROFESSORS.	No. of Lectures given weekly by each.	Period over which the Lectures extended.	Number of Students that attended.	REMARKS.
Professor of Divinity - -	3	During three terms of eight weeks each.	About 20 on week days, and 50 on Sundays.	The Professor of Divinity is responsible for a lecture of an hour on each week day during term for divinity students, and for a lecture under an hour on Sunday evenings during the Michaelmas and Lent Terms, for all Members of the University. He is also responsible for looking over 12 of the English Exercises written weekly by the divinity students. The Professor gave the lectures himself from 1835 to 1859. In 1859-60 he has given three lectures a week himself, and the remaining three daily lectures, with the Sunday evening lectures, have been given by an assistant, to whom he pays 120 l. a year, together with his proportion of the fees paid by divinity students, amounting in 1859–60 to 104 l. 13 s. The Professor looked over the exercises himself from 1835 to 1851. Since 1851, when he lost an eye by an accident, they have been looked over by a resident Master of Arts, to whom he pays 60 l. a year. A selection of the exercises is made terminally and submitted to the Warden, who directs that a certain number be read publicly. Before Michaelmas Term 1857, the Professor of Greek gave five lectures weekly to the students preparing for the degree of B. A., and two to those preparing for the M. A. degree. After June 1857, the examination for the M. A. degree was discontinued, and consequently the lectures preparatory for that examination. The Professor of Greek then gave an additional lecture for the degree of B. A. Thus the number of his lectures is now six weekly. The Professors are also largely engaged with the public and other examinations.
and his Assistant Lecturer - -	3	Ditto.

COPY of an ORDINANCE framed by the COMMISSIONERS appointed for the Purposes of the Act 17 & 18 Vict. c. 81, in relation to the COLLEGE of ST. JOHN the BAPTIST, in the UNIVERSITY of OXFORD, and considered and amended by a Committee of Her Majesty's Privy Council, under and in pursuance of the Act 23 Vict. c. 23.

Privy Council Office, 18 April 1861. } ARTHUR HELPS.

ORDINANCE framed by the COMMISSIONERS appointed for the Purposes of the Statute 17 & 18 Vict. c. 81, in relation to the COLLEGE of ST. JOHN the BAPTIST, in the UNIVERSITY of OXFORD, and considered and amended by a Committee of Her Majesty's Privy Council, under and in pursuance of the Statute 23 Vict. c. 23.

1. IN lieu of the fifty places of the Foundation of Sir Thomas White within the College, heretofore held by perpetual Fellows or by Scholars on three years' probation, the said Foundation shall hereafter consist of eighteen open Fellowships, tenable for life, five open Scholarships, and twenty-eight appropriated Scholarships, the conversion being gradually effected in manner hereinafter mentioned.

2. No candidate for any Fellowship within the College shall be either entitled to preference or ineligible for any of the following reasons:—

a. By reason of his having or not having been educated at any particular school;

b. By reason of his being or not being, or having or not having been, a Scholar of the College;

c. By reason of his being or not being of the blood or kindred of Sir Thomas White, the Founder of the College;

d. By reason of the pecuniary circumstances of himself or his parents (except as hereinafter provided in that behalf);

And no candidate shall be ineligible by reason of his being of illegitimate birth, or of his being of any particular age mentioned in the existing statutes: Provided, that no person shall be eligible to any Fellowship, who shall not have passed all the examinations required by the University for the degree of Bachelor of Arts, or who shall be married or possessed of any benefice, property, pension, or office which, if acquired after election, would have disqualified him for continuing a Fellow.

3. No candidate for any Scholarship within the College shall be either entitled to preference or ineligible by reason of his being or not being of the blood or kindred of the said Sir Thomas White, or be entitled to preference by reason of his being a chorister of the College; and no candidate shall be ineligible by reason of his place of birth or place of residence or education (except as hereinafter provided), or by reason of his being of illegitimate birth, or by reason of his having, or of his parents having, any specific amount of property mentioned in the existing statutes. No person who shall not have attained the age of twenty years shall be ineligible by reason of his age for any open Scholarship, or any Coventry, Bristol, Reading, or Tunbridge Scholarship.

4. Of the said twenty-eight appropriated Scholarships, twenty-one shall be appropriated to Merchant Taylors' School, two to the School of Coventry, two to the School of Bristol, two to the School of Reading, and one to the School of Tunbridge, which Scholarships are herein called the Merchant Taylors', Coventry, Bristol, Reading, and Tunbridge Scholarships respectively. In elections to the five open Scholarships no person shall be either entitled to preference or ineligible by reason of his having been educated at any particular School, but no person shall be eligible who shall have attained the age of twenty years.

5. The Merchant Taylors' Scholarships shall be tenable for seven years, and the Coventry, Bristol, Reading, and Tunbridge Scholarships for five years, subject in every case to the Scholar's obtaining such certificates as hereinafter mentioned. The

The open Scholarships shall be likewise tenable for five years, subject to the same condition. Every Scholar who shall marry, or shall be elected to a Fellowship in the College, or to a Fellowship or Scholarship in any other College, shall thereupon vacate his Scholarship. After the establishment of the five open Scholarships, any open Scholarship which shall from any cause whatever be vacated before the expiration of the term for which it was tenable, shall be filled up in the same manner in which an appropriated Scholarship thrown open to general competition is hereinafter directed to be filled up, and shall be held by the person elected for the remainder of the said term and no longer. In such an election no candidate shall be ineligible or entitled to preference by reason of his age.

6. Every Scholar, whether holding an open or an appropriated Scholarship, shall, in the eighth and also in the twelfth term from his admission, be required to obtain from the President, and from not fewer than one-half in number of the Deans of Arts, Tutors, and Lecturers of the College, or from such other officers of the College as the President and Fellows may from time to time determine, a certificate of satisfactory industry, proficiency, and good conduct; and, if he shall in either of those terms fail to obtain such certificate, shall vacate his Scholarship on the first day of June then next ensuing. The President and Fellows may from time to time change the terms in which such certificates are to be obtained, regard being had to the times of examinations instituted by the University.

7. The term of seven or five years (as the case may be) for which each appropriated Scholarship is to be tenable, shall always be deemed to expire on that stated day of election to Scholarships appropriated to the same School which shall fall nearest to the expiration of seven or five years from the day of the election of the Scholar; and in the case of any Scholarship, whether appropriated or open, the election to which may have been postponed as herein provided, such election shall be deemed for all purposes to have taken place as if there had been no postponement, and the five years shall be reckoned accordingly.

8. The Merchant Taylors' Scholarships, when vacant, shall be filled up at Merchant Taylors' School, or such other convenient place as the President of the College and the Master of the Company of Merchant Taylors shall appoint, on the eleventh day of June in each year, or, in case that day shall be Sunday, on the day following, by the election of boys educated in the said School for the two years at least last preceding, and under the age of nineteen years, or in default of such candidates of sufficient merit, then by the election of boys under nineteen years of age educated for the same period at Christ's Hospital. The electors shall be the Master, Wardens, and Assistants of the Worshipful Company of Merchant Taylors, the President, or Vice-President of the College, and two Fellows of the College, to be annually appointed by the President and Fellows for that purpose. The candidates shall be examined in such subjects and in such manner as the electors shall appoint, and those candidates shall be elected who, after such examination, shall appear to the electors to be of the greatest merit and most fit to be Scholars of the College: Provided, that the concurrence of the said President or Vice-President and the said two Fellows, or of the major part of them, shall be requisite to every election. In default of candidates of sufficient merit from Christ's Hospital, the vacant Scholarship shall be thrown open for that turn to general competition, and the election shall be held by the President and Fellows, in the manner provided by Sect. 10, with reference to Coventry, Bristol, Reading, and Tunbridge Scholarships.

9. The Coventry, Bristol, Reading, and Tunbridge Scholarships shall, subject to the provisions for postponement herein contained, respectively be filled up from time to time on a stated day in each year, to be fixed by the President and Fellows for filling up vacancies in those Scholarships, by the election of a boy certified to have been educated in the School to which the Scholarship is appropriated for the two years at least last preceding the election, and to be of good conduct, and under twenty years of age; and the President of the College shall give sufficient notice to the Head Master of such School for enabling candidates to proceed to the College for examination; and, if there be not time to give such notice before such stated day, the election shall be postponed to a future day, as soon thereafter as conveniently may be. The certificate shall be signed, in the case of Coventry and Bristol Schools, by the Head Master and Chairman of the Governing Body of the School; in the case of Reading School, by the Mayor of Reading, the Chairman of the Church Charity Trustees of Reading, and the Head Master, or any two of them; and in the case of Tunbridge School, by the Head Master; after the receipt, in each case, of the aforesaid notice by the Head Master. The candidates shall be examined at the

the College in such subjects and in such manner as the President and Fellows shall appoint, and that candidate shall be elected who, after such examination, shall appear to the President and Fellows to be of the greatest merit and most fit to be a Scholar of the College.

10. If there shall be no candidate for any vacant Coventry, Bristol, Reading, or Tunbridge Scholarship of sufficient merit for election, in the judgment of the President and Fellows, such Scholarship shall be thrown open for that turn to general competition, and the election thereto shall be held by the President and Fellows at the College, as soon as conveniently may be, and after public notice for a period of not less than thirty days. The candidates for the Scholarship so thrown open shall be examined in such subjects and in such manner as the President and Fellows shall appoint, and that candidate shall be elected who, after such examination, shall appear to the electors to be of the greatest merit and most fit to be a Scholar of the College. No person shall be eligible who shall have attained the age of twenty years.

11. The election to open Scholarships shall take place on a stated day in each year, to be appointed by the President and Fellows, subject to the provision for postponement hereinafter contained, and notice of such intended election shall be given by the President, in such manner as he shall deem best adapted to ensure publicity, thirty days at least before the day of election. The candidates shall be examined in such subjects and in such manner as the President and Fellows shall determine, and that candidate, not being in other respects disqualified according to the provisions of the statutes in force for the time being, shall be elected who after such examination shall appear to the President and Fellows to be of the greatest merit and most fit to be a Scholar of the College. The President and Fellows shall not be required to fill up more than one open Scholarship in any one year, except under the circumstances and to the extent mentioned in clause 5. The five years for which such Scholarships are tenable, shall be deemed to expire on the stated day appointed for the election to open Scholarships which shall fall nearest to the expiration of five years from the day of the election of the Scholar.

12. The thirty-three Scholarships and eighteen Fellowships shall be established as quickly as the disposable funds arising from vacancies in the existing fifty places will permit, and at the relative rate of two Scholarships to one Fellowship, until the whole number of Scholarships shall be complete. Subject to the foregoing provision, the several appropriated Scholarships shall be established, as among the several Schools, in the order of priority in which the places heretofore assigned to the said Schools respectively shall become vacant; and the five open Scholarships shall be established as vacancies shall occur in the places heretofore held by the kin of the Founder, but so that the first election to an open Scholarship may be postponed (if the President and Fellows shall think fit) until it can be made sure that one open Scholarship shall always be vacant in every year.

13. If in any one year, either before or after the completion of the whole number of Merchant Taylors' Scholarships, there shall be more than three vacant Scholarships which under the provisions herein contained would in that year be filled up at Merchant Taylors' School, all or any of the vacancies above three may, if the President and Fellows, and the Master, Wardens, and Assistants shall so jointly determine, be kept open until a future year, so as to preserve, as far as possible, a regular supply of vacancies in each year.

14. Of the eight present Monitors, or boys holding the highest eight places in Merchant Taylors' School, such and so many as, if this ordinance had not been made, would have been eligible in the present year or in the year 1862 to places in the College, may be elected and admitted thereto notwithstanding this ordinance, and as if it had not been made; and the place in the College belonging to Reading School, and now vacant, may likewise be filled up in the present year, as if this ordinance had not been made; and the persons who may be so elected to such several places respectively shall be on the same footing in all respects, and have the same claim to be afterwards admitted to Fellowships, as the present Scholars on three years' probation, and the Scholarships and Fellowships to which they shall be so elected and admitted shall not be counted among the thirty-three Scholarships and eighteen Fellowships to be established by virtue of this ordinance.

15. The emoluments of every Fellow hereafter to be elected shall be equal, and shall be made up, as quickly as the funds disposable for the purpose will admit, to Two hundred pounds per annum, exclusive of any remuneration or allowance for any office, or any allowance for actual residence, or any right or advantage in respect of rooms; and the emoluments of every Scholar shall also be equal, and shall be made up, as soon as the funds will admit, to One hundred pounds per annum, annum, inclusive of all allowances; and such emoluments, whether amounting to more or less than the sums aforesaid, shall always be in the aforesaid proportion to each other.

16. As soon as the aforesaid eighteen Fellowships and thirty-three Scholarships shall have been established, and the emoluments of the Fellows and Scholars shall amount (one year with another) to the annual sums aforesaid, an annual sum (to be made up as quickly as the means of the College will admit to Six hundred pounds) shall become payable, and shall always thereafter be paid out of the corporate revenues of the College, to such purposes connected with the Professoriate of the University as the University by statute, with the consent of the President and Fellows, shall from time to time determine: Provided that, unless and until such statute be passed, the annual sum which would be so payable shall be applied to the creation of additional open Scholarships, and no Scholar who shall be elected to any such Scholarship shall be deprived of his emoluments by reason of the passing of any such University statute as aforesaid; but such statute shall operate only on the stipend of such Scholarship as the same shall become vacant. This direction, and the charge hereby imposed on the revenues of the College, shall be subject and without prejudice to the right of every Fellow and Scholar to receive emoluments to the average amount aforesaid. No Fellow or Scholar hereafter to be elected shall be entitled to receive more than the aforesaid emoluments in respect of his Fellowship or Scholarship until the whole number of Fellowships and Scholarships shall have been completed, and the said sum of Six hundred pounds shall have been appropriated in manner hereinbefore mentioned; nor shall this ordinance be construed to give to any such Fellow a claim as against the College to receive the full sum of Two hundred pounds, or any definite sum in any one year. The present President and every existing Fellow and Scholar shall be entitled (notwithstanding this ordinance) to receive the same emoluments as if this ordinance had not been made, but no such Fellow or Scholar shall by virtue of this ordinance be entitled to receive any larger emoluments in respect of his Fellowship or Scholarship: Provided, that it shall be lawful for the President and Fellows to commute the whole or any part of the emoluments (other than such allowances as are receivable only during actual residence, and rights derivable from the ownership of rooms) of each or any of the existing Fellows or Scholars, with the consent of such Fellow or Scholar, for an annual sum of fixed amount, or varying only according to such Fellow's or Scholar's degree or position in the College, or for an aliquot part of the fund out of which such emoluments, or such part of such emoluments, are respectively payable, for an aliquot part of any other fund, which for the sake of simplifying accounts it may be deemed expedient to substitute; so that the sum or aliquot part allotted to any position in the College or degree shall not exceed the amount or aliquot part which, on an average taken on the last fourteen years, shall have been received by Fellows or Scholars of the same degree or position in the College.

17. The Fellows of the College hereafter to be elected shall be subject, as regards qualification for election and otherwise, to the existing statutes of the College relating to Fellows, and the Scholars to the existing statutes relating to persons admitted to three years of probation, so far as the same are consistent with the provisions of this ordinance concerning Fellows and Scholars respectively.

18. This ordinance shall be without prejudice to the claim of every present Scholar on three years of probation to be admitted an actual Fellow of the College, and every such Scholar, if admitted a Fellow, shall stand on the same footing as if he had been in possession of his Fellowship at the time when this ordinance shall take effect; and in the construction of this ordinance the words "existing Fellow" shall include such persons, and the words "Fellow hereafter to be elected" shall not include such persons.

19. No person shall be incapable of being elected President of the College by reason of his not being or not having been a Fellow thereof, or a Canon or Student of Christ Church. The electors shall choose the person (not being otherwise disqualified according to the statutes of the College in force for the time being) who in their judgment shall be most fit for the government of the College as a place of religion, learning, and education.

20. The President shall be required to reside in the College seven calendar months at least in each year, whereof six weeks at least shall be in each Term, Easter and Trinity Terms being for this purpose considered as one Term: Provided, that, in case of the President's sickness, or for any other urgent cause, it shall be lawful for the Visitor to dispense with the President's residence for such a period as may seem to the Visitor to be required by the necessities of the case. This regulation shall take effect in lieu of the provisions of the existing statutes relating to the residence of the President.

21. The President and Fellows may at any time hereafter, if they shall think fit, commute the emoluments of the Presidentship, wholly or partially, for a stipend or annual sum of money payable in any other manner out of the revenues of the College, or for a certain proportion of the said revenues; and may fix the time at which such commutation shall take effect; and may also from time to time regulate, increase, or diminish the President's emoluments, whether commuted or uncommuted, as they shall think proper: Provided, that no exercise of this power shall affect the person then being President without his consent: Provided also, that this power shall be exercised at stated general meetings only, and that the Visitor, upon the petition of the President, or of any one or more of the Fellows, may disallow any such commutation, regulation, increase, or diminution, if he shall think fit. Any advowson or right of presentation to any ecclesiastical benefice held by the College, or any trust for the benefit of the President for the time being, or his nominee or nominees, shall, if such benefice shall be included in such commutation, be thenceforth held by the College discharged from the trust.

22. If at any time it shall appear that the President has become permanently incapable of performing the duties of his office, the Vice-President shall, upon the request of any three or more Fellows, convene a meeting of the whole body of the Fellows, after notice sent to such of them as may be within the United Kingdom, for the consideration of the matter; and it shall be lawful for a majority of the Fellows present at such meeting to present a petition to the Visitor, setting forth the circumstances of the case, and praying the Visitor to inquire into the truth of them; and the Visitor shall institute such inquiry accordingly. And if upon such inquiry, or upon a petition presented by the President (as the case may be), it shall appear to the satisfaction of the Visitor that the President has become permanently incapable of performing his duties, then the Visitor shall nominate one of such three Fellows as, by the vote of the greatest number of the Fellows present at a meeting convened by the Vice-President, shall be presented to him, to be Pro-President of the College, and shall assign to him for his maintenance, in addition to his Fellowship, so much (not exceeding one-third) of the President's dent's emoluments as the Visitor shall think fit; provided, that the President shall be at liberty to retain his lodgings. And such Pro-President shall, so long as the President shall retain his office, and be incapable of performing its duties, receive the proportion so assigned to him, and shall exercise and perform all the functions and duties, and have all the powers and authorities of President, except the power of consenting to any commutation, regulation or diminution of the President's emoluments, and shall be bound to residence in the same manner, and shall be liable to deprivation for the same causes, and in the same manner. If any Pro-President shall die, resign his office, vacate or be deprived of his Fellowship, or become incapable, the Visitor shall appoint a new Pro-President in the same manner. It shall be lawful for the Visitor, if at any time he shall be satisfied that the President's incapacity has ceased, and that he is capable of performing the duties of his office, to reinstate him in his powers and functions, and in the receipt of his whole emoluments. These provisions shall take effect in lieu of the provisions of the existing statutes relating to the President's incapacity.

23. The election of Fellows shall be vested in the President and the Fellows present at the time of election, and that candidate shall be deemed elected for whom the greatest number of votes shall have been given.

24. The election of Fellows shall take place on a stated day or stated days in each year, to be appointed by the President and Fellows, and thirty days at least before every day of election notice of every intended election, of the number of vacancies to be filled up, and of the conditions of election, shall be given by the President in such manner as he shall deem best adapted to secure publicity.

25. The intellectual qualifications of the candidates for Fellowships shall be tested by an examination in such subjects connected with the studies of the University as the President and Fellows shall determine; provided, that the system of examinations shall be such as shall render Fellowships accessible, from time to time, to excellence in every branch of knowledge for the time being recognised in the Schools of the University; and the President and Fellows shall elect that candidate, being not in other respects disqualified according to the statutes in force for the time being, who, after such examination, shall appear to them to be of the greatest merit, and most fit to be a Fellow of the College as a place of religion, religion, learning, and education. The President and Fellows may, if they shall think fit, appoint a Board or Committee to conduct the examination, and to determine the relative merits of the candidates as shown by the examination.

26. Every person hereafter elected to a Fellowship shall, before being admitted an actual Fellow, undergo probation for one year from the day of his election inclusive, and no longer; and at the end of such year shall be admitted to an actual Fellowship, if found fit to be a Fellow of the College in the judgment of the President and Fellows. Every person admitted to such probation shall be entitled to receive, during the year of probation, the same emoluments as if he had been admitted an actual Fellow.

27. The rank, privileges, and advantages which every person hereafter to be elected to a Fellowship shall hold and enjoy in the College shall (except so far as is otherwise hereinafter provided) be determined according to the date of his admission to such Fellowship.

28. Every Fellow who shall be instituted to an ecclesiastical benefice, or shall become entitled either by descent or devolution, or by virtue of any testamentary or other gift or settlement, to property, or to any Government pension, or be admitted to any office tenable for life or during good behaviour (not being an academical office within the University of Oxford), and who shall retain such benefice, property, pension, or office for twelve calendar months from the day of his institution, accession, or admission thereto, shall, if the annual value of such ecclesiastical benefice (being a benefice with cure of souls) clear of deductions (except for property or income-tax) shall exceed Three hundred pounds, or if the annual income derivable by him from such property, pension, or office, or from any ecclesiastical benefice without cure of souls, or from any two or more of the above-mentioned sources (including or not including a benefice with cure of souls), clear of deductions as aforesaid, shall exceed Five hundred pounds, vacate his Fellowship at the expiration of such twelve calendar months, and for this purpose the income which the estimated value of any property would produce, if invested in Three pounds per centum Consolidated Annuities at the price current at the time of the acquisition thereof, shall, in case of doubt, be considered to be the income derivable from such property. The word "property" shall in this clause include any estate or interest in possession in any property, real or personal. In any case in which the property or sources of income may have been acquired at several times, the latest time at which any part of such property, or any of such sources of income, shall have been acquired shall, in construing this clause, be considered as the time of the acquisition of the whole thereof. Except as aforesaid, no Fellow shall be disqualified for retaining his Fellowship by reason of his having become possessed of any property or income, or been instituted to any benefice.

29. In certain excepted cases Fellows may be elected and admitted without public notice of the vacancy, and without examination, and without the period of probation required by the statutes, and although the persons elected be married, and although they be in possession of any benefice, property, pension, or office, which would in ordinary cases render the possessor ineligible, and although they may not have passed the examinations required by the University for the degree of Bachelor of Arts, provided such persons are otherwise qualified for election. The excepted cases shall be as follows:—

(a) Any Professor or Public Lecturer within the University, for whose election a majority of the votes of the President and all the Fellows shall have been given, the President's vote being counted as two votes.

(b) Any Principal of a Hall within the University, not being a private Hall, and any person of eminence in literature, science, or art, on whom the University in Convocation shall have conferred a degree, either by diploma, or by decree of Convocation, or any honorary degree, provided that two-thirds of the votes of the President and all the Fellows shall have been given for the election of such Principal or other person as last aforesaid, the President's vote being counted as two votes.

30. The election in such excepted cases shall always be held more than thirty days before the usual day of election, and the electors may, at the time of election, determine the rank which the person elected shall hold in the College, without reference to the date of his election, provided that such rank shall confer no other than honorary privileges; provided also that no married Fellow shall be entitled to rooms in the College, nor to any allowance in respect of rooms.

31. Any Fellow who shall marry, or become possessed of any any benefice, property, pension, or office, which would in ordinary cases disqualify him for continuing a Fellow, may nevertheless, if he shall then be a Professor or Public Lecturer in the University, be retained in his Fellowship by a majority of the votes of the President and all the Fellows, or if he shall be Principal of any Hall (not being a private Hall), by two-thirds of the votes of the President and all the Fellows, the President's vote being in each case counted as two votes; provided that this power shall be exercised, if at all, at some stated general meeting previous to the day on which the Fellowship would otherwise be vacated.

32. Any Fellow elected under clause 29, or retained under clause 31, shall (except in the case hereinafter mentioned) be deemed entitled thereafter to hold his Fellowship, although he may afterwards marry or become possessed of any property, pension, or office, or of any benefice (not being a benefice in the gift of the College, the possession of which would in ordinary cases be incompatible with the retention of a Fellowship).

33. Any person elected under clause 29, or retained under clause 31, and being a Professor or Public Lecturer within the University, who, at the time of his election or retention, shall hold a benefice with cure of souls, and who shall continue to hold such benefice for six calendar months afterwards, shall thereby vacate his Fellowship; and no person elected or retained under either of the said clauses shall, by virtue thereof, be enabled to hold with his Fellowship any benefice in the gift of the College, the possession of which would in ordinary cases be incompatible with the retention of a Fellowship. Every Professor, Public Lecturer, or Principal of a Hall, elected or retained under either of the said clauses, who shall cease to hold such Professorship, Public Lectureship, or Principalship, and every Professor or Public Lecturer elected or retained as aforesaid, who shall be instituted to any benefice with cure of souls, shall thereby vacate his Fellowship.

34. It shall be lawful for the President and Fellows, at stated general meetings, to elect distinguished persons to Honorary Fellowships within the College. Persons so elected shall be termed Honorary Fellows, and shall not be entitled to vote on any occasion as Fellows, or to receive any emolument whatever, but shall be entitled to enjoy such other privileges and advantages as the President and Fellows shall by resolution from time to time determine. The conditions of eligibility to and tenure of Honorary Fellowships, and the mode of election thereto, may also be determined by the President and Fellows from time to time. Honorary Fellows shall not, in the construction of this ordinance, be counted among the Fellows of the College, nor Honorary Fellowships among the Fellowships of the College.

35. No Fellow or Scholar shall, by reason of anything contained in the existing statutes, be liable on ceasing to be a member of the College to refund any emoluments previously received by him; but every Fellow who shall be elected to and accept a Headship or Fellowship in any other College within the University, or shall marry, shall thereupon vacate his Fellowship.

36. The provisions respecting the residence of Fellows and Scholars, and the mode of granting leave of absence from the University, contained in the existing statutes, shall be henceforth void. The President and Fellows shall, at the first stated general meeting, or as soon afterwards as conveniently may be, make such regulations respecting the residence of Fellows and Scholars within the University, and respecting the mode in which, and the conditions under which, leave of absence may be granted to any Fellow or Scholar, as they may deem expedient for the interests of the College as a place of learning and education, and may vary such regulations from time to time, and may enforce such regulations, if they shall think fit, by pecuniary penalties, and in case of contumacious non-compliance, by deprivation. Such regulations shall be made and varied at stated general meetings only. In the meantime, and until such regulations can be made, the President and Fellows may at any ordinary meeting or meetings make provisional regulations for the same purposes, which shall be binding on the members of the College.

37. The Fellowships shall always be considered as divided into two classes, called respectively Clerical Fellowships and Lay Fellowships. One-third of the whole number of Fellows for the time being may always be holders of Lay Fellowships. No holder of a Lay Fellowship shall be required to take Holy Orders as a condition of retaining his Fellowship. No person shall be eligible to a Clerical Fellowship who shall not be a Priest or Deacon of the United Church of England and Ireland, or have declared that he intends to take Holy Orders in the said Church. Every person who shall have made such declaration shall be required to take Deacon's Orders at the least least within one year after the time at which he shall be of sufficient standing to take the degree of Master of Arts by the statutes of the University, and shall have reached the canonical age; and, if at the expiration of the year he shall have failed to take Orders, he shall, except in case of unsoundness of mind, vacate his Fellowship: Provided, that it shall be lawful for the President and Fellows, in case of sickness, or for any other very urgent cause, to grant a delay for a period not exceeding one year. If any holder of a Lay Fellowship shall take Holy Orders, his Fellowship shall be deemed a Clerical Fellowship, and a holder of a Clerical Fellowship not in Holy Orders may thereupon, with the permission of the President and Fellows, enter the class of Lay Fellows.

38. Every holder of a Clerical Fellowship shall be required to take the degrees of Master of Arts and Bachelor of Divinity within one year after the time at which he shall be of sufficient standing to take those degrees respectively by the statutes of the University; and every holder of a Lay Fellowship shall be required to take either the degree of Master of Arts, or the degrees of Bachelor and Doctor of Civil Law, or those of Bachelor and Doctor of Medicine, within one year after the time at which he shall be of sufficient standing to take those degrees respectively by the statutes of the University. Any Fellow failing to comply with the foregoing provisions shall vacate his Fellowship: Provided, that the President and Fellows may, whenever they shall deem it just on special grounds to do so, allow the taking of any such degree to be postponed for a period not exceeding, except in cases of unsoundness of mind, one year. These provisions shall take effect in lieu of the provisions contained in the existing statutes respecting the faculties of the members of the College, and the time and conditions of taking degrees in the said faculties.

39. The President and Fellows shall, once at least in every ten years, lay before the Visitor a statement in writing of the annual revenue and expenditure of the College for the preceding ten years, or for the period which may have elapsed since the date of the last statement (as the case may be); and shall also furnish to the Visitor such additional information (if any) as he shall require, for enabling him to form a judgment of the means and requirements, and general state and condition of the College. And it shall be lawful for the Visitor thereupon, if it shall appear to him that the revenues of the College are sufficient to afford to each Fellow an average income of more than Three hundred pounds a year (exclusive of rooms or any allowance in respect thereof, but inclusive of all other allowances), to direct either that the number of Fellowships shall be increased, or that any part of such revenues shall be applied in increasing the number of the open Scholarships, or the number or emoluments of the Exhibitions within the College, or shall be set apart for general College purposes; and any sums which shall be so set apart shall be applied to such College purposes as the President and Fellows, with the approbation of the Visitor, shall determine.

40. The President and Fellows shall not, by reason of any clause or provision in the existing statutes of the College, be prohibited or restrained from dividing amongst themselves or otherwise disposing of the clear surplus of the corporate revenues of the College as they might have done if the statutes had contained no such clause or provision. But nothing herein contained shall render compulsory the division or other disposal of any part of any fund hitherto reserved for meeting repairs and other College expenses and liabilities, or to prohibit the reservation of such part as may be deemed prudent or expedient.

41. The power of depriving the President for such causes as, according to the statutes of the College in force for the time being, shall require deprivation, shall be vested in the Visitor alone, and shall be exercised by him, after due inquiry, upon the petition of the major part of all the Fellows; and the power of depriving Fellows for such causes as, according to the statutes of the College in force for the time being, shall require deprivation, shall be vested in the President and the whole body of the Fellows, and shall be exercised by the vote of the major part of the President and all the Fellows, subject only to such appeal to the Visitor as is hereinafter provided; and the President and Fellows may deprive any Scholar of his Scholarship for any misconduct which in their judgment shall merit deprivation: Provided, that this clause shall not affect the Visitor's power (if any) of depriving, by his own authority, any member of the College.

42. Whenever there shall be no duly qualified candidate for a Fellowship, whom the electors shall judge of sufficient merit for election, and whenever a Fellowship shall fall vacant, and there shall not be time to give the notice hereinbefore directed before the day of election, the election shall be postponed poned to some other day, to be fixed by the President and Fellows for the purpose, not later than the next ensuing stated day of election to Fellowships; and every such postponed election shall be held and conducted in the same manner, and after the same previous notice, as if there had been no postponement.

43. Whenever there shall be no candidate for a vacant open Scholarship, or for an appropriated Scholarship which shall have been thrown open under the foregoing provisions, whom the electors shall judge of sufficient merit for election, and whenever an open Scholarship shall fall vacant, and there shall not be time to give the notice hereinbefore directed before the day of election, the election shall be postponed to some other day to be fixed by the President and Fellows for the purpose, not later than the next ensuing stated day of election to open Scholarships; and every such postponed election shall be held and conducted in the same manner, and after the same previous notice, as if there had been no postponement.

44. The President and Fellows may from time to time regulate, as they shall think fit, the duties and emoluments of the officers of the College, and the mode of their appointment or election, and may institute such new and suppress such existing offices as they shall deem it expedient to institute or suppress, with a view to the better management of the affairs of the College and the instruction and discipline of its members, and may assign to such new offices such stipends or emoluments as the President and Fellows shall think proper, and may, if they shall think fit, nominate and appoint from time to time a Committee for the management of the estates and other property of the College, and may make rules and regulations for such Committee, and allot stipends to the members of the same: Provided that the powers given by this section, so far as they relate to the institution of new and the suppression of existing offices, and the first appointment of a Committee of Management, and the assigning stipends to the same, shall not be exercised except at a stated General Meeting: Provided also, that it shall be lawful for the Visitor, upon the petition of the President, or of any one or more of the Fellows, or of any officer of the College whose stipend or emoluments may have been diminished in exercise of the foregoing power, to disallow such regulation or assignment, if he shall think fit: Provided further, that the Presidentship shall not be deemed an office within the meaning of this clause.

45. The President and Fellows shall at the first stated general meeting, or as soon afterwards as conveniently may be, make regulations for the daily performance of Divine service, according to the Liturgy of the United Church of England and Ireland, within the College, during full term and at such other times as they shall think proper, and for attendance on the same, and may vary such regulations from time to time; but such regulations shall be made and varied at stated general meetings only, and the Visitor shall have power to disallow and annul any such regulations, or any variation thereof. In the meantime, and until such regulations can be made, the President and Fellows may at any ordinary meeting or meetings make provisional regulations for the same purposes. The provisions of the existing statutes relating to Divine service shall be henceforth void.

46. In case the President or any Fellow of the College shall contumaciously cease to conform to the Liturgy of the United Church of England and Ireland, as by law established, such contumacious ceasing to conform shall be a cause for depriving the President of his Presidentship, and any such Fellow of his Fellowship.

47. The oaths prescribed by the existing statutes shall not hereafter be taken, but every person elected or admitted to any place or office, on election or admission to which an oath is now required, shall, at the time of his election or admission, make a declaration, to the effect that he will faithfully perform the duties of such place or office, and obey the statutes and bye-laws of the College in force for the time being, so far as they may concern him; and the electors to any place or office before electing to which an oath is now required (not being an annual office), shall, before electing, make a declaration, to the effect that they will elect the person best qualified in their judgment for such place or office.

48. The President and all actual Fellows of the College, being Graduates of the full age of twenty-one years, shall henceforth be the Governing Body of the College; and all the powers which by the existing statutes are vested in the President and ten senior Fellows alone, or jointly with any of the officers of the College, shall (subject to, and so far as the same are consistent with, the provisions of this ordinance) be vested vested in the President and all such graduate Fellows present at any College meeting. There shall be two stated general meetings at least of the President and the whole body of the Fellows in every year, on such days as the President and Fellows shall from time to time appoint. Any stated general meeting may be adjourned, by resolution of the meeting, to a day to be specified in the resolution. The vote of the President shall be counted as two votes at all College meetings, and in all elections except the election to Scholarships at Merchant Taylors' School; and whenever the votes shall be equal he shall have an additional casting vote. Subject to the foregoing provision, and except in cases in which the concurrence of any specified proportion of the President and Fellows, or the consent of the President, is hereby made requisite, every question arising at any meeting shall be determined by a majority of the votes of those present. The seal of the College shall not be affixed to any act or document except in the presence of the President (or in his absence the Vice-President), one of the Bursars, and at least one other Fellow, being a member of the Governing Body. All the Fellows, being Graduates and of full age, without distinction of Faculty or standing in the College, shall be entitled to be present and vote at every College meeting. Any statute, rule, or usage of the College which prohibits or restrains, expressly or by implication, any person present at any College meeting from bringing forward thereat any question which he may think proper, or from having such question put to the vote, shall, so far as regards such prohibition or restraint, be henceforth void: Provided, that the President and Fellows may make from time to time such rules for regulating the proceedings at College meetings, and for determining what business shall be transacted thereat, and for fixing (if they shall think fit) the notice to be given before bringing forward any question, as they shall deem expedient.

49. The power which is given by the existing statutes to the Vice-President to act in the place of the President, and the power of any officer of the College who may hereafter be authorised by any statute or bye-law to act in place of the President, shall be deemed to extend to all the acts which the President is hereby authorised or directed to do, except the giving consent to any commutation, regulation or diminution of the President's emoluments.

50. The particular provisions of the existing statutes respecting the presentation of the President at the time of his election to the Dean and Chapter of Christ Church, or to the Chancellor or Vice-Chancellor of the University of Oxford, and his taking an oath before the said Dean and Chapter, Chancellor, or Vice-Chancellor, or any one or more of them, and respecting the hours and subjects of study and instruction within the College, the disputations and other exercises to be performed by its members, and their attendance in the Schools and at the exercises of the University; and respecting sermons to be preached by members of the College; and respecting the devotions, dress, conversation, recreations, and other personal habits of the members of the College, and the conditions of their going beyond the precincts thereof; and respecting the meals of the members of the College, and the mode of serving and conducting the same; and respecting the inquiries to be made into the life and conduct of the members of the College, and the mode of making the same; and respecting the punishments for offences not being such as require deprivation; and respecting the treatment and support of Fellows and Scholars in case of sickness or infirmity; and respecting the distribution of rooms, and the use of the common hall and other common rooms, or buildings of the College; and respecting the use of the library; and respecting the times of opening and closing the gates and doors of the College; and respecting the admission of strangers into the precincts of the College; and respecting the admission of Commoners; and respecting the reading of the statutes; and respecting the service of the College, and the number, duties, and payment of the servants of the same; and respecting progresses and other matters relative to the supervision of the property of the College; and respecting the custody and inspection of the moneys, plate, and other goods of the College, other than the muniments and seals, shall be void. The President and Fellows shall from time to time make such regulations as they may deem necessary or desirable for effecting the main objects which the aforesaid particular provisions, or any of them, are respectively intended to effect, and may enforce such regulations by such penalties as they shall think fit, subject to such right of appeal to the Visitor on the part of any person who may deem himself aggrieved thereby as is hereinafter provided.

51. The President and Fellows may, if they shall deem it expedient, suppress the office usually known as that of Bible Clerk, by whatever name the same may be called in the existing statutes, and may, in lieu of the existing Bible Clerkship ship or Bible Clerkships, create one or more Scholarship or Scholarships, to be tenable for five years, the election to which shall be made by the President and Fellows as vacancies occur, after examination in such subjects as to them may seem fit; and may annex to such Scholarship or Scholarships any sum or sums of money or endowment that may have been granted or bequeathed to the College for the support and maintenance of the Bible Clerk, or of any additional Bible Clerk; and any Scholarship so created shall be called a "Holmes Scholarship."

52. No member of the College who may be charged with any offence shall, by reason of any provision in the existing statutes, be prohibited or restrained from calling for a copy of the charges made against him, or for the name or names of the person or persons making such charges.

53. The power given by the existing statutes to the President, ten senior Fellows and Officers, of making statutes, rules, or bye-laws, shall not hereafter be exercised. Bye-laws, binding on all the members of the College, not being repugnant to any of the statutes of the College in force for the time being, may be made by the President and Fellows at stated general meetings, and such bye-laws may be enforced by pecuniary penalties.

54. If in any case it shall appear to the Visitor that, by reason of any change in the value of money, any specific sum fixed by this ordinance, or which may be hereafter fixed in exercise of any power given by this ordinance, has become insufficient or excessive, and that such insufficiency or excess is productive of injustice or hardship, or is injurious to the general interests of the College, it shall be lawful for the Visitor from time to time, for the purpose of correcting or obviating such injustice, hardship, or injury, to direct that such annual sum shall be increased or diminished as he shall think fit, and the increased or diminished sum shall thenceforth be substituted for and stand in the place of the sum originally fixed as aforesaid.

55. It shall be lawful for the Visitor in person, or by his Commissary or Commissaries duly appointed, once in every ten years (or oftener, if and whenever he shall deem it expedient for enforcing the due observance of the statutes in force for the time being to do so), without any request or application by the College or any of its Members, to visit the College, and to exercise at such visitation all the powers which are by law incident to the office of General Visitor of a College, any statute or usage of the College to the contrary notwithstanding. It shall be lawful for the Visitor at any such visitation, or if he shall think fit at other times, to require the President and Fellows to answer in writing touching any matter as to which the Visitor may deem it expedient to inquire, for the purpose of satisfying himself whether the statutes in force for the time being are duly observed.

56. As often as any question shall arise on which the President and Fellows shall be unable to agree, depending wholly or in part on the construction of any of the statutes of the College, it shall be lawful for the President and Fellows, or for the President or any three of the Fellows, to submit the same to the Visitor; and it shall be lawful for the Visitor to declare what is the true construction of such statute or statutes with reference to the case submitted to him.

57. It shall be lawful for the President, or for any Fellow, if he shall conceive himself aggrieved by any act or decision of the President and Fellows, and for any Scholar who may have been deprived of his Scholarship, to appeal against such act or decision or sentence to the Visitor; and it shall be lawful for the Visitor to adjudicate on such appeal, and to disallow and annul such act or decision, and to reverse or vary such sentence, as he shall deem just.

58. It shall be lawful for the Visitor, either proprio motu, or on the complaint of the President or any of the Fellows, to disallow and annul any bye-law or resolution of the President and Fellows which shall, in the Visitor's judgment, be repugnant to any of the statutes of the College in force for the time being.

59. The President and Fellows, by a majority consisting of not less than two-thirds of the votes of those present, the vote of the President being counted as two votes, may from time to time, at any stated general meeting, amend the statutes of the College, with the consent of the Visitor, and with the approval of Her Majesty in Council: Provided that, if any of the aforesaid Schools shall be affected by any proposed amendment, the President and Fellows shall give to the Governing Body of every School so affected such notice of their intention to apply for the approval of Her Majesty in Council as shall be sufficient to enable such Governing Body to petition Her Majesty in Council for the approval or rejection of such proposed amendment, or otherwise in relation thereto.

60. Wherever

60. Wherever the words "the Fellows," or "the President and Fellows," or "the President and all the Fellows," are used in this ordinance, the word "Fellows" shall mean actual Fellows being Graduates, and of the full age of twenty-one years. No undergraduate Fellow shall, by virtue of this ordinance, be entitled to any voice or power in amending statutes or making regulations under this ordinance, nor to any voice or power in the affairs of the College to which he would not be entitled under the existing statutes.

MAYNOOTH COLLEGE.

REPORT of a VISITATION held at the COLLEGE of MAYNOOTH, on the 4th day of June 1861.

To THE QUEEN'S MOST EXCELLENT MAJESTY.

May it please Your Majesty,

WE the undersigned visitors of the College of Maynooth, in pursuance of the Act passed in the Session held in the 8th and 9th years of Your Majesty's reign, entitled, "An Act to amend two Acts passed in Ireland, for the better Education of Persons professing the Roman Catholic Religion, &c.," and also an Act passed in the Parliament of the United Kingdon for amending the said two Acts, held, on Tuesday the 4th of June 1861, a visitation of the said college.

We met at 12 o'clock, the hour appointed, in the reception room of the college; the minutes of the last visitation having been read, and the order of the visitation arranged, we proceeded to the great hall of the college, where the superiors, professors, and students were assembled. The names of the superiors, professors, and students were called over by the senior dean: all the superiors, all the professors, with the exception of one who was absent on leave, and 486 students, were found to be in attendance; eight students, although in residence, were prevented by illness from attending the visitation; 30 were reported absent on sick leave; the total number on the college books being 524, of whom 10 are bursars. They are distributed as follows:—Dunboyne students, 14; first class of divinity, 26; second ditto, 60; third ditto, 91; fourth ditto, 82; class of natural philosophy, 64; logic class, 81; rhetoric class, 59; humanity class, 47. The roll having been called over, we proceeded to inquire whether the President had any complaint to make? He replied that he had none, the condition of the college, both moral and literary, during the past year, having been in his opinion perfectly satisfactory.

We made a similar inquiry of the other superiors and professors, and finally of the students; who made no complaint. We renewed, on this occasion, the notice ordinarily given to the community, that, if any cause of complaint should arise in the college before the next visitation, whether it affected the superiors, professors, or students, we would receive and attend to any such complaint, if authenticated by the signature of the complainant, and forwarded to any of the visitors. We then inquired whether the oath of allegiance had been taken by the students.

The President informed us that every student now in the college has taken the oath of allegiance, with the exception of seven, who were absent at the time of the last January quarter sessions, and 17 who have entered since that date; all these will be required to take the oath of allegiance on the next occasion at which they can attend quarter sessions. It was then asked, If in the number and names of the superiors and professors of the college, or in their respective duties or salaries, any change had taken place since the last visitation? The President replied that, in these respects, all was as at the last visitation. He then informed us that since that time, 100 candidates had presented themselves for matriculation, of whom nine had been rejected and 91 received, viz., at the general entrance examination, 56; at the September examination, 10; in November, eight; in January, 11; and in March, six. Of these, four were admitted to the class of theology, three to that of natural philosophy, 12 to that of logic, 25 to that of rhetoric, and 47 to that of humanity. We inquired whether any improvement had been made in the accommodation, or in the dietary of the college since the last visitation. The President informed us, that both remained the same; but that preparations for some important alterations have been made, viz., for the building of a new infirmary, for lighting the college with gas, for heating the apartments of the students, and for staunching the windows of the western wing of the college; that, pursuant to the 23 & 24 Vict. c. 104, s. 1, 2, the trustees had entered into a negotiation with the Commissioners of Public Works in Ireland, for an advance of the funds necessary for the completion of the works above specified; that all the plans of the proposed works are in readiness; that advertisements have been issued, calling for proposals for their execution; and that it was hoped that in a few weeks the proposed works would be in actual progress.

We inquired as to the sanitary condition of the college; the President replied, that, owing to the unusual severity of the past season, the health of the community had been below the average. In the month of December, no fewer than 78 students were on the sick list on the same day; and in the other months the maximum numbers on one day were as follows: September, 27; October, 38; November, 60; January, 46; February, 47 (not including some of the invalids who remained at home after the Christmas vacation); March, 43; April, 36; May, 36. During the whole season, 45 cases of serious illness were reported, 17 of which were attended with considerable danger. Of this entire number, five died, three in the college and two at their homes; 26 recovered satisfactorily, and 14 still remain invalids, in various degrees of delicacy. An unusual proportion of these cases were of blood-spitting; in almost all of which the patients had resided in that part of the building, the defects of which were pointed out by the President in his report of last year, and in which it is intended to remedy those defects by the works at present in progress. In reply to our inquiry, how many students have been ordained priests since the last visitation? the President stated that 47 students had received priesthood during the past year, 27 at the general ordination, and 20 at various times during the session; and that four Dunboyne students, who had been priests, were called to their respective dioceses at different periods during the year; making a total of 51 priests who have been summoned to the mission by their Bishops since the last visitation.

We then proceeded to inspect the several departments of the college, the apartments of the students, and the general state of the building. This inspection confirmed us in our opinion of the absolute necessity, not only for the comfort and health, but indeed for the lives of the students, of the projected improvements referred to by the President.

With this exception, and that which regards the general health of the students, we considered the general condition of the college as very satisfactory.

NATIONAL EDUCATION (IRELAND).

RETURN to an Order of the Honourable The House of Commons, dated 22 April 1861;—for,

COPY "of a LETTER on the Subject of NATIONAL EDUCATION in Ireland, addressed to the Chief Secretary in the Month of July last by certain Members of Parliament."

Sir, London, 10 August 1860.

WE, the undersigned Members of Parliament, regret that, owing to the unavoidable postponement of the Estimates, the greater part of the Session has passed without an announcement having been made respecting the intentions of Her Majesty's Government with reference to Education in Ireland. Regarding that subject as one of solemn and daily increasing importance, we are anxious to become acquainted with those intentions at a period sufficiently early to allow of our giving to them a mature consideration before the Session concludes. We have read with attention the reply sent by you on the 28th of November last to the memorial addressed to you, on the 5th of the previous August, by the Catholic Archbishops and Bishops of Ireland. In that reply you have made several statements, from which it appears that, at least upon some momentous points, your views accord with those expressed in that memorial. Such would seem to be the opinion also of the Archbishops and Bishops, who in their second letter, dated March 18th, 1860, express themselves thus: "Examining your letter we are happy to find that you lay down and fully admit, on the part of the Government, principles of great importance, in which we cheerfully concur." Without wishing to anticipate the Parliamentary discussion, which must soon take place, by any expression of opinion with regard to mixed or to separate education, we wish to know whether we have understood aright the meaning of your letter. It is no doubt your wish, no less than ours, that on this matter there should be no misconception. On no subject is it of more importance than on that of education, that the engagements entered into by the State should be unequivocal in their character, and maintained with good faith.

The changes made in the system of National Education have been very numerous. That in their cumulative effect they have had a gravity not anticipated when each of them was successively made will now be denied by few. That through them the system has been affected in its fundamental principles and its essential characteristics, is a fact not merely conceded, but willingly and warmly asserted, in their pamphlets and public speeches, by various Protestant clergymen, and especially by Archdeacon Stopford. These gentlemen affirm that but for the changes in question they could not conscientiously have joined that system; but that owing to them they now enjoy opportunities of inculcating on children in their schools, not of their own faith, those religious doctrines which they hold specially precious; opportunities even more favourable than those formerly accorded to them by the Kildare Place Society. In their evidence before Parliamentary Committees, and in that given by Mr. M'Creedy, Mr. Carlisle, and other persons connected with the administration of the system, similar statements are reiterated. Now the institution of National Education in Ireland, upon the withdrawal of the grant to the Kildare Place Society, involved a compact of no ordinary character. From it even "the suspicion of proselytism" was to be excluded, and in it was guaranteed a principle no less sacred in the political than in the moral sphere, viz.: that "we should do to others as we wish others to do to us;" a principle for which the prelates and the people of Ireland had long contended in vain. The successive changes to which we refer were in several cases urged by their respective advocates as experiments, and their full effects could only be ascertained by experience. They were, with few exceptions, made in direct opposition to the original principles and provisions of the system as compendiously set forth in Mr. Stanley's letter. You refer expressly, and on several occasions, to that document as the exponent and authoritative standard of the National System. The principles "of that system you state were clearly laid down by the Earl of Derby in the well known letter addressed by him to the Duke of Leinster, in the year 1831;" and further on you justly remark, with reference to certain grievances which we lament, "the principles recorded in Lord Derby's letter appear to afford no opening for any such complaint." You proceed: "If any ground for it exist in practice the members of any church are entitled to bring their grievance to the notice of him in authority. From whatever quarter such a representation might proceed it would not fail to receive the most careful attention. It certainly would not fail to do so when made by the spiritual pastors of by far the larger number of pupils receiving education in the schools."

You have also singled out and especially reaffirmed several important principles contained in that letter, and enforced with a single exception, by the earlier rules of the Board. You observe—1st. In dealing with the subject of education they (the Government) "readily acknowledge the paramount importance of religious training." We are persuaded, therefore, that you cannot be contented with a system by which, in large parts of the country, the Catholic pupil has no alternative except that of receiving no spiritual culture in school, or else of receiving it from a Protestant instructor. An injustice so palpable could not have existed under the system announced by Mr. Stanley; according to it, one day at least, exclusive of Sunday, was to be set apart for religious instruction, and "permission and encouragement afforded to the clergy to give religious instruction, or have it given, by those whom they may approve, either before or after the ordinary school hours on the other days of the week."

2dly. You admit that "in the circumstances of Ireland this religious training must be separate;" such was the original engagement. That principle was discarded, and what was called a "common" religious instruction, was introduced into the ordinary class books. This change soon became the cause of much dispute and contention, and has discouraged the united education, and diminished the social harmony it was intended to promote. Is it your intention to make any alteration in this respect?"

3dly. You state that this separate religious training "can only be superintended with success by teachers of the different churches into which the country is divided. They, therefore (the Government), cheerfully recognize the right which belongs, and the duty which attaches, to the heads of the respective churches in regard to religious instruction, and desire to afford to the clergy every possible facility and encouragement for the discharge of their important duty."

This is an unequivocal assertion of that pastoral authority originally recognized by Mr. Stanley's letter. That authority has been set aside. Some persons have not hesitated to assume or to insinuate that such authority is at variance with parental authority. See the Catholic, as in other Christian communities; parents, and the pastors in whom they confide, have the same wishes with regard to the religious education of the young, while parents possess no means, except through their pastors, of carrying those wishes into effect. The assumption of an antagonism between parents and pastors, where it is not a mere misconception, has commonly come from those who wished to produce that antagonism. Supposing it to exist, it is obvious that the recognition of pastoral authority made by Mr. Stanley's letter, and recently by yourself, could not furnish the slightest means of enforcing that authority. The original education system, however, supplied the opportunities through which the pastors of all denominations were enabled to impart spiritual instruction to children willing and glad to receive it, and included no provision by which, through unwariness, credulity, or timidity, a poor and dependent peasantry might be coerced or beguiled into an apparent consent to a religious education obtruded upon their children by teachers of a faith opposed to their own. Are we right in inferring that you are prepared on the one hand to enforce the right of pastors as originally guaranteed, and on the other to provide that no child be henceforth allowed to attend (at the hours of separate instruction) the religious teaching given by teachers not of their own faith, except when an express permission in writing writing to that effect, positive not negative, distinctly conceded, not deduced by inference, has been previously accorded by his parent. Let it be remembered that it is by universal and self-acting rules alone that the safety of the child can be assured in this matter, not by any occasional success which may attend extraordinary exertions on the part of the local clergy. You remark, "In the schools of which the patrons are Roman Catholic, the religious instruction is Roman Catholic, while in all schools vested in the National Board, Roman Catholic pastors have free access, before and after school hours, for the purpose of giving instruction to the pupils of their own church." This is true, but the classification is incomplete.

You make no mention of the schools under Protestant patrons. Many such patrons are just and religious men, but among them are also many who will neither allow a Catholic priest within the walls of their school, nor grant a site for a school under a Catholic patron.

It has been stated, that through a law enabling the Government to take up sites for schools as it does for coast-guard stations, the non-vested system might be made in all parts of the country alike, to work impartially as regards Catholics and Protestants. Such suggestions may be well worthy of consideration; but, avoiding all debateable matter, we confine ourselves here to the assertion of our undoubted rights as solemnly pledged to the whole people of Ireland by the National system of 1831.

You make the following statement: "While, therefore, I convey to you, on the part of Her Majesty's Government, the declaration of their firm adherence to a system of education open equally at the hours set apart for secular instruction to every denomination of Christians, I declare to you, with equal plainness, their desire to give full effect to that other principle of the system which provides for separate religious teaching, and respects, in the case of every child, the just authority of the parent." You are, doubtless, well aware, that in very many schools, Catholic children possess, under the changed rules, no religious teaching whatever except what is imparted to them, with a ludicrous assurance that their faith is not to be tampered with by persons accustomed, both in private society and at public meetings, to stigmatise as a mass of superstition, imbecility and idolatry, the religion of those parents whose just authority you are resolved to respect. How do you propose to realise your engagements? Are we to understand that you will return to the original system?

There are several other points respecting which we should regard it as a favour if you could supply us with early information.

They relate to matters on which you have as yet expressed no definite opinion.

1. The system of Literary Model Schools, used also as additional training schools, and educating together, under a common roof, youths removed from all domestic control, and subjected to no adequate collegiate discipline, formed no part of the original scheme of education. In them the State, not content with promoting, directing and superintending education, assumes the direct function of educator. Is it your intention to maintain or abolish this innovation, which has given rise to grave apprehension, and threatens to spread over the land a network of Government education at present scarcely known in any other part of the world?

2. The class books have been invariably composed by Protestants, and though in many respects good, are commonly regarded (with reference to their religious spirit and their indirect religious influence) with dissatisfaction by Catholics. Have you any objection to sanction the compilation of additional books, to be used by such patrons as may prefer them?

3. Are you prepared to recommend a nearer approach to justice in the distribution of administrative patronage? Do you consider that a vast Catholic majority in the schools should be represented by a Catholic minority on the Board? As regards the inspection department, do you deem it just and expedient that there should exist an immense majority of Protestant inspectors in those districts where Catholics most need protection?

4. The Presbyterian worship, prayer, psalmody and preaching is admitted in non-vested schools. The Catholic worship is excluded, under the plea of excluding sacraments, as are also the sign of the cross, brief intervals of mental prayer, and all religious emblems. Are you prepared in this matter to adopt the principle of equality?

5. Building grants are at present restricted to schools vested in the Board. Are you willing to revert to the original conditions of such grants?

6. Are the schools of the Christian Brothers, and of nuns, to be treated as favourably as the other schools?

We have asked for information, because it is necessary that we should have the facts of the case before us in their completeness. We wish to know whether the alternative proposed to us is the English system on the one hand, and the original Irish system on the other, or whether we are invited to acquiesce in a system equally remote from both.

In conclusion, you justly remark that a very large number of the pupils in the National schools, as well as the patrons and teachers, are Roman Catholics; that circumstance results from the fact that the Roman Catholics of Ireland frankly accepted the National system, while in the three southern provinces the great mass of the Protestants rejected and denounced it. Grateful for the past services, and for the good intention of those who introduced the National system, confident that it would be administered in good faith, and aware that none of its important rules could be changed without the consent of the Lord Lieutenant, they did not narrowly scrutinize alterations made at the urgency of others, although they deemed them to be no improvements.

To this system they have long adhered, although year by year further concessions, the importance of which became but gradually apparent, were made in deference to the acute urgency of others, while the modifications sought by the Catholic prelates were steadily refused. It remains to be seen whether their confidence has or has not been a blind one.

To approve of the National system as it stands is to disapprove of that system as originally instituted and accepted by them. Let it be remembered that the more widely the National system extends itself throughout the country the more severely must the soundness of its principles be tested, and the more fatally must be exposed the fallacy of all principles not originally sound or not maintained in their integrity.

It is a narrow jealousy, not an enlightened prudence, which can take offence at such expressions as these: "Though anxious to promote every branch of science and of literature, we repudiate any system in which education is restricted to temporal and material concerns." No statesman worthy of the name can fail to recognize the wisdom and moderation of statements such as the following: "Every Catholic layman, believing the pastors of the Church to have a divinely constituted authority, not derived either from the congregation or the state, cheerfully allow their right to teach all revealed doctrines, and to prevent the propagation of error; whilst, on the other hand, the pastor, if religious truth be secured from false teaching, leave their flocks at full liberty to expatiate, as they will, in the paths of mere secular knowledge." Such principles are, no doubt, among those in which you concur with our prelates. Rightly to hold the balance and adjust the claims of things spiritual and things temporal is the first condition of a system of education capable of maintaining itself long, and subserving the public good and the cause of virtue.

We trust that no petty suspicions or ill considered exactions in this matter may add another to those causes of discontent and ill-will, by which our country and the empire have been so long afflicted and so often imperilled.

We are, &c.

N.B.—Owing to the difficulty of obtaining the required information for a period so long gone by, this Return is restricted to the last quarter of the year 1860. But it may be assumed that could we ascertain the religious denominations of the total number of pupils passing through the National Schools during the whole of the year 1860—i.e., 804,000—there would appear an addition to the respective numbers of each of the various religious denominations for the year in the same proportions that at present exist with respect to the pupils whose religious persuasions have been ascertained for the December quarter only.

The number of each religious denomination would then stand thus:—

ABERDEEN UNIVERSITY.

RETURN to an Address of the Honourable The House of Commons, dated 26 April 1861;—for,

"COPIES of the RESOLUTIONS of the Senatus Academicus of the University of Aberdeen, passed on the 2d day of February 1861, respecting the SITE of the CLASSES of ARTS; together with the Amendment on the said Resolution moved at the Meeting of Senatus on that day, and the Names of those who voted for the said Resolutions and Amendment respectively; specifying, in regard to each Member so voting, whether he was connected, either as Professor or Graduate, with either of the late Colleges, and if so, with which of them:"

"And, of all CORRESPONDENCE with the Scottish University Commissioners, or other Parties, consequent thereon."

Sedgefield, near Ferryhill,
6 May 1861.

Sir,

I HAVE the honour to enclose the documents relative to the University of Aberdeen, which I was requested, by a letter, dated Whitehall, 29th April, to forward to you.

In regard to No. IV. of these documents it may be necessary that I should observe, that although in compliance with the wish of a committee composed of certain members of the majority of the 2d of February, who were desirous of justifying the opinion expressed by them as to the comparative cost of their scheme, and of that adopted by the Commissioners under the Universities Act, and Her Majesty the Queen in Council, the Senatus ordered that document to be transmitted to the University Court; the Senatus is not responsible for the views and statements which it contains.

I have, &c.
(signed) P. C. Campbell, D.D.,
Principal of the University of Aberdeen.

The Right Hon.
Sir G. C. Lewis, Bart., &c. &c.

I. COPY of MINUTE of Senatus, containing Resolutions of the Senatus Academicus of the University of Aberdeen, passed on the 2d day of February 1861, respecting the Site of the Classes of Arts; together with the Amendment on the said Resolution moved on that day:

At Aberdeen on the 2d day of February 1861, the Senatus Academicus of the University being met,

Inter alia, Professor Nicol moved in terms of the intimation made by him at last meeting, and Dr. Ogston seconded the motion, viz.: The Senatus Academicus of the University as now constituted having hitherto given no expression of opinion in reference to the site of the Arts Faculty, but deeming the question of great importance to the community and the interests of the University, and fearing that some steps may be taken which will prevent the possibility of its subsequent consideration,

Resolves,

1. That it is the decided opinion of the Senatus Academicus of this University, that it would essentially advance the interests of the University, as well as largely contribute to the convenience of the public, were the classes in the Faculty of Arts transferred from the University Buildings in Old Aberdeen to the University Buildings in Aberdeen. And farther, that it is the opinion of the Senatus that the present arrangement, if persevered in, will eventually prove highly injurious to the University.

2. Further, that whereas the existing arrangement, if adhered to, will involve a large addition to the present University Buildings in Old Aberdeen, which cannot be made without Parliamentary aid, and at great cost, while ample accommodation for the Arts classes already exists in those in Aberdeen, and nothing farther would be required beyond some additional provision for the medical classes, which could be supplied at comparatively little cost, in a form better adapted for the purpose than their present accommodation ; the Senatus, therefore, regards the proposed extension of the University Buildings in Old Aberdeen, as an unnecessary expenditure of the national funds.

3. That a copy of these Resolutions be sent to the University Commissioners, and that they be respectfully requested to take them into consideration, and to issue an ordinance in accordance therewith.

4. That these Resolutions be also communicated to the First Lord of the Treasury, Chancellor of the Exchequer, President and Vice-President of Her Majesty's Privy Council, the Chief Commissioner of Public Works, the University Court, and the General Council of the University.

Professor Fuller proposed, as an Amendment, which was seconded by Professor Thomson, "That whereas the division of the classes between the University Buildings in the Old and New Towns was referred by Act of Parliament to the Universities' Commissioners; and whereas the said Commissioners have made, by Ordinance, the arrangements at present existing ; and whereas the said Ordinance has been laid before Parliament, and after much discussion has been approved and confirmed by Her Majesty in Council ; it appears to the Senatus unnecessary and inexpedient, in present circumstances, to revive a question which has been so fully considered and so authoritatively decided." And a vote being taken, the following members voted for the motion, viz. : Dr. Macrobin, Dr. Pirrie, Dr. Lizars, Rev. Dr. Pirie, Professor Martin, Dr. Maclure, Professor Nicol, Dr. Ogston, Professor Bain, Dr. Ogilvie, Dr. Harvey, and Dr. Dickie ; and the following for the amendment, viz. : the Principal, Dr. Fyfe, Professor Thomson, Professor Scott, Professor Fuller, Dr. Macpherson, Professor Geddes, and Professor Milligan.

There being, therefore, 12 votes in favour of the motion, and 8 votes in favour of the amendment, the Senatus resolved in terms of the motion, and instructed the Secretary to transmit extracts of the present minute to the Universities' Commissioners, and others named in the fourth Resolution.

II. Statement of the Names of those who voted for the said Resolution and Amendment respectively ; specifying in regard to each Member voting as above, whether he was connected either as Professor or Graduate with either of the late Colleges, and, if so, with which of them.

III. COPY LETTER from Robert Berry, Esq., Secretary to the Universities' Commissioners, in answer to a Communication to them, containing the said Excerpt Minute.

Scottish Universities Commission,
Sir, 36, Moray Place, Edinburgh, 11 February 1861.

THE Universities' Commissioners have had under consideration the Extract from the Minutes of the Senatus Academicus of the University of Aberdeen, of the 2d instant, with reference to the site of the classes in the Faculty of Arts in the University; and in answer to the request contained in the third of the Resolutions of the Senatus, that the Commissioners should issue an Ordinance directing the transference of those classes from their present site, they desire me to state that they remain of opinion that the arrangements made by their Ordinances are the best calculated to promote the interests of the University; and they therefore decline to comply with the request that they should interfere by Ordinance to disturb those arrangements.

I am, &c.
(signed) Robert Berry,
Secretary.

Professor Thomson,
Secretary of the University of Aberdeen.

IV. STATEMENT of a Committee of the Senatus, presented the 11th March 1861, and ordered to be transmitted to the University Court, in addition to the Extract Minute of 2d February 1861.

THE question of the comparative expense of the two alternative locations of the Arts Faculty turns upon two subjects, the library and the accommodation of the medical school.

The following calculations will show that the existing University Buildings contain ample space for the library for many years to come.

In the Old Town there are at present 45,000 volumes, in the New Town 22,000; but as Dr. Melvin's library of 6,000 volumes is placed in a separate room in Marischal College, we may exclude it from the present reckoning. There will thus be a total of 61,000 volumes to be provided for.

Nearly one-fourth of this total may be presumed to be theological works. These would naturally attach to the seat of the Theological Faculty. There might also be left in the Old Town library at least 6,000 volumes belonging to other departments, on the ground of their being seldom referred to. It would then be necessary to provide room in Marischal College for 25,000 volumes, and for an annual increase of 700 or 800 volumes, in addition to the old Marischal College library.

The practicability of making this provision may be demonstrated as follows:

At present the library-room is shelved only on the wall, and that is only partially occupied, there being room for several thousand volumes additional. The form of the gallery is not adapted to the erection of wing presses, which would give the greatest amount of new accommodation; but two lines of shelves, 45 feet in length, might be laid on the floor. There are also two side rooms which might be made available; and, finally, the Great Hall might, without any detriment to its present purpose, be shelved all round.

On making the requisite measurements and computations, it appears that 1,000 volumes on an average can be contained in somewhat more than 100 square feet. As regards modern books especially, this proportion is very near the truth.

Now, the floor shelves proposed for Marischal College library being 45 feet long by, say, 10 feet high, would yield a surface of 1,800 feet, and be capable of containing at least 16,000 volumes.

The side rooms might contain 8,000 or 9,000. We have thus already the accommodation required at the present time, while the empty space on the walls above the gallery could receive the increase of the next few years.

There then remains for future accessions, the Public Hall, measuring 200 feet round the walls, and in which a superficies of more than 2,000 feet is obtainable without any gallery construction; that is to say, accommodation for 20,000 volumes, or 30 years' increase at the present rate; the new theological works being added to the Theological Library.

With such a provision it is superfluous to indicate means of still further extension; it is sufficiently apparent that the University Library can be contained in the existing buildings with the greatest ease, for 40 or 50 years to come.

As regards the medical school, the assistant architect of Marischal College, Mr. Ramage, being furnished by the medical professors with the details of the additional accommodation that they would require if the Arts Classes were brought over to Aberdeen, has reported to the following effect:

"I have received a statement regarding the additions and alterations required at Marischal College, to complete the accommodation for the medical classes, on the supposition that the Arts Classes are also to be accommodated in the building.

"The requirements are as follows: certain additions and alterations in the anatomical rooms, such as enlargement of dissecting-rooms, reading-room, &c.; two new class-rooms, lighted from the roof, for the classes of surgery; and institutes of medicine, with private rooms adjoining, and additional space for the museums of Pathology, Materia Medica, and Botany.

"All this can be provided for by a building of two stories, crossing the court from north to south in rear of the anatomical rooms, at a cost not exceeding 3,500 l."

Sir, Downing-street, 22 April 1861.

I am desired to inform you, with reference to the memorial from the Senatus Academicus of Aberdeen, praying that the Faculty of Arts may hold its classes in Aberdeen, and not in Old Aberdeen, that Lord Palmerston has ascertained that the existing arrangement has been sanctioned by the Queen in Council, and that it cannot be altered without an Act of Parliament, which Her Majesty's Government are not prepared to propose.

I remain, &c.

A COPY of CORRESPONDENCE between the Commissioners of Her Majesty's Works and Public Buildings, and the Scottish Universities Commission on the subject of BUILDINGS for the accommodation of the FACULTY of ARTS and LIBRARY in the UNIVERSITY of ABERDEEN.

Universities Commission Office, Edinburgh,
22 February 1859.

My Lord,

I HAVE lately received from the Secretary of the Treasury, a communication to the effect that the Lords Commissioners will be prepared to give directions respecting the issue of a sum of money formerly voted for the repairs of the buildings of King's College, Aberdeen, upon receiving estimates for that purpose approved of by the Universities Commissioners.

Plans for repairs of the buildings were formerly prepared by the architect of the Board of Works, and were, as I understand, sent to the office of the Board in London; since which time the preparations for proceeding with the operations were suspended by causes which it is unnecessary to explain.

All difficulty however being now removed, the Universities Commissioners are desirous to be put in possession of the plans, in order that they may take steps for having estimates prepared, to be submitted to the Lords of the Treasury.

As it may be necessary in the altered state of circumstances arising from the Act of last Session, for the improvement of the Scottish Universities and the union of the two Universities and Colleges of Aberdeen, that the plans originally proposed should be in some respects altered, the Commissioners will be obliged by your Lordship or the Board of Works, &c., granting the necessary authority to their architect, Mr. Matheson, to give such assistance to the Commissioners in this respect as may be requisite.

I am, &c.
(signed) John Inglis,
Chairman of Commission.

The First Commissioner of Works, &c.

Scottish Universities Commissioners, 36, Moray-place, Edinburgh, 7 July 1860.

Sir,

THE Commissioners for the purposes of the Universities (Scotland) Act 21 & 22 Vict., c. 83, desire me to intimate to your Board that Her Majesty in Council having, on the 30th June, been pleased to confirm the ordinances of the Commissioners, of dates the 12th March 1859, and 9th and 10th January 1860, with reference to the University of Aberdeen, the union of the present colleges will take effect from the 15th of September next, and on the assembling of the students in October, the united classes in the Faculties of Arts and Divinity will meet in the buildings of King's College, and those in the Faculties of Law and Medicine, and also the class of Natural History, in the buildings of Marischal College.

The Commissioners understand that the final adjustment of any plans for the restoration and extension of the buildings of King's College was postponed until the decision of the Queen in Council should be given. Now that the ordinances are confirmed, it is desirable that no time should be lost in having plans adjusted and suitable accommodation provided, the present accommodation being most defective. For this purpose the Commissioners request that there may be included in the estimates of your department for the present year, the remaining of the sum of 12,000 l. already destined for this service, and of which one moiety was voted last year.

The Commissioners think it necessary to observe that of the moiety already voted a portion has, under the authority of the late First Commissioner of Works, been already expended in repairs on the chapel, and on some of the Professor's houses.

It is further indispensable that, in the meantime, repairs and alterations of a temporary nature should be made in the present class-rooms at King's College, with a view to the accommodation of the united classes on their assembling in October. These class-rooms are at present quite incapable of accommodating the classes which will then fall to occupy them, and it is therefore obvious that this is a matter of the utmost urgency.

The Commissioners further request that your Board will authorise Mr. Matheson, Surveyor for Scotland of your Department, to put himself in communication with the Commissioners and also with the Principal and Professors in Aberdeen, both with a view to the final adjustment of the plans for King's College buildings, and also for carrying out the temporary alterations above referred to.

I have, &c.

Secretary.

Alfred Austin, Esq., Secretary,

Scottish Universities Commission,
36, Moray-place, Edinburgh, 30 October 1860.

Sir

I AM directed by the Commissioners under the Universities (Scotland) Act, 21 & 22 Vict. c. 83, to transmit to you the enclosed extract from their Minutes, of date the 26th instant, with reference to revised plans for an alteration and extension of the buildings of the University of Aberdeen, lately occupied by King's College, which have been prepared by Mr. Matheson, the surveyor for Scotland of your department, and submitted to the Commissioners. The plans themselves are sent by this post.

I also enclose, by direction of the Commissioners, a copy of Mr. Matheson's letter of the 24th instant, which relates to these plans, and which is mentioned in the Minute of the Commissioners.

I have, &c.
(signed) Robert Berry,
Secretary.

The Right Hon.
The First Commissioner of Her Majesty's Works, &c.

EXTRACT from Minutes of the Universities Commissioners, of date the 26th October 1860.

Inter alia,

THE Commissioners having had under consideration a revised series of plans prepared by Mr. Matheson, the surveyor for Scotland, of the office of Her Majesty's Works, &c., for the extension and repair of the buildings at King's College, Aberdeen, and their adaptation to the requirements of the united University; and also Mr. Matheson's letter of the 24th instant referring thereto, resolve to approve of the said plans, and direct that the plans be forwarded to the First Commissioner of Her Majesty's Works, &c., with an intimation of their approval by the Commissioners.

The Commissioners also approve, generally, of the terms of Mr. Matheson's letter. They cannot, however, concur in the expediency of postponing the erection of the new library to a future period. The use now made of part of the chapel as the University Library is productive of much inconvenience, and the erection of a new library is further rendered indispensable, in order that the University may be provided with a suitable room in which the examinations in the Faculty of Arts may be conducted.

The

The Commisssoners also desire that an intimation may be made to the First Commissioner of their sense of the extreme inadequacy of the existing accommodation for the purposes of the united University, and of the importance of estimates being obtained, and other necessary steps being taken to carry out the proposed alterations without delay. They desire to express their entire approval of the temporary arrangements which have been made under Mr. Matheson's superintendence; but these are in many respects quite unsuitable for the permanent accommodation of the united classes which are now to assemble in these buildings.

In connexion with the alteration and extension of the University buildings to which these plans relate, the Commissioners have had their attention drawn to the circumstance, that a new system of drainage for the town of Old Aberdeen is projected by the inhabitants, and that overtures have been made to the University authorities to take the benefit of the new system, and bear a part of the expense. The Commissioners understand that the drainage of the University properly admits of much improvement, and desire that it may be intimated to the First Commissioner that if the proposed system of drainage be approved of, it would, in their opinion, be fair and reasonable that the University, whose property within the burgh of Old Aberdeen, constitutes a considerable part of the area of the burgh territory, should contribute something like a corresponding part of the necessary expense.

Office of Her Majesty's Works, Edinburgh,
Sir, 24 October 1860.

With reference to the correspondence which has passed between the Universities Commissioners and the Board of Her Majesty's Works, &c., relative to the extension and repair of King's College Buildings at Aberdeen, and also to my communications with your Commissioners and the Professors at Aberdeen on the subject, I beg to state that I have now prepared the accompanying revised series of plans, elevations, and sections of the proposed extended buildings in connexion with King's College, containing the following accommodation:—

On the ground-floor:

Biblical criticism, seated for	-	100	A Professor's retiring room attached to each class.
Divinity - - „	-	126
Church History and Hebrew - - „	-	96
Greek - - - „	-	220
Latin - - - „	-	220
Moral Philosophy - „	-	143

Library, having gallery, to be also used as the Examination Hall, 100 feet long by 28 feet broad; three large reading-rooms connected therewith.
The chapel.

On the first-floor:

Natural philosophy, seated for	-	170	A Professor's retiring room attached to each.
Logic - - - - -	-	220
Mathematics - - - -	-	220

Apparatus-room.
Museum.
Senatus.

Senator's Room:

Charter room, and all other necessary conveniences; the large tower, at present containing class rooms, &c., and housekeeper's dwelling is, by these plans, proposed to be appropriated for tutors' rooms, &c.

While preparing these designs I conferred with Principal Campbell, and also with some of the professors, whose suggestions I have been enabled generally to adopt, except that the professors wish separate and exclusive entrances for each, leading into their respective class rooms; but as it will be seen by reference to the plans that each professor enters his class directly from his private room, I did not deem it expedient to comply with their proposal in this respect, which would necessarily interfere with the general arrangements and add to the expense.

It is intended by these designs that the old buildings forming the present south side of the quadrangle, which are dilapidated and not susceptible of repair, shall be wholly taken down and removed, and the new building erected further southward; and that the present east end of the quadrangle shall be altered and adapted to suit the further requirements, having the approach through it to the new library to be erected in the open space beyond.

In the Parliamentary estimates for the year 1856–7 the sum of 6,000 l. was included for erecting improved class accommodation, &c., at King's College, the estimated cost of the whole being stated therein at 12,750 l.; but as this grant ceased to be available the sum of 6,000 l. was repeated for this service in the estimates for 1859–60, and of which 1,435 l. 1 s. 3 d. has been expended in urgently required repairs and restorations upon the chapel and some of the professors' houses, &c., leaving a balance of 4,564 l. 18 s. 9 d. which, with the further balance of the original estimate 6,750 l., makes an available sum of 11,314 l. 18 s. 9 d. towards defraying the expense of the proposed new buildings, and such other works as may now be approved.

When, however, the grant of last year was obtained, no ultimate cost of the new buildings, &c., at King's College was stated in the Parliamentary Estimates, because until the decision of the Queen in Council, then pending should be disposed of, regulating the number of classes to be taught there, it was impossible to form any estimate of the cost of the accommodation that might become requisite. The Treasury, however, by their letter, dated 4th August last, addressed to the First Commissioner of Her Majesty's Works, &c., authorising me to prepare the revised designs, desire that he will "impress upon me the necessity of keeping the total expense within the estimate already laid before Parliament."

The original estimate for the extension and repair of the College buildings was prepared and submitted by me so far back as 17th September 1855, amounting to 11,550 l., and, subsequently, a further estimate of 1,200 l. was added for a new professor's house for Dr. Scott, together 12,750 l., being the amount stated in the original Parliamentary Estimates; but no works were executed upon these buildings until the year 1859, when the Honourable Mr. FitzRoy, First Commissioner of Her Majesty's Works, accompanied Principal Campbell and me in an inspection over the College buildings, and finding that owing to the repairs upon the roof of the chapel and library having been so long postponed, and that the weather was seriously injuring the building, and damaging the contents of the library; and, further, that Professor Ferguson's house was also being seriously injured, he directed, in order to prevent the total destruction of these edifices, that immediate measures should be taken for their repair and renewal when necessary; also for extended library accommodation. Accordingly, the expenditure of 1,435 l. 1 s. 3 d. was thus incurred.

During the operations, it was found that the timbers of the chapel roof, and the entire oak ceiling, were so far decayed as to require almost total renewal.

The designs now submitted have been prepared upon the principle of providing the requisite accommodation in the most economical manner, and as nearly as can be estimated the three following sections will cost as follows:—

	£.	s.	d.
1. The erection and completion of the new buildings on the South side extending from A to B - - - - -	7,500	–	–
2. The taking down and re-erection of the buildings, forming the East side of quadrangle extending from C to D	2,600	–	–
3. The library to form also the examination hall, with three reading rooms attached - - - - - - -	2,875	–	–
	12,975	–	–
While, as explained, there is only an available balance upon the original estimates of - - - - - - -	11,314	18	9
Leaving an excess of - - - £.	1,660	1	3

Occasioned

Occasioned in the first instance by an excess of expenditure in repairs executed only this year instead of five years previously; but chiefly the increased cost is occasioned by the enlarged requirements of King's College. Thus the tutorial system is to be introduced, not formerly contemplated, and consequently accommodation is now provided for tutors; the number of classes is also increased, and the size of each room enlarged.

Should the designs now submitted be approved by the Universities Commissioners, I would beg leave to recommend they should be forwarded by you to the Honourable the First Commissioner of Her Majesty's Works, &c., for his consideration and direction thereupon.

I have only further respectfully to suggest that, as the library accommodation has been temporarily extended and improved, the erection of the new building may be postponed in the meantime, and the class rooms, &c., be, in the first instance, completed. I am, however, aware of the inconvenience of this course as regards the annual examinations of students, for which the new library is also intended to serve; but it is the only means of keeping the cost of the more urgent works within the estimate submitted to Parliament for this service.

I beg you will acquaint the Universities Commissioners that a scheme for the general drainage of the old town of Aberdeen, comprehending the several buildings and property of King's College, is proposed by the inhabitants, and on which it would be well, in any communication with the First Commissioner regarding the buildings, they should express their opinion.

I. The course of study necessary for the Degree of Master of Arts shall extend over four Winter Sessions, and shall include attendance for not less than two Sessions on the Classes of Humanity, Greek, and Mathematics respectively; and attendance for not less than one Session on the Classes of Logic, Moral Philosophy, and Natural Philosophy respectively; and also attendance on a course of English Literature, for which each University shall make due provision: Provided always, that any Student who, at the time of his entrance to the University, shall satisfy the Professors in the Faculty of Arts, on examination, that he is qualified to attend the higher Classes of Latin, Greek, and Mathematics, or any of them, shall be admitted to such higher Class or Classes, as the case may be, without having previously attended the First or Junior Class or Classes in the same department or departments: Provided also, that, where a Student has been admitted to the higher Classes both of Latin and Greek, without having previously attended the First or Junior Latin and Greek Classes, his course of study for the Degree of Master of Arts may be completed within three Winter Sessions instead of four.

II. In pursuing the course of study for the Degree of Master of Arts, no Student shall be permitted to pass from the junior to a higher Class in any department, unless the Professor shall be satisfied of his fitness to enter the higher Class.

III. Examinations for the Degree of Master of Arts shall take place, in each University annually, at such convenient time, after the close of the Winter Session, as the Senatus Academicus shall from time to time appoint; with power to each University to appoint Examinations to take place at such other time or times as may be convenient.

IV. Candidates for the Degree of Master of Arts shall be examined on the subjects of instruction embraced in the course of study above prescribed; and the Examinations may be conducted partly in writing and partly vivâ voce.

V. Any Student, who has completed his attendance on the Latin and Greek Classes required in the prescribed course of study, may be examined on these subjects at any examination for Degrees, although he has not completed his attendance on the other Classes of the prescribed course; and, in like manner, any Student, who has completed the attendance required in the prescribed course of study on the Classes of Logic and Moral Philosophy and course of English Literature, may be examined on these subjects at any examination for Degrees, although he has not completed his attendance on the other Classes of the prescribed course; and also, in like manner, any Student, who has completed the attendance required in the prescribed course of study on the Classes of Mathematics and Natural Philosophy, may be examined on these subjects at any examination for Degrees, although he has not completed his attendance on the other Classes of the prescribed course; and, if such Student shall satisfy the Examiners, when so examined in Latin and Greek, or in Logic, Moral Philosophy, and English Literature, or in Mathematics and Natural Philosophy, he shall receive from them a certificate to that effect, and he shall not be again examined on the same subjects as a condition of his taking the Degree of Master of Arts.

VI. Students, who have passed satisfactorily an examination or examinations on the several subjects embraced in the prescribed course of study, shall be entitled forthwith to receive the Degree of Master of Arts without Honours; but they may, before taking a Degree, offer themselves for a farther examination with a view to graduation with Honours: Provided always, that no person shall be admitted to examination for Honours, after he has ceased to be a Matriculated Student in attendance on a Class or Classes in the University, for more than one Winter Session; but it shall be in the power of the Senatus Academicus in particular cases, on the ground of ill health or other sufficient cause, to dispense, so far as may be necessary, with this regulation.

Mental Philosophy, including Logic, Metaphysics, and Moral Philosophy; (3.) Mathematics, including pure Mathematics and Natural Philosophy; and (4.) Natural Science, including Geology, Zoology, and Chemistry.

VIII. In each of the first three of the above mentioned departments, viz., in Classical Literature, in Mental Philosophy, and in Mathematics, there shall be two grades of Honour, each representing, as nearly as may be, a uniform standard of qualification, to be denominated respectively the First Class and the Second Class; but in the Department of Natural Science there shall be one Class of Honours only; and the Examiners shall determine, with reference to each candidate for Honours, whether he is entitled to any honourable distinction, and, if so, whether, in regard to each of the first three departments, he has attained the standard of the First or only of the Second Class; and the names of the candidates entitled to Honours in each Class, in the several departments, shall be arranged in alphabetical order.

IX. The Examiners for graduation without Honours in each University shall be the Professors whose Classes are embraced in the prescribed course of study, and, in addition, three persons, not being Professors or Assistant Professors in any Scottish University, to be appointed by the University Court, and in the appointment of whom regard shall be had to their eminence in Classical Literature, Mental Philosophy, and Mathematical Science.

X. Of the three Examiners first appointed by the University Court in each University, one shall be appointed for the term of two years, another for the term of three years, and the third for the term of four years; and thereafter, every additional Examiner shall be appointed for a term of three years: Provided that the appointment of any Examiner, during the currency of his term of office, to a Professorship or Assistant Professorship in any Scottish University, shall be held to vacate his office of Examiner: Provided also, that, in the event of a vacancy in the office of an Examiner occurring otherwise than by expiration of his term of office, the Examiner, to be appointed by the University Court in his room, shall be appointed for the remainder of such term only.

XI. No person who has been appointed to the office of Examiner for the period of three years or four years, shall be eligible for re-appointment to the office of Examiner in the same University, until he has ceased to hold the office of Examiner in such University for not less than one year.

XII. The Examiners for graduation with Honours shall be the same Professors and additional Examiners, as for graduation without Honours; and, in the examination of candidates for Honours in the Department of Natural Science, there shall be added the Professors of Natural History and of Chemistry, and the University Court may, if they think fit, appoint an additional Examiner, skilled in Natural Science, not being a Professor or Assistant Professor in any Scottish University.

XIII. No person shall be appointed an Examiner who is not a Member of the General Council of one or other of the Scottish Universities.

XIV. With the exception of the additional Examiner in Natural Science, each of the Examiners to be appointed by the University Court shall, for each full period of a year in which he shall act as Examiner, receive, in the case of the Universities of Glasgow, Aberdeen, and Edinburgh, a sum of 80*l.*, and in the case of the University of St. Andrew's, a sum of 50*l.*, to be annually voted by Parliament; and where an additional Examiner in Natural Science is appointed, he shall receive, from the general funds of the University, such remuneration as the Senatus Academicus, with the approval of the University Court, shall appoint.

XV. The first Article of Ordinance, No. 12, Aberdeen, No. 4, of the 2d day of July 1860, shall be and the same is hereby repealed; and the course of study to be required hereafter in the University of Aberdeen, as necessary for admission to the Degree of Master of Arts, shall be the course of study hereinbefore prescribed; and all existing regulations in any of the said Universities inconsistent in any respect with the provisions of this Ordinance, shall be and the same are hereby repealed.

XVII. The provisions of this Ordinance shall come into operation, in each University, at the commencement of the Winter Session next after the approval thereof by Her Majesty in Council.

XVIII. Every Student who, at the time when this Ordinance shall come into operation, shall have completed a part of his course, with a view to graduation in Arts in any of the said Universities, under regulations in force at the time in such University, and shall thereafter complete his course of study in conformity with such regulations, may become a candidate for the Degree of Master of Arts, without complying with the provisions of this Ordinance regarding the course of study for that Degree, provided he pass the examination or examinations required by this Ordinance.

In witness whereof, these Presents are sealed with the Seal of the Commission.
